Civic Center Second Stage Causing Space Headaches

WHAT GOES INTO IT? — Second stage of the Marin County Civic Center—the long double-roofed building extending upward and to the right of the pylon in this model of the completed center—is now being planned. And county officials and architects are running into numerous questions as to what shall be included in it.

Trying To Anticipate Future Developments

By ROBERT M. COPPOCK

Architects and county officials have been brainstorming the past few weeks, trying to think up new possible needs for second stage development of the Marin County Civic Center.

One of the biggest problems in the present building, according to County Administrator Alan Bruce, is that new departments no one had dreamed of have been established, and space had to be squeezed out for them. Therefore, he has been trying to anticipate some of the developments in the next five or 10 years.

One suggestion he had made to architect Aaron G. Green, representative of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation, responsible for design of the Civic Center, is that plans leave some unallocated space in the building, that can be filled in with offices as needed.

In return, he suggested, the reserve space set aside for ecah department could be cut.

The next section of the project to be built, according to county plans, will be the hall of justice. It will stretch from the east end of the present building at an angle over two hills toward the lagoon.

In this building will be placed those departments now in the courthouse in downtown San Rafael. Also to be provided will be room for eventual further expansion of courts as other buildings are added later.

SMALL JAIL

Tentative plans call for a relatively small jail, although larger than the present one, on the top floor of the new wing, with the sheriff's office close by. Courts would be on the top floor and the floor below.

Green recently presented to the board of supervisors a space study of expected needs through 1990, but added he was faced by so many indeterminates that much of what he showed was guesswork. Refinement of the estimates will be made as plans are drawn up for presentation about June.

NO DECREASE

The estimates of space have ben based on assumption that the county will be able to hold the line on the number of government employees per 1,000 residents. But Green noted in his report that data processing, for instance, has not cut down the total number of county employees, although it has made those working for the county more productive.

One problem the county will have to face soon is what to do about the health department. It has outgrown its present building in San Rafael, but the building was constructed with federal funds granted through the Hill-Burton Act. The county has used the building for 10 years, but must us it another 10 years for health services or pay the federal government a penalty.

The board must decide whether it is wiser to pay the

GRANDMOTHER LEAKS NEWS

Governor Rockefeller, Wife Expect Child In Early June

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and his second wife, the former Margaretta Fitler Murphy, announced today that they expect the birth of a child in early June.

The formal confirmation of the long rumored event came after Mrs. Rockefeller's mother, Mrs. George E. Bartol of Wynnewood, Pa., leaked the news like any pleased grandmother.

ISSUES STATEMENT

"Gov. and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller announced today that they expect the arrival of a child early in June of 1964."

Spokesmen for the governor had "no comment" on the report earlier in the day. The governor had previously denied his wife was expecting.

"I've been very happy ever since I found out," Mrs. Bartol said. "I can't say any more than that."

It will be the previously married Mrs. Rockefeller's fifth child. She and her first husband, Dr. James Slater Murphy of the Rockefeller Institute staff, had four children — James, 12, Margaret, 10, Carol, 7, and Melinda, 3.

FIVE CHILDREN

The 55-year-old governor had five grown children by his first wife, Mrs. Mary Clark Rockefeller, but his youngest son, Michael C. Rockefeller, died on an expedition in New Guinea in 1961.

Mrs. Rockefeller, 36, and the governor were married May 4, 1963, a month after her divorce from Murphy, a research scientist and Tarrytown, N.Y., neighbor of the Rockefellers.

The governor was divorced by his first wife March 16, 1962.

The Murphys reached an amicable agreement on the custody of their children at the time of their divorce. The decree did not specify any particular custody, and Mrs. Rockefeller has had her children with her at various times since her re-marriage, although they still make their home with Murphy at his Manhattan town house.

The Rockefellers reserved one room for a nursery in the new wing of their Fifth Avenue apartment.

Fire Rates On Houses Up, Down

Fire insurance rates in California are going up for the owners of small homes and down for the owners of large ones, and generally the changes will benefit Marin County.

The rates, taking effect tomorrow, will increase annual rates by $1 to $30 a year for small homes and drop premiums from $1 to $50 a year on homes insured for $15,000 and up.

Most homes in Marin fall into the higher category, San Rafael insurance agent Gene F. O'Connor said. Many home owners in Marin also buy "package" insurance which covers liability, medical payments for accidents as well as fire and extended coverage, he said. The package policy will not change.

The Pacific Fire Rating Bureau said the changes were due to an increase in losses due to fire, explosion and storm in the smaller homes.

Those with three-year policies will not be affected by the new rate until the end of the current three-year term. However, large home owners may benefit by reductions in rate on a three-year policy at the first anniversary date.

COUPLE MISSES OUT ON FIRST BABY AGAIN

A San Rafael couple who closed out 1962 with twins have missed out on first baby of the year honors again.

Mrs. Mario Panichelli of 7 F Street, San Rafael, gave birth Dec. 23 to a daughter, Linda Rose—the third baby within a year for the Panichellis.

A year ago tonight, Mrs. Panichelli gave birth to twins, first Anna Maria and then Mario John, who was the last baby of 1962.

Highway Patrol Fighting Against High Death Toll

California Highway Patrol officers in Marin County have grimly adopted a resolution for 1964 and it should be taken as a warning to all drivers.

Having seen 1963 as the worst years so far for traffic fatalities in Marin, the officers will be more vigilent than ever in the coming year.

"We're determined not to let it happen again," said Capt. T. F. Parnow, in charge of the Marin CHP office. Thirty-three died in Marin traffic during the year, and one of the worst traffic evenings of the year is still to come.

There will be extra patrols on duty tonight.

This year began with the death of Robert T. McMullen, 19, of Kentfield on New Year's Day. He died as a result of injuries received in a traffic accident New Year's Eve.

Ideal Weather Seen For Rose Bowl Game

After an overnight low of 47 degrees, the forecaster anticipates a reading of 63 when the parade starts at 8:40 a.m.

Law Officers All Set For The Big Night

Law enforcement patrols throughout Marin County will be bolstered tonight, some to double strength, to cope with traffic violators, drunken drivers and unruly New Year's Eve celebrants.

Police officials urged heavy drinkers not to drive but to walk, take a taxi, or stay put.

"Every available man will be working, including some reserve deputies," reported Sheriff Louis P. Montanos. There will be almost double strength on patrol and double strength at the booking desk, he said.

Capt. Theodore F. Parnow of the California Highway Patrol said "many extra patrol units will be out until the wee hours of the morning."

Toll takers at the Golden Gate Bridge have been alerted to detain any drunken driving suspects at the bridge and call the CHP, Parnow said.

CHP officers hope to hold accidents down to the Christmas Eve mark, when only one injury accident occurred between Christmas Eve and Christmas night, Parnow said.

Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa of San Rafael said he will have 15 officers on duty during the "peak hours" by holding the 4 p.m. to midnight shift over awhile and bringing the midnight to 8 a.m. shift in early.

He added that he had made arrangements with his law firm in San Francisco so that he can devote more time to the supervisor's job during the next four years.

Corte Madera Public Safety Building Gains

The Corte Madera Town Council last night approved preliminary plans for a public safety building. Final plans will be completed in time to put a bond issue on the April 14 municipal election ballot.

While the total cost of construction of the building, which would house the police and fire departments, could rise to $294,000, the council indicated that only the construction cost of the building, $180,000 or slightly less, would be included in the bond issue.

However, the possibility of putting a bond issue for a swimming pool on the same election ballot was raised.

Councilman Charles F. Pendleton said: "There is a group of residents in the town who feel that no new structure should be built until a swimming pool is constructed. I just know this element would require the pool's inclusion or unequivocably vote down the bond issue."

Mayor Edward W. Colthurst agreed, "No doubt someone will come in with a petition for a swimming pool."

Two years ago two bond issues for a $100,000 public safety building and a $165,000 swimming pool and bathhouse both failed to gain even a simple majority vote. A two-thirds majority is needed to pass obligation bond issues.

Tippett Tells Of Talk With Pope

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A prominent Methodist bishop told yesterday how tears came to the eyes of Pope Jaul VI and flowed down his cheeks during a private talk on Christian unity.

Tippett

Bishop Donald H. Tippett, resident bishop in the California-Nevada conference, told newsmen of an emotion-filled audience with the pope which took place during his visit to observe the Ecumenical Council.

"He clasped my hand and tears were visible on his cheeks," the bishop said. "He asked me to pray for him and said he would pray for me in his heart."

Bishop Tippett said the pope is aligned with the "progressives" against the "conservatives" in the Vatican in efforts to fashion a more liberal church policy.

Kidnap Suspect's Bail Reduced

LOS ANGELES (AP)—John Irwin, one of three men accused of kidnaping Frank Sinatra Jr., says he "went along to make sure no one got hurt."

Irwin

Irwin, 42, talked with newsmen briefly yesterday after a federal judge reduced his bail from $50,000 to $30,000.

He said he was innocent of any part in the kidnaping of young Sinatra at Lake Tahoe.

Irwin said he spent only about $31 of the $48,000 in ransom money he received.

"I bought some toys for my kids and something for my wife," he said, "but I had a check in my pocket and I honestly intended to cash it and make up the difference."

Federal Judge Thurmond Clarke reduced Irwin's bail, saying he believed that Irwin helped crack the case.

Said Irwin: "I appreciate what the judge did, but I couldn't make $300 bail."

Third Shark Attack

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI) —Swimming was banned along a 10-mile strip of Natal Province's north coast yesterday after the third shark attack this month.

Cache Of Bombs

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Authorities in the north coastal city of Barranquilla reported yesterday the confiscation of a chache of bombs, dynamite, fuses and communist propaganda at a home in the center of the city.

Guatemala Election

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Col. Enrique Peralta, head of the Guatemalan military government, announced yesterday that an election will be held before March 30 for delegates to a constitutional assembly.

British Family Spends

LONDON (UPI)—The average British family, according to the ministry of labor, spent $51.30 a week during the 1963 fiscal year. The ministry said the figure for the previous year was $48.50.

EXCUSES ARE MADE BY FORMER NAZIS

FRANKFORT, Germany (UPI) — Twenty-two former Nazis will spend most of 1964 in a Frankfort courtroom, answering charges they helped run Hitler's massive death mill at Auschwitz.

All 22 defendants in the Auschwitz war crimes trial are accused of helping to kill some of the 2.5 to four million persons who died in the four years the infamous prison camp existed during World War II.

Nine are in investigative custody. The others are free between appearances. None look like mass murderers or former members of the SS elite guard.

At the second session of the trial yesterday, all made excuses. The next session will be held Jan. 6.

Oswald Kaduk, a 57-year-old former butcher and hospital orderly, snapped to attention and shouted: "I have already been sentenced to death by the Soviets—then I was pardoned."

"I stand here innocent," he screamed at the top of his voice. "If I had known there was so much injustice here, I would not have fled to the West."

Kaduk went to West Berlin when he was released from a Communist prison in East Germany.

Kaduk, accused of breaking the necks of Auschwitz prisoners with a pick, selecting 40 children to be burned and forcing 40 Russian prisoners to stand in the snow until they froze to death, said 20 of his comrades died in East Germany's Bautzen Prison.

"We are on trial. But the others who did the same thing are not. If two did the same thing, it's apparently not the same," he barked.

Franz Hofmann, 57, accused of gassing, burning and shootings, insisted he actually saved 40 Jewish boys from the gas chamber by setting up a masonry school for them."

Bruno Schlage, 60, who was in charge of maximum security cells, said he thought he was assigned to a re-education camp when he went to Auschwitz.

Johann Schobert, 41, a half-crippled farm hand, said all he did at Auschwitz was to sign death certificates in the registrar's office.

Stefan Baretzki, 44, who allegedly took pride in killing prisoners with a single punch, testified he left his native Romania to join the SS and get away from a job that "made me vomit" — cleaning spittoons.

Eight Killed In Plane Crash

BAR LE DUC, France (UPI)— Two women, two children and three Royal Canadian Air Force officers were killed when a twin-engined Bristol aircraft crashed while landing at Marville Air Base near here last night, according to local police reports today.

An eighth person died in the crash but it was not immediately known whether the victim was a serviceman or a dependant.

The plane was carrying six passengers—servicement and families—and a crew of five from Gatwick Airport, England, to the Canadian air base at Grostenquin.

British End Rhodesian Federation

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (UPI) — The flag of the white-ruled Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland flew for the last time today over half a million square miles of former British colonial territory in Central Africa.

Effective at midnight tonight, the 10-year old British federation is dissolved, and at least two of its three territories will become independent states under the rule of their African majorities.

Nyasaland already governed by Africans, and African nationalists in white-ruled Northern and Southern Rhodesia brought about the dissolution of the federation.

With independence definitely scheduled for Nyasaland in July and promised later for Northern Rhodesia, the future of Southern Rhodesia, where most of the whites live, remained in doubt.

The white minority of 250,000 claims it was its skill and investments that made Southern Rhodesia the modern state it is today.

Dogs Attack Boy

MIYAKATA, Japan (UPI) — A pack of stray dogs foraging for food attacked and seriously injured a 6-year-old boy yesterday. Police said about 20 dogs pounced on Hitoshi Yamaguchi and bit him in more than a dozen places about the body.

Paper Says Oswald Left Note Before Walker Sniper Fired

HOUSTON (UPI)—Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy, left his wife a note of instructions the night before a sniper fired a rifle into the Dallas home of former Maj. Jn. Edwin A. Walker, the Houston Chronicle said yesterday in a copyright story.

The Chronicle said the note, which told the Russian-born woman what to do if he were arrested, was in the hands of a special commission investigating the assassination.

The newspaper said the commission had learned that Oswald told his wife he was the sniper who narrowly missed Walker. It was reported earlier that Marina Oswald told the FBI about the incident. The federal government never commented on the report.

The note, written in Russian, told Mrs. Oswald where the jail was and how to get in touch with the Russian consul if she needed help, the Chronicle said. The shot was fired at Walker last April 10.

In the period of 1935-39, Americans spent 14 per cent of their disposable income for food—as compared with about 19 per cent now.

'No Man's Land,' Variance Confuses Dispute On Duplex

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Mill Valley planing commissioners tried to settle the dispute over the duplex at 20 Millwood Street, but decided, after much debate, the matter should be continued to Jan. 14 to act upon the six required variances at one time.

Jesper C. Strandgaard, acting for his partner, City Engineer Stanley M. Bala, reported a city survey of the boundary lines on either side of the Lloyd L. Seitzinger duplex at 20 Millwood has shown that the Seitzingers have a 1.9-foot setback on the north side of the duplex. This survey is in agreement with one taken by F. J. Grew of 24 Millwood, who has charged that while he and his wife were in Europe, the Seitzingers built the duplex to the 1.9-foot setback under a three-foot variance from the seven-foot setback requirement.

Strandgaard said his survey also found that there is a one-foot stretch of land running 131 feet deep between the Grews and Seitzingers which belongs to Norman C. Ortman Jr. of Mill Valley and other persons.

"This is a no man's land," said the engineer. He recommended that, to straighten the matter out, the Seitzinger boundary line be moved one foot toward the Grew property and the Molly B. Citrin boundary line (the property contiguous on the south to Seitzinger) be moved also one foot toward the Seitzingers. He suggested the "no man's land" came about through an error by Ortman when he subdivided.

The planning commissioners seemed to be in accord with Strandgaard's suggestion but took no action.

Ortman, who said today he purposely stayed away from the meeting, admitted he was surprised to learn he owned the long strip of land. "Both parties (the Grews and Seitzingers) would like the one foot," he said. "I don't want to seek any personal gain."

Attorney Richard Clark, speaking for Miss Citrin, and attorney Julius Selinger, speaking for the Seitzingers, said they approved of the engineer's proposal.

However, Harry Rogers, attorney for the Grews, said: "We maintain there is no such thing as a no man's land. This land belongs to the Grews. They have paid taxes on it for eight years and it's theirs. Furthermore, Ortman is not here. He was not sent the proper notice to appear. Therefore, we don't have to ask him about it.

Rogers previously had charged that neither the Grews nor Miss Citrin had been notified by the city when the original variances were sought.

Five variances, three of which were already approved by the commission but declared illegal by City Atty. Leland H. Jordan, include front yard setback, side yard setbacks, and one to permit minor projections into sideyard areas.

Commissioner Rodric L. Robinson announced a sixth variance has now been found needed. This is to permit a five-foot setback where a seven-foot one is required next to Seitzinger's home, which is directly behind the duplex.

Selinger urged the commission to act affirmatively last night on the five variances, adding that though the building is completed it cannot be occupied until the matter is settled. "The longer it goes on the more complicated it becomes," he declared.

Later the commission discussed an ordinance proposed by the city council which would provide a penalty for improper variance applications. The commission decided to ask the council for more time to discuss the ordinance.

Planning aide Jean McLean admitted that she had made two administrative mistakes in the duplex tangle.

Commissioner A. A. Hemmerling, who abstained from any discussion on the subject owing to his having been charged by the Grews with a possible conflict of interest, was told by commission chairman Robert Mountjoy that he was "completely exonerated." The Grews said Hemmerling had acted upon the variances as a commissioner, then later had built the controversial duplex.

Television Tower Rises 2,063 Feet

BLANCHARD, N. D. (AP) — Rising into a haze often concealing its distant tip, a huge television tower two miles west of here gives every appearance of that fabled "Stairway to Paradise."

But the illusion is shattered on a clear day when the tip of the tower is visible some 2,063 feet above pancake flat prairie land in eastern North Dakota.

The massive structure, geared to beam a strong television signal more than 100 miles in all directions, is owned by Pembina Broadcasting Co. of North Dakota, a subsidiary of Polaris Corp., Milwaukee, Wis. It was built in 30 days by an 11-man crew of Kline Iron and Steel Co., Columbia, S. C.

Work on the tower, estimated to cost almost a half million dollars, was started early in October and completed Nov. 1.

The structure exceeds by slightly more than 300 feet the previous world record for a man-made structure, a 1,751 foot TV tower near Knoxville, Tenn. It dwarfs the Empire State Building by almost 600 feet and is nearly double the height of the famed Eiffel Tower.

Its other statistics are equally impressive. The triangular-shape structure was built atop a foundation that has 87 wooden pilings, 75 feet long, hammered into the earth. Over that was poured 145 yards of concrete, eight and one-half feet thick at the center.

Nine permanent guy wires stretching out almost a quarter of a mile hold the tower in place. Each of the guy wires is held in the ground by T-shape anchors weighing 4,000 pounds each.

The steel for the structure was hauled here by seven railroad cars, then trucked to the site of the tower.

For maintenance work on the giant structure, an elevator is being installed in the center. It will rise to the 1,948-foot level, with the remaining 115 feet to be scaled by ladder.

Sitting atop the structure is the television antenna, topped off by a huge beacon light containing fourteen 650-watt bulbs, to warn any flyers who may feel secure cruising along at 2,000 feet.

Five engineers collaborated in designing the structure. The man directing the construction was Clint Capps, a 40-year-old, weather-hardened six-footer who calls Nashville, Tenn., his home, but travels the country 10 months of the year putting up huge TV towers.

Capps helped build the first tower for satellite tracking at Cocoa Beach, Fla., and acknowledges that "it's quite a thrill" to have built the world record-breaker here.

The crew foreman said he traveled to the top of the structure once, "but was too busy to take a look around."

Capps noted that the wind created some problems for his lofty workers when the tower was near completion, but added that it was "nothing dangerous." The tower is built to sway 13.9 feet in a 120 m.p.h. wind.

North Ridge Zone Proposal Is Voted

Mill Valley planning commissioners last night voted unanimously to recommend to the city council rezoning of 280 acres on the North Ridge to planned residential. The land is now under an interim zoning, for the most part in parcels from 20,000 to 100,000 square feet.

Planned residential zoning permits developers certain leeway to do the best type of development with land which is topographically irregular and steep.

Sole objector to the planning action was Mervin Silberberg of San Rafael, who represents owners of 86 acres in the vicinity of the municipal golf course. Silberberg said the north ridge master plan was "wrong," that he had been originally promised a density of 1.5 houses per acre and is now being given a .9 density.

He maintained that under the 1.5 density he would get about 137 residences on his land and that he should really be allowed 172 residences since his property has a gentle slope and is very close in. "I say this zoning is absolutely unfair," he said.

The Mill Valley Planning Commission also:

1. Learned that signs have been returned to their original redwood trim, the concrete block has been repainted white and plants are to be planted in tubs at the Wilshire Oil Co. service station at 374 Miller Avenue, following suggestions from the commission that the owners live up to their original plan agreements.

2. Were advised that the Mill Valley Rotary Club intends, without cost to the city, to complete the service sign structure at the Miller Avenue entrance to Mill Valley.

3. Denied a request from Mill Valley Food Mart to rezone a lot of 12 Sycamore Avenue, contiguous with the Mart parking lot, from single family to neighborhood shopping, saying it would entertain instead a request for a use permit to allow parking on the lot.

Developer's Son Doing Better After Car Crash

John Farrar, 14, son of San Rafael developer John J. Farrar Jr. of Kaehler-Farrar Development, Inc., was reported "doing all right" to day but still not in a condition to be brought home from Western Pacific Hospital in Portola, Sierra County, following injuries suffered in an auto accident Dec. 22.

The boy suffered a skull fracture and severe forehead cut "going around his head" when a car driven by his grandfather, James L. Bateman, rolled over in a gully off a turn of the road between Beckwith and Calpine, the boy's mother reported.

Bateman suffered chest and ear injuries but was taken to his home in Calpine Saturday by the Farrars. The boy's brother, Mark, 10, also in the car, was not injured.

Farrar had flown his sons to Beckwith in his twin-engine Apache so they could visit the Batemans. Bateman was taking the boys to his home when the accident occurred.

"John has passed the critical period," said his mother. "My husband and I plan to visit him at the hospital tomorrow and hope to have him home by the weekend. But we don't expect to get him back into school for a month."

Meeting Sought On Fire Station

San Rafael Fire Commission yesterday decided a meeting of architects, soil engineers and the city engineer should be held soon to choose a specific site for a No. 4 fire station on Bellam Boulevard near the sanitation district station in East San Rafael.

A recommendation on level of the land-fill there should also be made by the group, the commission said. Start on the fire station is planned for March.

Architect is Roger F. Hooper of Ross. Soil engineer is Harding Associates, San Rafael.

The commission also gave Fire Chief Vance Trivett permission to use two city-owned frame buildings between Railroad Avenue and Lisbon Street for personnel training by his department.

Renewal of a mutual fire-fighting aid agreement between San Rafael and Hamilton Air Force Base was approved by the commission.

Farm Aide: December Dry Month For Marin

This may come as a shock to some of Marin's two-fisted drinkers, but it has been a dry December. Weather-wise, that is.

Rainfall was down most of the month and so was the thermometer. Its been a time of dry goose pimples for everyone.

Marin County Farm Advisor Winston Engvall today confirmed this observation, but said there was nothing to worry about yet regarding the future of farming in Marin. The cold and the lack of rain has slowed down the growth of grass in the county's dairy land, but winter isn't over.

January and February are the traditional wet months, Engvall noted.

And there was some rain this month—.95 of an inch in San Rafael. This is well below the December average of 6.41, but it is much better than December, 1953, when thre was only .47 of an inch, and December, 1956, when only .46 fell.

Engvall said it all balances out over the years. In 1955, for instance, December brought 2.88 inches of rain. This was too much, Engvall said.

The farm advisor said most of the fog has been on the east side of the county this, month, with West Marin staying clear and cold.

This morning, fog closed the Marin County Airport north of Novato as well as Hamilton Air Force Base.

Clothing, Liquor Stolen In Sausalito

Burglars stole all the clothing of one Sausalito resident and two bottles of bourbon and a canned ham from another resident, police reported today.

Mrs. Margaret Frederick of 325 Pine Street reported at 9 a.m. that, while she slept, someone had broken into her home and taken one canned ham and four small cans of vegetable juice from her refrigerator and the bourbon from her kitchen.

She said she retired at 12:30 a.m. today and made the discovery on awakening at 6:30 a.m. Entry was made by breaking a small window in the porch door off the kitchen, Acting Police Chief David Cooper said.

Susan Clagert told officers at 9 a.m. yesterday that, while she was away from her home at 121 South Street between Dec. 21 and 29, someone stole her clothing from her bedroom closet. Entry was believed to have been made either through the front door or by a bathroom window, said Miss Clagert, an administrative assistant in San Francisco.

She reported the thief had dropped two skirts and one blouse on an outside stairway leading to the street.

Disbarred Lawyer Granted Pardon

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorney Archer Zamloch, who was disbarred after a bribery-conspiracy conviction in 1950, has been granted a presidential pardon.

U. S. Atty. Cecil Poole said he received notice of the pardon yesterday. It was granted Dec. 23.

Zamloch successfully applied to the state bar in 1959 for reinstatement as an attorney, and he is currently practicing in the Los Angeles office of attorney Melvin Belli.

The effect of the presidential pardon is to restore his rights to vote and hold public office, and to wipe out his conviction.

Zamloch argued at the time of his conviction that he was innocent. He had been accused of sending $3,600 to a federal prisoner for keeping silent about the operation of a narcotics ring.

Stolen Autos Found On Coast

Two automobiles stolen from San Francisco, were found abandoned near Stinson Beach, Marin sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

A 1961 Pontiac, registered to William P. McCartney of San Francisco, was found wrecked on the rugged coast off Highway 1, three miles south of Stinson Beach. It had been pushed over a 350-foot cliff, Deputy John O. Goff said. A 1951 Chevrolet, registered to James Jones of San Francisco, was found parked off the highway, just north of Stinson Beach State Park.

San Francisco police said both cars were stolen last week.

Slayer's Plea Is Rejected By Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals yesterday rejected a plea of Lawrence A. Jackson, 35, for a permanent stay of execution in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber.

Jackson was sentenced to death for the rape and murder of Mrs. Doris Keyes, 50, of Riverside. She was killed four days after Jackson got out of prison after serving 11 years for five rapes.

The court rejected Jackson's plea that the death penalty is cruel and unjust punishment because he can't control his sex urges.

The court said that under an earlier ruling by the United States Supreme Court it could not consider Jackson's plea as he never pleaded insanity.

A temporary stay spared Jackson from the gas chamber last October. It will terminate Jan. 9, after which a Riverside County judge will resentence him.

Contractor Proposes Shops, Cafe

A San Rafael contractor, L. E. Weisenburg Jr., has proposed to build shops and a restaurant on the southeast corner of Third and D streets in Santa Rosa in a portion of 40 acres planned by that city's urban renewal agency for downtown redevelopment.

Details were lacking as Weisenburg's office reported he was out of the county until Thursday.

A group of businessmen including Weisenburg, offered a 12 million dollar plan to redevelop the entire 40 acres, to include a 10 story civic center tower. A Los Angeles corporation submitted a bid to redevelop nearly the whole 40-acre area for about 11 million dollars.

No decision will be made for at least 60 days, said agency executive director Trent Harrington.

Driver, 17, Injured As Auto Strikes Pole

Three Men Sought In Attack Case

San Anselmo police today were seeking three young men who last night attempted to force an 18-year-old girl into their car.

The trio released the girl when another vehicle approached, officers said.

Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani said the girl had left a self-service laundry at San Anselmo and Tamalpais avenues about 10:30 p.m. when the suspect's car curbed and one occupant spoke to her.

She told officers the other two then jumped out, one grasped her left arm, and she was being pulled toward the vehicle when the second car appeared.

He assailants released her and drove off, the girl said. She was uninjured. She described the three as all about 21 years old, of Spanish-American descent, and driving a dark red 1958 Chevrolet with a stuffed animal in the back window.

Added Penalty Due On Unpaid Property Taxes

Taxpayers who are delinquent on payments of personal property taxes to the county for property on the unsecured roll will be subjected to an additional penalty starting today, Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk has ruled.

Marin County Treasure-Tax Collector Stanley J. Fontez said he received the opinion only today. It explains an ambiguity in a new state law increasing penalties on these unpaid taxes.

Under the old law, an 8 per cent penalty was added to the tax bill after the payment deadline was passed. Now, in addition to the 8 per cent another half a per cent per month interest will be charged.

County Collection Officer Mark J. Falcone said that about 800 taxpayers will be involved, and that the total tax bill of this type outstanding is about $115,000.

He said most of the tax bills are small, but that a few are several hundred dollars.

'No Man's Land,' Variance Confuses Dispute On Duplex

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Mill Valley planing commissioners tried to settle the dispute over the duplex at 20 Millwood Street, but decided, after much debate, the matter should be continued to Jan. 14 to act upon the six required variances at one time.

Jesper C. Strandgaard, acting for his partner, City Engineer Stanley M. Bala, reported a city survey of the boundary lines on either side of the Lloyd L. Seitzinger duplex at 20 Millwood has shown that the Seitzingers have a 1.9-foot setback on the north side of the duplex. This survey is in agreement with one taken by F. J. Grew of 24 Millwood, who has charged that while he and his wife were in Europe, the Seitzingers built the duplex to the 1.9-foot setback under a three-foot variance from the seven-foot setback requirement.

Strandgaard said his survey also found that there is a one-foot stretch of land running 131 feet deep between the Grews and Seitzingers which belongs to Norman C. Ortman Jr. of Mill Valley and other persons.

"This is a no man's land," said the engineer. He recommended that, to straighten the matter out, the Seitzinger boundary line be moved one foot toward the Grew property and the Molly B. Mrs. Margaret Frederick of 325 Pine Street reported at 9 a.m. that, while she slept, someone had broken into her home and taken one canned ham and four small cans of vegetable juice from her refrigerator and the bourbon from her kitchen.

She said she retired at 12:30 a.m. today and made the discovery on awakening at 6:30 a.m. Entry was made by breaking a small window in the porch door off the kitchen, Acting Police Chief David Cooper said.

Susan Clagert told officers at 9 a.m. yesterday that, while she was away from her home at 121 South Street between Dec. 21 and 29, someone stole her clothing from her bedroom closet. Entry was believed to have been made either through the front door or by a bathroom window, said Miss Clagert, an administrative assistant in San Francisco.

She reported the thief had dropped two skirts and one blouse on an outside stairway leading to the street.

Disbarred Lawyer Granted Pardon

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorney Archer Zamloch, who was disbarred after a bribery-conspiracy conviction in 1950, has been granted a presidential pardon.

U. S. Atty. Cecil Poole said he received notice of the pardon yesterday. It was granted Dec. 23.

Zamloch successfully applied to the state bar in 1959 for reinstatement as an attorney, and he is currently practicing in the Los Angeles office of attorney Melvin Belli.

The effect of the presidential pardon is to restore his rights to vote and hold public office, and to wipe out his conviction.

Zamloch argued at the time of his conviction that he was innocent. He had been accused of sending $3,600 to a federal prisoner for keeping silent about the operation of a narcotics ring.

Stolen Autos Found On Coast

Two automobiles stolen from San Francisco, were found abandoned near Stinson Beach, Marin sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

A 1961 Pontiac, registered to William P. McCartney of San Francisco, was found wrecked on the rugged coast off Highway 1, three miles south of Stinson Beach. It had been pushed over a 350-foot cliff, Deputy John O. Goff said. A 1951 Chevrolet, registered to James Jones of San Francisco, was found parked off the highway, just north of Stinson Beach State Park.

San Francisco police said both cars were stolen last week.

Severe Cold, Heavy Snows Rip Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Severe cold and heavy snows ripped Iran today and more than two-thirds of the nation's roads have been closed.

Officials here said at least 12 persons died and scores were injured due to cold and accidents caused by the weather during the past 24 hours. In Tehran, 24 persons were taken to hospitals.

Coal Production Down

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — Production of hard coal during 1963 in the six-nation European coal and steel pool was estimated today at 229 million tons, a drop of 1.5 per cent from the previous year.

Slayer's Plea Is Rejected By Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals yesterday rejected a plea of Lawrence A. Jackson, 35, for a permanent stay of execution in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber.

Jackson was sentenced to death for the rape and murder of Mrs. Doris Keyes, 50, of Riverside. She was killed four days after Jackson got out of prison after serving 11 years for five rapes.

The court rejected Jackson's plea that the death penalty is cruel and unjust punishment because he can't control his sex urges.

The court said that under an earlier ruling by the United States Supreme Court it could not consider Jackson's plea as he never pleaded insanity.

A temporary stay spared Jackson from the gas chamber last October. It will terminate Jan. 9, after which a Riverside County judge will resentence him.

Appellate Judges Named For Marin

Marin's three superior court judges were again designated as judges of the appellate department of the Marin Superior Court today by Chief Justice Phil S. Gibson of the State Supreme Court.

Judge Thomas F. Keating was named presiding judge for 1964. The position rotates each year, and Judge N. Charles Brusatori served this year. Superior courts in counties having municipal courts are required to have appellate courts, where municipal and justice court appeals are heard.

Driver Is Fined

Thomas Edmond Walgraeve, 24, Vallejo, was fined $176 yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving on Highway 101 Dec. 14. Judge Harold J. Haley also put Walgraeve on six months probation.

Takes Copter Class

Pfc. Hans M. Halberstadt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton H. Halberstadt, 96 Hillside Ave., San Anselmo, has completed a seven-week helicopter repair course at the Army Transportation School, Fort Eustis, Va.

Contractor Proposes Shops, Cafe

A San Rafael contractor, L. E. Weisenburg Jr., has proposed to build shops and a restaurant on the southeast corner of Third and D streets in Santa Rosa in a portion of 40 acres planned by that city's urban renewal agency for downtown redevelopment.

Details were lacking as Weisenburg's office reported he was out of the county until Thursday.

A group of businessmen including Weisenburg, offered a 12 million dollar plan to redevelop the entire 40 acres, to include a 10 story civic center tower. A Los Angeles corporation submitted a bid to redevelop nearly the whole 40-acre area for about 11 million dollars.

No decision will be made for at least 60 days, said agency executive director Trent Harrington.

Driver, 17, Injured As Auto Strikes Pole

Three Men Sought In Attack Case

San Anselmo police today were seeking three young men who last night attempted to force an 18-year-old girl into their car.

The trio released the girl when another vehicle approached, officers said.

Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani said the girl had left a self-service laundry at San Anselmo and Tamalpais avenues about 10:30 p.m. when the suspect's car curbed and one occupant spoke to her.

She told officers the other two then jumped out, one grasped her left arm, and she was being pulled toward the vehicle when the second car appeared.

He assailants released her and drove off, the girl said. She was uninjured. She described the three as all about 21 years old, of Spanish-American descent, and driving a dark red 1958 Chevrolet with a stuffed animal in the back window.

Hamilton Slates Surplus Sale

An air conditioning unit and fire extinguishers will be sold as surplus at Hamilton Air Force Base Jan. 16

They may be examined at the base defense surplus sales office in building 727 daily except holidays until the sale date.

In a second sale, on Jan. 17, the surplus sales office will dispose of typewriters, library books, and a grinding machine.

Added Penalty Due On Unpaid Property Taxes

Taxpayers who are delinquent on payments of personal property taxes to the county for property on the unsecured roll will be subjected to an additional penalty starting today, Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk has ruled.

Marin County Treasure-Tax Collector Stanley J. Fontez said he received the opinion only today. It explains an ambiguity in a new state law increasing penalties on these unpaid taxes.

Under the old law, an 8 per cent penalty was added to the tax bill after the payment deadline was passed. Now, in addition to the 8 per cent another half a per cent per month interest will be charged.

County Collection Officer Mark J. Falcone said that about 800 taxpayers will be involved, and that the total tax bill of this type outstanding is about $115,000.

He said most of the tax bills are small, but that a few are several hundred dollars.

He was treated and released from San Rafael General Hospital.

Police said Cole was traveling west about 4 p.m. The car struck a ditch and rolled onto its left side, officers added. No citation was immediately issued.

IT DEPENDS ON DEALER

Over-The-Counter Mart Prices Vary

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The price paid for a stock on the huge over-the-counter market—OTC—can vary in several ways.

A dealer may pay a wholesale price for it, while the public pays a retail price, which is the wholesale price plus some additions. And these can be figured more than one way.

If your broker acts as an agent, he buys the stock for you at the best wholesale price he can get at the time by phoning around to other dealers and consulting a wholesale listing he gets every morning. Then he adds on a commission, and this also can vary among brokers.

If your broker acts as a principal, he presumably carries active OTC stocks in inventory and sells you one plus a markup as he determines.

The National Assn. of Securities Dealers, Inc. — NASD — set up by Congress in 1939 to regulate its more than 4,000 member dealers operating in the OTC, keeps an eye in a general way on both the commissions and the markups charged and also on publishing of OTC reail price ranges for the guidance to the public.

The OTC is much larger both in number of issues available for trading and in volume of sales, than the nation's formal stock exchanges where only listed stocks can be bought and sold and where listing is subject to strict rules.

But some of the large brokerage firms charge commissions for OTC trading comparable to those prescribed by the nation's formal stock exchanges. Others may charge commissions that range higher than this, especially for the lower-priced stocks, of which there are an abundance among the OTC's some 40,000 issues available, nationally or regionally, for purchase by the public.

A Securities and Exchange Commission study group reported this year on many phases of the securities market noted of the OTC: "Principal markups ordinarily run higher than agency commissions and they are even higher in so called riskless transactions which constitute a substantial proportion of retail transactions."

A deal is dubbed riskless when a dealer sells as a principal to his customer — charging the wholesale price plus his particular markup — but at the same time buys similar shares in the wholesale market. Thus he avoids the risk of actually carrying a large inventory, although he appears to be selling from such an inventory and acting as a principal for profit.

Brokers can get wholesale price lists from a private organization, the National Quotation Bureau. It collects most of the quotations by telephone as dealers report at what prices they'll buy or sell specified issues — known as bid and asked.

The NASD says that most of its dealer members are ethical and abide by its standards for a fair markup or commission.

It also says it's only fair to the smaller dealers that the wholesale, or insider, bid and asked list be kept private, while the retail price list is made public. The argument: the small dealer couldn't afford the lower markup a big firm might charge and such publicity could force the smaller ones to the wall.

Critics of the NASD system contend that the public should know at what price an issue actually was traded.

The argument could reach Congress if it takes up recommendations for new regulations for the securities markets in general.

Power Lineman In 40-Foot Fall From Light Pole

He was admitted to San Rafael General Hospital for observation, but attendents said he suffered no broken bones.

Police said Kivley was atop a pole on Windsor Avenue near Chestnut Drive when he slipped and fell about 1:15 p.m. He first struck the street light arm, breaking the plunge before striking the concrete pavement, officers said.

Children Saved On Steep Hill

Firemen Theodore Berrum and Irvin Wilson attached a rope at the top of the hill and led the children down.

Fire Chief George Bartram said the children "were more scared than anything else." Firemen did not get the names and addresses of the children, who said they were moving from Corte Madera last night.

Family Hurt In Crash In Fair Condition

Two members of a Sausalito family, injured in a head-on auto crash south of San Jose Saturday, were reported in fair condition today at San Jose Hospital.

Mrs. William A. Austin, 42, of 26 Crecienta Drive, who suffered head injuries, and her daughter, Theo, 9, who suffered a fractured leg, were reported in "the same condition as yesterday with little change."

Vigorous Rally Marks End Of 1963 Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ended its career for 1963 with a vigorous rally, prices closing near the peaks of the day in heavy trading.

The market moved higher from the start reached its peak about mid-session, then weathered some profit taking.

Volume for the day was estimated at 6 million shares compared with 4.95 million yesterday.

Key stocks advanced from fractions to more than a point while some of the "glamour" issues ran up several points. IBM, up about 7, made a new high for the year. So did Corning Glass, up 9, Pennzoil, up more than 3, and Dymo Industries, up more than 2.

Airlines, helped by forecasts of greater traffic in 1964, were fairly strong. Pan American, United and Eastern were among those gaining about a point.

Chrysler, up more than a point, and General Motors, ahead about a point, pased the motors.

Prices moved higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Government and corporate bond prices were mixed in moderately active trading.

RATES

In San Rafael, a home owner with a $10,000 fire and extended coverage policy will pay $9.20 more for a three-year policy. The policy now costs $40.50. Under the new plan it will go to $49.70 for three years.

As an example of the premium reduction possible in San Rafael, the owner of a home insured for $25,000, now paying $101.25 for three years, would pay $5.40 less or $95.85.

Next to San Anselmo, San Rafael has one of the lowest rates in the county. Rates in other Marin cities are higher and in rural areas, far from fire fighting equipment, the rates are higher still.

PATROLS

Acting Police Chief Robert Di Grazia reported Novato will have six men on patrol—three regular officers and three reserve officers.

Hamilton Air Force Base also will increase its police force.

In Sausalito, four additional men and possibly more will be on police duty, according to Sgt. Cooper, acting police chief.

Dan Terzich, Mill Valley police chief, reported he would put on extra personnel for the night. There will be an extra man on duty in Larkspur.

Fairfax Police Chief James Orr said there will be "a couple of extras, reserves" on duty. Police Chief William S. Woodington of Belvedere said there will be no extra men on duty.

In Corte Madera, there will be only the regular man on duty, according to Police Chief Frank L. Nelson.

PUBLIC

building and related plans is: $180,000 for construction of the building including demolition of the town annex and site work, $34,000 for the property at Tamalpais Drive and Pixley Avenue, $14,000 for architects' fees, $1,500 for landscaping, $15,000 to remodel the present fire and police station into city offices, and $20,000 to furnish the building.

Colthurst suggested a temporary fire station on Paradise Drive could be rebuilt for about $30,000.

Town Mgr. Arthur H. Brandow said the money to remodel the fire and police station and furnish the new public safety building could come out of current revenues. There would be a cutback in other capital outlay projects, he said.

Brandow suggested present furnishings could be used in the new building. He also said there is $44,000 in a site acquisition fund.

The council instructed architect Eugene Crawford to have more refined plans and cost estimates ready for the Feb. 3 council meeting. Included will be alternates for leaving the upstairs firemen's dormitory and police conference rooms unfinished.

Deadline for putting the measure on the ballot is Feb. 28.

Crawford said merely enclosing the police conference room and firemen's dormitory would reduce the cost of those rooms 25 per cent. He explained that the design of the two-story building was kept low so as not to dominate the site. The exterior could be constructed of brick, he said.

Objections were raised, but later dropped by councilmen, to a police squad room, a repair shop, fire department recreation room, and a reception area.

BUILDING

penalty and abandon the building, presumably for the sake of administrative efficiency, to split up the department, thus separating functions, or to add to the present building.

Aside from these present and pressing problems, many offbeat ideas are being kicked around.

There is, for instance, the recurrent proposal for a "City and County of Marin." If such a consolidation should ever come about, large amounts of space would have to be found, and quickly.

Also, the board of supervisors again has asked for establishment of a Marin County Transit District, but little thought has been given to needs for adiministrative offices for it.

Officials in the county schools office have made large estimates of future space needs, according to Bruce, but their needs are closely controlled by what happens in terms of school district unification in the next few years. District unifications might decrease county-level jobs, but on the other hand, if a countywide school district were established, the office might blossom out into something so large it would need several buildings of its own.

Urban renewal may become a county problem some day, and mental health is virtually certain to do so before June. These functions would need space.

Present proposals for parks and recreation, now squeezed into what was a meeting room because earlier plans had not thought of it, are to eventually move the offices to the county fairgrounds site, and to make the recreation director responsible, perhaps, for the fair too.

Then there are the special interests. Mental health is one example, but another which has been below the surface so far has been a suggestion by the Marin County Bar Assn. for a publicly supported legal aid office, presumably housed near the courts.

In addition to all this guesswork, the architects have faced a different problem: Not all governmental functions can be conveniently squeezed into the mold of the Wright-designed building.

Here, the architects have been trying out their ingenuity. Why, for instance, do ceilings of courtrooms have to be high? And why does the judge have to sit at center stage?

Some other courtrooms built recently have departed from the norm. The most radical change, according to Green, is a new courthouse in Oregon with courtrooms in the round.

BELLE CRANE

A San Rafael woman, Mrs. Belle M. Crane, 77, was found dead early today by her husband who entered her bedroom to say goodbye on his last day before retirement from San Quentin Prison employment.

Sidney Sterling Crane, 67, of 460 Canal Street, told the Marin County coroner's office he awakened in his own bedroom, prepared his breakfast, then entered his wife's room about 7:30 a.m. for the customary day's farewell.

The coroner's office said she had died about 3 a.m., apparently from a heart attack. She had been in ill health for a long period, but the couple had enthusiastic traveling plans for his retirement, Crane said.

Crane, supervising cook at San Quentin since 1950, had been with the California Youth Authority prior to that. Today marked his voluntary retirement after 22 years service. He and his wife had planned to go to Mexico early in the spring, then to Madison, Wis., where his wife was born.

They both loved fishing, he said, and expected to later roam the U.S. in a combination of sporting and visiting relatives.

Mrs. Crane came to California 40 years ago and to Marin County in 1949.

She is also survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mercy Zopfi of Soda Springs, Nevada County; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Katherine Shipley of Modesto; a stepson, Alfred Crane of Redwood City; and three sisters, Mrs. Gladys Bathum of Sacramento, Mrs. Jennie Thomas of Clio, Plumas County, and Mrs. Mamie Frater of Santa Cruz.

Funeral will be in Sacramento. Harry M. Williams Mortuary is in charge of local arrangements.

IT DEPENDS ON DEALER

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The price paid for a stock on the huge over-the-counter market—OTC—can vary in several ways.

A dealer may pay a wholesale price for it, while the public pays a retail price, which is the wholesale price plus some additions. And these can be figured more than one way.

If your broker acts as an agent, he buys the stock for you at the best wholesale price he can get at the time by phoning around to other dealers and consulting a wholesale listing he gets every morning. Then he adds on a commission, and this also can vary among brokers.

If your broker acts as a principal, he presumably carries active OTC stocks in inventory and sells you one plus a markup as he determines.

The National Assn. of Securities Dealers, Inc. — NASD — set up by Congress in 1939 to regulate its more than 4,000 member dealers operating in the OTC, keeps an eye in a general way on both the commissions and the markups charged and also on publishing of OTC reail price ranges for the guidance to the public.

The OTC is much larger both in number of issues available for trading and in volume of sales, than the nation's formal stock exchanges where only listed stocks can be bought and sold and where listing is subject to strict rules.

But some of the large brokerage firms charge commissions for OTC trading comparable to those prescribed by the nation's formal stock exchanges. Others may charge commissions that range higher than this, especially for the lower-priced stocks, of which there are an abundance among the OTC's some 40,000 issues available, nationally or regionally, for purchase by the public.

A Securities and Exchange Commission study group reported this year on many phases of the securities market noted of the OTC: "Principal markups ordinarily run higher than agency commissions and they are even higher in so called riskless transactions which constitute a substantial proportion of retail transactions."

A deal is dubbed riskless when a dealer sells as a principal to his customer — charging the wholesale price plus his particular markup — but at the same time buys similar shares in the wholesale market. Thus he avoids the risk of actually carrying a large inventory, although he appears to be selling from such an inventory and acting as a principal for profit.

Brokers can get wholesale price lists from a private organization, the National Quotation Bureau. It collects most of the quotations by telephone as dealers report at what prices they'll buy or sell specified issues — known as bid and asked.

The NASD says that most of its dealer members are ethical and abide by its standards for a fair markup or commission.

It also says it's only fair to the smaller dealers that the wholesale, or insider, bid and asked list be kept private, while the retail price list is made public. The argument: the small dealer couldn't afford the lower markup a big firm might charge and such publicity could force the smaller ones to the wall.

Critics of the NASD system contend that the public should know at what price an issue actually was traded.

The argument could reach Congress if it takes up recommendations for new regulations for the securities markets in general.

He was admitted to San Rafael General Hospital for observation, but attendents said he suffered no broken bones.

Police said Kivley was atop a pole on Windsor Avenue near Chestnut Drive when he slipped and fell about 1:15 p.m. He first struck the street light arm, breaking the plunge before striking the concrete pavement, officers said.

Children Saved On Steep Hill

Firemen Theodore Berrum and Irvin Wilson attached a rope at the top of the hill and led the children down.

Fire Chief George Bartram said the children "were more scared than anything else." Firemen did not get the names and addresses of the children, who said they were moving from Corte Madera last night.

Family Hurt In Crash In Fair Condition

Two members of a Sausalito family, injured in a head-on auto crash south of San Jose Saturday, were reported in fair condition today at San Jose Hospital.

Mrs. William A. Austin, 42, of 26 Crecienta Drive, who suffered head injuries, and her daughter, Theo, 9, who suffered a fractured leg, were reported in "the same condition as yesterday with little change."

Vigorous Rally Marks End Of 1963 Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ended its career for 1963 with a vigorous rally, prices closing near the peaks of the day in heavy trading.

The market moved higher from the start reached its peak about mid-session, then weathered some profit taking.

Volume for the day was estimated at 6 million shares compared with 4.95 million yesterday.

Key stocks advanced from fractions to more than a point while some of the "glamour" issues ran up several points. IBM, up about 7, made a new high for the year. So did Corning Glass, up 9, Pennzoil, up more than 3, and Dymo Industries, up more than 2.

Airlines, helped by forecasts of greater traffic in 1964, were fairly strong. Pan American, United and Eastern were among those gaining about a point.

Chrysler, up more than a point, and General Motors, ahead about a point, pased the motors.

Prices moved higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Government and corporate bond prices were mixed in moderately active trading.

RATES

figures on the change.

In San Rafael, a home owner with a $10,000 fire and extended coverage policy will pay $9.20 more for a three-year policy. The policy now costs $40.50. Under the new plan it will go to $49.70 for three years.

As an example of the premium reduction possible in San Rafael, the owner of a home insured for $25,000, now paying $101.25 for three years, would pay $5.40 less or $95.85.

Next to San Anselmo, San Rafael has one of the lowest rates in the county. Rates in other Marin cities are higher and in rural areas, far from fire fighting equipment, the rates are higher still.

PATROLS

additional patrolment on duty.

Acting Police Chief Robert Di Grazia reported Novato will have six men on patrol—three regular officers and three reserve officers.

Hamilton Air Force Base also will increase its police force.

In Sausalito, four additional men and possibly more will be on police duty, according to Sgt. Cooper, acting police chief.

Dan Terzich, Mill Valley police chief, reported he would put on extra personnel for the night. There will be an extra man on duty in Larkspur.

Fairfax Police Chief James Orr said there will be "a couple of extras, reserves" on duty. Police Chief William S. Woodington of Belvedere said there will be no extra men on duty.

In Corte Madera, there will be only the regular man on duty, according to Police Chief Frank L. Nelson.

PUBLIC

building and related plans is: $180,000 for construction of the building including demolition of the town annex and site work, $34,000 for the property at Tamalpais Drive and Pixley Avenue, $14,000 for architects' fees, $1,500 for landscaping, $15,000 to remodel the present fire and police station into city offices, and $20,000 to furnish the building.

Colthurst suggested a temporary fire station on Paradise Drive could be rebuilt for about $30,000.

Town Mgr. Arthur H. Brandow said the money to remodel the fire and police station and furnish the new public safety building could come out of current revenues. There would be a cutback in other capital outlay projects, he said.

Brandow suggested present furnishings could be used in the new building. He also said there is $44,000 in a site acquisition fund.

The council instructed architect Eugene Crawford to have more refined plans and cost estimates ready for the Feb. 3 council meeting. Included will be alternates for leaving the upstairs firemen's dormitory and police conference rooms unfinished.

Deadline for putting the measure on the ballot is Feb. 28.

Crawford said merely enclosing the police conference room and firemen's dormitory would reduce the cost of those rooms 25 per cent. He explained that the design of the two-story building was kept low so as not to dominate the site. The exterior could be constructed of brick, he said.

Objections were raised, but later dropped by councilmen, to a police squad room, a repair shop, fire department recreation room, and a reception area.

penalty and abandon the building, presumably for the sake of administrative efficiency, to split up the department, thus separating functions, or to add to the present building.

Aside from these present and pressing problems, many offbeat ideas are being kicked around.

There is, for instance, the recurrent proposal for a "City and County of Marin." If such a consolidation should ever come about, large amounts of space would have to be found, and quickly.

Also, the board of supervisors again has asked for establishment of a Marin County Transit District, but little thought has been given to needs for administrative offices for it.

Officials in the county schools office have made large estimates of future space needs, according to Bruce, but their needs are closely controlled by what happens in terms of school district unification in the next few years. District unifications might decrease county-level jobs, but on the other hand, if a countywide school district were established, the office might blossom out into something so large it would need several buildings of its own.

Urban renewal may become a county problem some day, and mental health is virtually certain to do so before June. These functions would need space.

Present proposals for parks and recreation, now squeezed into what was a meeting room because earlier plans had not thought of it, are to eventually move the offices to the county fairgrounds site, and to make the recreation director responsible, perhaps, for the fair too.

Then there are the special interests. Mental health is one example, but another which has been below the surface so far has been a suggestion by the Marin County Bar Assn. for a publicly supported legal aid office, presumably housed near the courts.

In addition to all this guesswork, the architects have faced a different problem: Not all governmental functions can be conveniently squeezed into the mold of the Wright-designed building.

Here, the architects have been trying out their ingenuity. Why, for instance, do ceilings of courtrooms have to be high? And why does the judge have to sit at center stage?

Some other courtrooms built recently have departed from the norm. The most radical change, according to Green, is a new courthouse in Oregon with courtrooms in the round.

BEHR

Behr has lived in Mill Valley since 1949 with his wife and three children. He was on the Mill Valley Planning Commission for two and one-half years, then served as city councilman from 1956 to 1960.

He served as president of the Mill Valley Commuters Club and as member of the advisory commitee of the Point Reyes National Seashore Foundation.

During World War II, he served in the Navy for four years.

BELLE CRANE

A San Rafael woman, Mrs. Belle M. Crane, 77, was found dead early today by her husband who entered her bedroom to say goodbye on his last day before retirement from San Quentin Prison employment.

Sidney Sterling Crane, 67, of 460 Canal Street, told the Marin County coroner's office he awakened in his own bedroom, prepared his breakfast, then entered his wife's room about 7:30 a.m. for the customary day's farewell.

The coroner's office said she had died about 3 a.m., apparently from a heart attack. She had been in ill health for a long period, but the couple had enthusiastic traveling plans for his retirement, Crane said.

Crane, supervising cook at San Quentin since 1950, had been with the California Youth Authority prior to that. Today marked his voluntary retirement after 22 years service. He and his wife had planned to go to Mexico early in the spring, then to Madison, Wis., where his wife was born.

They both loved fishing, he said, and expected to later roam the U.S. in a combination of sporting and visiting relatives.

Mrs. Crane came to California 40 years ago and to Marin County in 1949.

She is also survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mercy Zopfi of Soda Springs, Nevada County; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Katherine Shipley of Modesto; a stepson, Alfred Crane of Redwood City; and three sisters, Mrs. Gladys Bathum of Sacramento, Mrs. Jennie Thomas of Clio, Plumas County, and Mrs. Mamie Frater of Santa Cruz.

Funeral will be in Sacramento. Harry M. Williams Mortuary is in charge of local arrangements.

MARY TRACY

Mrs. Mary E. Tracy of Portland, Ore., who had been visiting a friend in San Rafael, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness at the age of 76.

Mrs. Tracy, widow of Roger S. Tracy, had been visiting Miss Lucy E. Cook of 45 Fairway Drive when she became ill.

She was a native of the state of Washington, a member of the Wellesley College alumni and the Portland Art Museum.

Surviving are a son, Roger S. Tracy Jr. of Portland, Ore.; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Garland of Maine; a brother, William Atkinson of Groton, Conn.; a sister, Dr. Dorothy Atkinson, of Windsor, Sonoma County, and six grandchildren.

Private funeral was held at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Cremation will be at Portland, Ore.

LOUISE KEHOE

Mrs. Louise C. Kehoe, 76, of 9 Chanticleer Avenue, Larkspur, a retired bakery shop operator, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital after a six-week illness.

A native of Carlisle, Pa., Mrs. Kehoe moved to California in 1920 and was in the bakery business in San Francisco for 20 years before moving to Larkspur. She was a member of the Larkspur Senior Citizens.

Mrs. Kehoe had no known survivor. She was a widow of many years and her only son, Thomas, died in an auto crash in 1946.

Funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in St. Dominic's Cemetery, Benicia.

Rosary will be recited at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary.

MISS TICHBORNE

Miss Frances Tichborne, 85, visiting a niece, Mrs. Diane Gluck, 135 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael, died yesterday in a San Rafael hospital after a short illness.

Hopps Is Sued For $188,117 In Back Taxes

Insurance tycoon Stewart B. Hopps, 63, of Miami, formerly of Belvedere, loomed once more into public eye as the year came to a close. The U.S. government yesterday sued him for $118,117 in back taxes and about $50,000 in interest.

The action was not prompted by the holiday spirit on Uncle Sam's part. It was just that the statute of limitations would have allowed the government claim to run out next year.

The suit was filed in U. S. District Court in San Francisco. It named both Hopps and William J. Butler, an Internal Revenue Service Official, acting as administrator for the estate of the late Mrs. Hopps.

Hopps has been in and out of law offices and court rooms all year. In February a Baltimore jury found him guilty of two counts of mail fraud. He was fined $1,000 and sentenced to six months in jail. However, an appeal has delayed sentence.

A New York indictment against him charges that he evaded 1.5 million dollars in federal income tax. This suit relates to tax years other than those listed in the civil suit filed yesterday.

Hopps' former Belvedere home was acquired by J. W. Ehrlich, Hopps' attorney, and reportedly is now owned by Eugene Clifford. It has been rented to Percis Brown, who died there shortly before Christmas.

Highlander Pipes A Lament: Can't Brawl When In Kilts

That's what bagpiper Ira Oliver Harrison Jr. told Marin Municipal Court Judge Leonard A. Thomas yesterday, explaining his actions last Dec. 14 outside Pipers Cove, a new Tiburon bar.

After a preliminary hearing, Judge Thomas ordered Harrison to answer in superior court a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Harrison, 38, of San Francisco, was arrested for allegedly using a jeweled dirk in an attack on San Francisco advertising man Roger W. Kittinger, 33.

Kittinger started the whole thing, Harrison testified at the hearing, by his unseemingly behavior in the bar, where Harrison, of Scottish descent, was all set to play the pipes. Kittinger and two other men were "throwing darts around with complete disregard for people's safety," Harrison said.

When Kittinger and his friends left, the bartender asked Harrison to follow them out and "keep an eye on 'em" in case of more trouble, the bagpiper said.

"I didn't want to stay out there all night. I wanted to go back and play the pipes," Harrison told the court. "So I grabbed Kittinger by the shirt, and told them all to get the hell out of town." Then, he said, Kittenger began to pummel him, knocking his head against a streetlamp.

"I was wearing one of my better uniforms," Harrison said. "I was wearing my kilts regimental style, meaning I had nothing on underneath, and I thought it would be somewhat improper to roll around in the dirt. So I didn't want to fight back."

Instead, Harrison said, he "hauled out" his dirk from its leather scabbard. "It was so big and so wicked-looking that I thought if I just waved it like a magic wand, they'd all disappear."

Kittenger grabbed or swung at the dirk, cutting his fingers.

The dirk, with a 10-inch blade and jeweled handle, was entered into evidence. Harrison said it's worth about $500 and is from the Gordon Highlanders. Inscribed on its handle is "Egypt — '96," referring to the founding of the Scottish regiment in 1796.

Because of its value, Harrison said, he hid the dirk with a friend after the Tiburon scuffle. He turned over a smaller dirk to sheriff's deputies but said he told them it was not the one used in the alleged fight.

William O. Weissich, Harrison's attorney, said the big dirk was "not produced till today on my advice, and Mr. Harrison wants to be sure he gets it back."

Judge Thomas ordered Harrison to appear in superior court Jan. 6 at 10 a.m. to answer the assault charge. Harrison is free on $1,000 bail.

JAPANESE WANT BAY TRANSIT JOB

Men Who Designed 150 Mile-Per-Hour Train Plan To Enter Bidding For Projected System

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese want to hang "Made in Japan" signs on the high-speed trains that will link the California cities of San Francisco and Oakland sometime in 1969.

The men who designed Japan's 150-mile-an-hour Tokaido express train plan to enter a bid to build the rolling stock for the San Francisco Bay Area's projected transit system.

The fact that the odds are against them doesn't bother the Japanese at all. They figure that America's major cities will spend something like 100 billion dollars during the next 10 years to develop rapid transit systems, and they're out for a cut of the business.

Reports in Tokyo indicate that the Bay Area System will cost about a billion dollars, with 200 million dollars to be spent on air-conditioned aluminum cars.

Though the Japanese figure that "Buy American" policies will work against them in California, they feel that bidding on the San Francisco job will be an important exercise in learning the ground in the United States.

They are looking beyond San Francisco to other rapid transit developments now on the drawing boards in New York, Chicago, Cleveland and St. Louis.

Members of the Japanese combine will include three major electrical companies, Toshiba, Mitsubishi and Fuji. The Kawasaki and Japan rail coach companies also are joining the combine, long with the Mitsubishi nd Mitsui trading companies.

They are asking the Japanese government to run as much interference for them as it can to combat "Buy American" strictures in areas where rapid transit jobs will be up for bid.

The Japanese train makers figure that in areas where the decisions are purely economic, they may be alble to score by offering lower bids than American and European rolling stock makers can afford.

Japan has been a pioneer in post war train development.

Japan's overseas sales of rolling stock have risen steadily since the war, reaching a peak of 74 million dollars in 1961. They fell to 43.5 million dollars in 1962.

Marijuana Ring Smashed In Berkeley

BERKELEY (UPI)—Three men and teen-age University of California coed were in jail today following the smashing of a marijuana sales ring.

Police said 18-year-old blonde coed Cheryl Kolander and her boyfriend, Ames P. Karas, 21, operated the ring which was broken up Sunday by state and federal narcotics agents and Berkeley police. Both Miss Kolander and Karas gave their address as 1824 Hearst Avenue, Berkeley.

Two other men, Daniel C. Seward, 23, and Lincoln Taiz, 21, both of Berkeley, were involved in narcotics sales, agents said.

State narcotics agent Jerry Van Ramm said the arrests were made when he and another agent each made a $25 purchase of marijuana from Miss Kolander and Karas.

About $5,000 worth of marijuana was found in an attic above the bathroom of Miss Kolander's apartment and two marijuana plants were found in her kitchen, Van Ramm said.

Karas was charged yesterday with possession for sale and cultivation of marijuana and with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Miss Kolander was charged with possession for sale and cultivation. Her bail was set at $15,000 and Karas' at $17,500.

Bail for Seward, on a charge of possession for sale, was set at $5,000 Talz was charged with simple possession and his bail was set at $3,300.

Blood Circulation Finding Announced

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) — In 1963 experimental science produced sound reasons for believing blood circulation can be stopped for much longer than is now thought possible.

It bodes well for the future of desperation surgery involving the brain. That sovereign organ and all other nerve tissues are especially sensitive to any halt in blood flow.

Dr. George Smith, a Scottish surgical scientist, demonstrated in dogs that blood circulation can be halted for 30 minutes without harming them. Thirty minutes would be ample time for brain surgery which now is impossible.

Brain and other nerve cells are exquisitely dependent upon a constant supply of oxygen. They get their oxygen from the circulating blood. So do all other cells but nerve cells never recover from oxygen starvation.

Smith and his Glasgow colleagues achieved their startling experimental results by combining two proved principles. When body temperatures are lowered, body cells require less oxygen. When oxygen is pressurized, tissues liquify some of it and store it.

Their experiments were divided into a number of parts. In one the experimental animals overbreathed ordinary air at its normal pressure of one "atmosphere," that is 14.7 pounds per square inch at sea level. Then their circulation was stopped. The safe period it could remain stopped was 4 minutes.

When they overbreathed pure oxygen at one atmosphere of pressure, the safe stoppage time was raised 1 minute, to 5. When oxygen pressure was doubled to 2 atmosphere, the stoppage time was increased to 8 minutes. This showed that the higher oxygen "tension" the more was stored for use while no blood flowed.

Next the scientists cooled the animals down to a temperature of 80.3 degrees (F) which is considered mild "hypothermia" for man or beast. Under this condition the safe stoppage time was 20 minutes for oxygen pressurized at one atmosphere and 30 minutes for two atmospheres.

Smith is a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons and he has had American recognition in a fellowship in the American college. He and his associates reported their results to the latter's technical journal.

Their measurements of lack of brain damage in their animals were exacting. They included observations of behavior for days after blood circulation was restored, plus chemical and microscopic tests.

"The benefits of an operating room in which the environmental pressure could be increased to two or three atmospheres would seem to be particularly useful where circulatory arrest or artificial circulation would be beneficial," they said.

Three such rooms, called "hyperbaric chambers," now exist in the United States and a fourth, at New York's Mount Sinai Hospital, will be ready early in 1964. They're used now to revive victims of carbon monoxide and barbiturates poisoning, to enhance the killing power of X-rays in cancer cells and to ease persons with impaired circulation through surgery.

First Baby Of Year Will Get Many Gifts

The people at radio station KTIM were playing their own version of "I Found A New Baby" today—checking with Marin hospitals for a line on what new infants are expected to arrive in the county tomorrow, New Year's Day.

For the 10th year, said manager Hugh Turner, the first baby born in the county will be showered with gifts — this time from a score of merchants. Turner declined to put a dollar value on the gifts, saying, "Our real purpose is to celebrate the growth of Marin's population."

He acknowledged, however, that the first New Year's baby will receive a crib, clothes, diaper service, photographs, dinners, cash and automotive service (which latter mostly will benefit the parents, natch).

Th first baby born in Marin in 1963 will be announced on the "Man in the Street" program at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow by news editor Karl Barron, said Turner. "Barron will interview the parents by phone and announce the gifts for the baby."

Around 10 a.m. tomorrow the station will check Marin General, Novato and Hamilton Air Force Base hospitals, said Turner. The earliest birth reported by one of the hospitals will be lucky baby.

What if two babies are a tie?

"This is something we never have come up with," replied Turner.

Wisconsin Chief Backs Johnson

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. John W. Reynolds has announced the formation of a Wisconsin-for-Johnson Committee, and called it the first voluntary state organization in the nation pledged to support President Lyndon B. Johnson in next year's campaign.

The Democratic governor is chairman of the 16-member group which includes the state's entire Democratic congressional delegation and three Wisconsin men holding appointive posts in Washington.

Postmaster General John Gronouski, Wisconsin's former tax commissioner, heads the list of appointed Washington officials on the committee.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Burt Lancaster's wife and two of their neighbors in the wealthy Bel-Air district were robbed of more than $12,000 in valuables, police said today.

Film producer Edward Lewis and his wife told officers yesterday that $11,300 worth of jewels, furs and other valuables were taken from their home while they vacationed. They returned home Sunday.

Mrs. Lancaster said a $200 charm bracelet, $100 wedding ring and $50 in cash were stolen. Lawyer Lewis E. Lyon said someone took $385 from his wallet while he slept.

Psychotic Report In Note Threat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robert Beaty Fennell, 29, of Sioux City, Iowa, who was arrested 11 days ago with a note in his possession threatening the life of President Lyndon B. Johnson, yesterday was ordered turned over to the state for commitment to a mental institution.

Federal Judge Oliver J. Carter issued the order after receiving a psychiatric report which showed Fennell to be psychotic, or mentally deranged.

Fennell, who spent four months in an Iowa state mental institution in 1959, will be transferred from county jail to San Francisco General Hospital for commencement of commitment proceedings.

U. S. Atty. Cecil Poole said that if Fennell is committed, a criminal complaint against him will be dropped.

After School Rec Program To Start In Novato

An after school recreation program has been scheduled from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, at the Marion School multi-use room in Novato, starting next Monday.

The program, under direction of Mrs. Sara Soares, will be open to all elementary school children from the second grade upward. Permission forms for parents to sign will be available during the first week of the program, according to Edmund Mahany, parks and recreation director.

This is the first after-school recreation program started under joint sponsorship of the Novato Unified School District and the city parks and recreation department.

Students From Mexico Departing

Eleven young teachers and students from Mexico will say "adios" to the Marin hosts tonight before they depart tomorrow for British Columbia for a month of study under the Experiment in International Living program.

The visitors are giving the farewell party at the R. W. Hobart home in Kentfield. The group arrived in Marin Dec. 14 from Los Angeles. The holiday stop-over in Marin was under direction of Mrs. Albert P. Clark of Larkspur, community chairman.

Tonight's party will combine farewells with wishes for a happy new year. Or, as they say in Mexico, "feliz ano nuevo."

House Entered, Nothing Missing

Dr. D. A. Collins returned to his Mill Valley home at 700 Summit Avenue at 2:15 a.m. Saturday to find that someone had broken in and left a flashlight burning under his Christmas tree, police said today.

Entry was made by prying open doors on a wood bin which lead to the living room. Nothing was reported missing.

Non-Citizens Reminded They Must Register

WASHINGTON (UPI)—All aliens living in the United States must register their addresses with the postoffice or the nearest immigration and naturalization service field office during the month of January, the Justice Department reminded today.

The 1952 provision requires all non-citizens to file such a report in January, exempting only those accredited to international organizations, those working as agriculture laborers, and diplomatic personnel.

SALUTE TO 1964!

Tonight comes the moment... "between years", when we may resolve that next year we will really do some of the things we never quite got around to last year.

As Benjamin Franklin said "Spend one cent less every day than thy clear gains. Then shall thy pockets soon begin to thrive... the whole hemisphere will shine brighter and pleasure spark up in every corner of thy heart".

We concur. The family with the habit of saving money seldom finds itself in a financial jam. Regular savings provide the basis of a loan when you want it for sending bright children to college, for meeting unexpected crises and (our specialty) for buying or building a home.

Highlander Pipes A Lament: Can't Brawl When In Kilts

That's what bagpiper Ira Oliver Harrison Jr. told Marin Municipal Court Judge Leonard A. Thomas yesterday, explaining his actions last Dec. 14 outside Pipers Cove, a new Tiburon bar.

After a preliminary hearing, Judge Thomas ordered Harrison to answer in superior court a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Harrison, 38, of San Francisco, was arrested for allegedly using a jeweled dirk in an attack on San Francisco advertising man Roger W. Kittinger, 33.

William O. Weissich, Harrison's attorney, said the big dirk was "not produced till today on my advice, and Mr. Harrison wants to be sure he gets it back."

Judge Thomas ordered Harrison to appear in superior court Jan. 6 at 10 a.m. to answer the assault charge. Harrison is free on $1,000 bail.

JAPANESE WANT BAY TRANSIT JOB

Men Who Designed 150 Mile-Per-Hour Train Plan To Enter Bidding For Projected System

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese want to hang "Made in Japan" signs on the high-speed trains that will link the California cities of San Francisco and Oakland sometime in 1969.

The men who designed Japan's 150-mile-an-hour Tokaido express train plan to enter a bid to build the rolling stock for the San Francisco Bay Area's projected transit system.

The fact that the odds are against them doesn't bother the Japanese at all. They figure that America's major cities will spend something like 100 billion dollars during the next 10 years to develop rapid transit systems, and they're out for a cut of the business.

Reports in Tokyo indicate that the Bay Area System will cost about a billion dollars, with 200 million dollars to be spent on air-conditioned aluminum cars.

Though the Japanese figure that "Buy American" policies will work against them in California, they feel that bidding on the San Francisco job will be an important exercise in learning the ground in the United States.

They are looking beyond San Francisco to other rapid transit developments now on the drawing boards in New York, Chicago, Cleveland and St. Louis.

Members of the Japanese combine will include three major electrical companies, Toshiba, Mitsubishi and Fuji. The Kawasaki and Japan rail coach companies also are joining the combine, long with the Mitsubishi nd Mitsui trading companies.

They are asking the Japanese government to run as much interference for them as it can to combat "Buy American" strictures in areas where rapid transit jobs will be up for bid.

The Japanese train makers figure that in areas where the decisions are purely economic, they may be alble to score by offering lower bids than American and European rolling stock makers can afford.

Japan has been a pioneer in post war train development.

Japan's overseas sales of rolling stock have risen steadily since the war, reaching a peak of 74 million dollars in 1961. They fell to 43.5 million dollars in 1962.

Marijuana Ring Smashed In Berkeley

BERKELEY (UPI)—Three men and teen-age University of California coed were in jail today following the smashing of a marijuana sales ring.

Police said 18-year-old blonde coed Cheryl Kolander and her boyfriend, Ames P. Karas, 21, operated the ring which was broken up Sunday by state and federal narcotics agents and Berkeley police. Both Miss Kolander and Karas gave their address as 1824 Hearst Avenue, Berkeley.

Two other men, Daniel C. Seward, 23, and Lincoln Taiz, 21, both of Berkeley, were involved in narcotics sales, agents said.

State narcotics agent Jerry Van Ramm said the arrests were made when he and another agent each made a $25 purchase of marijuana from Miss Kolander and Karas.

About $5,000 worth of marijuana was found in an attic above the bathroom of Miss Kolander's apartment and two marijuana plants were found in her kitchen, Van Ramm said.

Karas was charged yesterday with possession for sale and cultivation of marijuana and with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Miss Kolander was charged with possession for sale and cultivation. Her bail was set at $15,000 and Karas' at $17,500.

Bail for Seward, on a charge of possession for sale, was set at $5,000 Talz was charged with simple possession and his bail was set at $3,300.

He was presented the second Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal for his "distinguished service" at corps headquarters during the past three years.

Habiger entered the Army in 1941 after graduation from St. Edward's University in Austin, Tex. Most of his Army career has been in finance, serving as inspector general for financial affairs, chief auditor, fiscal officer, accounting officer and budget officer.

He served in the Panama Canal Zone, 1946-48; the Far East Command, 1952-54, and in Turkey, 1958-60.

Habiger, his wife, Kathryn, and son, Frank, will continue to live at 632 Tanbark Terrace after retirement.

After School Rec Program To Start In Novato

An after school recreation program has been scheduled from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, at the Marion School multi-use room in Novato, starting next Monday.

The program, under direction of Mrs. Sara Soares, will be open to all elementary school children from the second grade upward. Permission forms for parents to sign will be available during the first week of the program, according to Edmund Mahany, parks and recreation director.

Blood Circulation Finding Announced

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) — In 1963 experimental science produced sound reasons for believing blood circulation can be stopped for much longer than is now thought possible.

It bodes well for the future of desperation surgery involving the brain. That sovereign organ and all other nerve tissues are especially sensitive to any halt in blood flow.

Dr. George Smith, a Scottish surgical scientist, demonstrated in dogs that blood circulation can be halted for 30 minutes without harming them. Thirty minutes would be ample time for brain surgery which now is impossible.

Brain and other nerve cells are exquisitely dependent upon a constant supply of oxygen. They get their oxygen from the circulating blood. So do all other cells but nerve cells never recover from oxygen starvation.

Smith and his Glasgow colleagues achieved their startling experimental results by combining two proved principles. When body temperatures are lowered, body cells require less oxygen. When oxygen is pressurized, tissues liquify some of it and store it.

Their experiments were divided into a number of parts. In one the experimental animals overbreathed ordinary air at its normal pressure of one "atmosphere," that is 14.7 pounds per square inch at sea level. Then their circulation was stopped. The safe period it could remain stopped was 4 minutes.

When they overbreathed pure oxygen at one atmosphere of pressure, the safe stoppage time was raised 1 minute, to 5. When oxygen pressure was doubled to 2 atmosphere, the stoppage time was increased to 8 minutes. This showed that the higher oxygen "tension" the more was stored for use while no blood flowed.

Next the scientists cooled the animals down to a temperature of 80.3 degrees (F) which is considered mild "hypothermia" for man or beast. Under this condition the safe stoppage time was 20 minutes for oxygen pressurized at one atmosphere and 30 minutes for two atmospheres.

Smith is a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons and he has had American recognition in a fellowship in the American college. He and his associates reported their results to the latter's technical journal.

Their measurements of lack of brain damage in their animals were exacting. They included observations of behavior for days after blood circulation was restored, plus chemical and microscopic tests.

"The benefits of an operating room in which the environmental pressure could be increased to two or three atmospheres would seem to be particularly useful where circulatory arrest or artificial circulation would be beneficial," they said.

Three such rooms, called "hyperbaric chambers," now exist in the United States and a fourth, at New York's Mount Sinai Hospital, will be ready early in 1964. They're used now to revive victims of carbon monoxide and barbiturates poisoning, to enhance the killing power of X-rays in cancer cells and to ease persons with impaired circulation through surgery.

First Baby Of Year Will Get Many Gifts

The people at radio station KTIM were playing their own version of "I Found A New Baby" today—checking with Marin hospitals for a line on what new infants are expected to arrive in the county tomorrow, New Year's Day.

For the 10th year, said manager Hugh Turner, the first baby born in the county will be showered with gifts — this time from a score of merchants. Turner declined to put a dollar value on the gifts, saying, "Our real purpose is to celebrate the growth of Marin's population."

He acknowledged, however, that the first New Year's baby will receive a crib, clothes, diaper service, photographs, dinners, cash and automotive service (which latter mostly will benefit the parents, natch).

Th first baby born in Marin in 1963 will be announced on the "Man in the Street" program at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow by news editor Karl Barron, said Turner. "Barron will interview the parents by phone and announce the gifts for the baby."

Around 10 a.m. tomorrow the station will check Marin General, Novato and Hamilton Air Force Base hospitals, said Turner. The earliest birth reported by one of the hospitals will be lucky baby.

What if two babies are a tie?

Wisconsin Chief Backs Johnson

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. John W. Reynolds has announced the formation of a Wisconsin-for-Johnson Committee, and called it the first voluntary state organization in the nation pledged to support President Lyndon B. Johnson in next year's campaign.

The Democratic governor is chairman of the 16-member group which includes the state's entire Democratic congressional delegation and three Wisconsin men holding appointive posts in Washington.

Postmaster General John Gronouski, Wisconsin's former tax commissioner, heads the list of appointed Washington officials on the committee.

Actor's Wife Theft Victim

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Burt Lancaster's wife and two of their neighbors in the wealthy Bel-Air district were robbed of more than $12,000 in valuables, police said today.

Film producer Edward Lewis and his wife told officers yesterday that $11,300 worth of jewels, furs and other valuables were taken from their home while they vacationed. They returned home Sunday.

Mrs. Lancaster said a $200 charm bracelet, $100 wedding ring and $50 in cash were stolen. Lawyer Lewis E. Lyon said someone took $385 from his wallet while he slept.

Psychotic Report In Note Threat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robert Beaty Fennell, 29, of Sioux City, Iowa, who was arrested 11 days ago with a note in his possession threatening the life of President Lyndon B. Johnson, yesterday was ordered turned over to the state for commitment to a mental institution.

Federal Judge Oliver J. Carter issued the order after receiving a psychiatric report which showed Fennell to be psychotic, or mentally deranged.

Fennell, who spent four months in an Iowa state mental institution in 1959, will be transferred from county jail to San Francisco General Hospital for commencement of commitment proceedings.

U. S. Atty. Cecil Poole said that if Fennell is committed, a criminal complaint against him will be dropped.

Students From Mexico Departing

Eleven young teachers and students from Mexico will say "adios" to the Marin hosts tonight before they depart tomorrow for British Columbia for a month of study under the Experiment in International Living program.

The visitors are giving the farewell party at the R. W. Hobart home in Kentfield. The group arrived in Marin Dec. 14 from Los Angeles. The holiday stop-over in Marin was under direction of Mrs. Albert P. Clark of Larkspur, community chairman.

Tonight's party will combine farewells with wishes for a happy new year. Or, as they say in Mexico, "feliz ano nuevo."

House Entered, Nothing Missing

Dr. D. A. Collins returned to his Mill Valley home at 700 Summit Avenue at 2:15 a.m. Saturday to find that someone had broken in and left a flashlight burning under his Christmas tree, police said today.

Entry was made by prying open doors on a wood bin which lead to the living room. Nothing was reported missing.

Non-Citizens Reminded They Must Register

WASHINGTON (UPI)—All aliens living in the United States must register their addresses with the postoffice or the nearest immigration and naturalization service field office during the month of January, the Justice Department reminded today.

The 1952 provision requires all non-citizens to file such a report in January, exempting only those accredited to international organizations, those working as agriculture laborers, and diplomatic personnel.

SALUTE TO 1964!

Tonight comes the moment.."between years", when we may resolve that next year we will really do some of the things we never quite got around to last year.

As Benjamin Franklin said "Spend one cent less every day than thy clear gains. Then shall thy pockets soon begin to thrive... the whole hemisphere will shine brighter and pleasure spark up in every corner of thy heart".

We concur. The family with the habit of saving money seldom finds itself in a financial jam. Regular savings provide the basis of a loan when you want it for sending bright children to college, for meeting unexpected crises and (our specialty) for buying or building a home.

Good luck in 1964

Illinois Favored Over Huskies In Rose Bowl

Washington Star Is Still Hobbled

By ALEX KAHN

PASADENA (UPI)—Illinois remained a steady, six-point favorite today to end Washington's string of victories in the Rose Bowl tomorrow and re-establish the Big Ten's dominance in the New Year's Day football classic.

The hard-grinding Illinois team frequently has been called unspectacular as it relied upon its defensive strength to force opponents into mistakes. But Coach Pete Elliott hinted that Illinois might open up the game with more of a razzle-dazzle offense.

Illinois piled up a record of seven victories, one loss and one tie in capturing the Big Ten championship. Washington carried a record of six wins and four losses into the Rose Bowl, poorest in the histroy of the game. The Huskies own a two-game Rose Bowl winning streak.

The game originally had been considered a battle of powerful fullbacks with Washington's Junior Coffey competing against the Illini's Jim Grabowski. But the injury-prone Coffey 10 days ago suffered a hairline fracture in one of the small bones of his left foot, behind the little toe.

Coffey still may see some action in the Rose Bowl but Coach Jim Owens said he was depending upon Charlie Browning and Mike Kublenski to carry the load at fullback.

Both Teams Boast Able Quarterbacks

Both teams have able quarterbacks and Washington was strengthened by the return to action of Bill Siler who missed all except the opening game of the season due to illness. As a result, Bill Douglas took over and developed into an excellent signal-caller.

The Illini alternate Mike Taliaferro and Fred Custardo at quarterbick where they have done more runing and ball-handling than passing. The speedsters for the Ilini are halfbacks Sam Price and Jim Warren.

The Huskies have a pair of capable halfbacks also in Ron Mdved and Dave Kopay and a scatback punt and kickoff return artist in Steve Bramwell.

The secret of Illinois' success, however, has been the strength of its line led by All-America center and linebacker Dick Butkus with Archie Sutton and Bill Minor joining him to give it heft and strength.

Illini To Stick With Winning Combo

Elliott is not tampering with the combination that won the Big Ten title and will start the backfield of Taliaferro, Grabowski, Price and Warren.

The line is made up of Butkus at center; Bill Paski and Mike Summer at ends; Sutton and Minor at Tackles and Wylie Fox and Ed Washington at guards.

Browing was given the starting fullback call by Owens with Medved and Kopay at halfback and Douglas at quarterback. The Washington line has Al Libke and Joe Mancuso at Ends; Jake Kupp and Mike Briggs at tackles; Rick Redman and Koll Hagen at guards and John Stupey at center.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2 p.m. PST and the game is being telecast nationally (NBC).

Huskies Proud Of Their Leprechauns

By HAL WOOD

PASADENA (UPI) — 'Tis the day of the leprechaun, Pete Elliott, so look out.

The No. 2 backfield unit is composed of quarterback Bill Siler, who stands 5-9 and weighs 172; halfback Steve Bramwell, 5-8 and 154; halfback Dick Wetterauer, 6 feet and 180; and the "big" fullback Mike Kuklenski, 5-9 and 173.

The Washington coaches are real proud of this outfit.

"This boy Bramwell isn't very big," said a Washington aide, "but when you talk about speed—well he doesn't have that, either, but he's fast."

But little Stevie is a football player. So good in fact that he has 281 minutes of playing time this year. Against the Air Force he ran a kick-off back 90 yards for a touchdown. Against Oregon State he took a punt and rambled 92 yards for a score.

He set up a touchdown against California with a 40-yard kick-off return and later scored the counter on a five-yard run. He caught six passes this season—which is quite a feat considering the fact that he was covered by men who towered a foot above him.

Siler has played only 21 minutes. But don't forget he started the season as the team's No. 1 quarterback. He had to give up when struck by illness — hepatitis. Now he's ready to ramble.

Wetterauer, only a sophomore, is a giant in this company. But he has played 182 minutes and is the fastest man of the foursome. He is outstanding on defense, too.

Kuklenski, who possibly rates as the world's smallest fullback in major league circles, has played only 32 minutes. How can a guy get into the game when Charlie Browning and Junior Coffee are playing on the same team with you? But he may see quite a bit of action if Coffee is not available to spell off Browning.

Among Washington fans, the belief is that if anybody breaks open the game, it will be Bramwell. He's that kind of a player.

He's been wrestled by 200-pounders; hog-tied by 250-pounders and stomped on by 270-pounders.

But, being a true leprechaun, he always comes back for more.

Wilt The Stilt Scoring Less, But Enjoying It More

NEW YORK (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain of San Francisco is scoring less, but he may be enjoying it more.

Scoring is down in general in the National Basketball Assn. this season, and Chamberlain's 34.3 average on 1,096 points in 32 games is a dip of about 15 points from last year.

But there's no question that Wilt The Stilt is No. 1. League statistics relased today show he's the only player in the NBA with a 30-point plus average.

Alumni Game At Drake Thursday

Former basketball stars of Drake High School will return to their alma mater Thursday night to participate in the San Anselmo School's annual alumni games.

A double-header will start at 7 o'clock with Drake's present Class B team meeting former lightweight hoopsters, followed by a Drake-Alumni varsity feature at approximately 8:30.

Admission to the games is free, said Coach Carl Brown. Friday night Drake treks to Sebastopol for an A-B double-header with Analy High.

Bowl Classics Tomorrow

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Navy's crusading Middies have been hit in their four-star backfield just two days before the showdown struggle with top-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl, one of four New Year's Day classics bringing together seven of the top eight college football teams in the country.

Pat Donnelly, the jarring fullback in the Navy backfield that includes All-America quarterback Roger Staubach, halfback Johnny Sai and flanker Ed Orr, stretched a hamstring muscle in his left leg during practice yesterday.

"He went down like a shot," said Coach Wayne Hardin. "He is going to start the game, but we won't know what he is going to be able to do until the game starts. If he can go, he'll go. If he can't we'll have to get along without him."

The injury was considered a severe blow to Navy's chance of defeating the Longhorns in a game Hardin admits the second-ranked Middies want to win more than any single game this season. That includes the Army game in which Donnelly scored all three touchdowns.

"Texas is even more important than Army," says Hardin. "Texas is the national champion. The polls are over and we can't change that. But if we could be lucky enough to win, I think everyone would concede that this game was for the national championship."

The Navy-Texas battle figures to be the headline attraction of the four-game New Year's Day program, with some 330,000 fans expected to be on hand to view the proceedings and the five All-Americans who will be on display.

THE TV LINEUP

Cotton Bowl at Dallas—Texas, 10-0 and ranked No. 1, vs. Navy, 9-1 and No. 2, 10:45 a.m., CBS.

Rose Bowl at Pasadena—Illinois, 7-1-1 and No. 3 vs. Washington, 6-4 and unranked, 1:45 p.m., NBC.

Orange Bowl at Miami—Auburn, 9-1 and No. 5, vs. Nebraska, 9-1 and No. 9, 10:45 a.m., ABC.

Sugar Bowl at New Orleans—Mississippi, 8-0-2 and No. 7, vs. Alabama, 8-2 and No. 8, 10:45 a.m., NBC.

As a preliminary to the climactic day of thes eason, Southern Methodist, 4-6, met Oregon, 7-3, in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Texas, today.

COTTON BOWL

The Texas-Navy game brings together the Middies' explosive offense, which revolves around the scrambling, often-annoying maneuvers of Staubach, and the Longhorns' ball-control offense and a strong defense anchored by All-America Scott Appleton.

Navy averaged 31.4 points a game and ranked sixth nationally in total offense, losing only to SMU 32-28. Texas defeated the Mustangs 17-12 in one of five games the Longhorns won by a touchdown or less en route to their sixth bowl game in seven years.

Tommy Ford and Duke Carlisle plus shoeless kicker Tony Crosby are Texas' main weapons in a rushing-oriented offense. The Longhorns gained 2,316 yards on the ground this season and only 730 passing.

ROSE BOWL

Illinois will, like Texas, base its main hopes against Washington in the Rose Bowl on a tough defense led by All-America center Dick Butkus. Mike Taliaferro is the quarterback and sophomore Jim Grabowski the big threat on the ground for the Illini.

The Huskies, meanwhile, likely will be forced to go without their standout fullback Junior Coffey, still limping on an ailing foot. Charlie Browning and Mike Kuklenski figure to take over as the main workhorse in the landbased attack.

ORANGE BOWL

Auburn and Nebraska each has an option threat, the Tigers in All-America Jimmy Sidle and the Cornhuskers in Dennis Claridge. The duel may decide the game, but the most important factor could turn out to be the weight advantage held by the Nebraska line, which includes All-America Bob Brown.

SUGAR BOWL

Steve Sloan, tapped to direct the Alabama attack in place of suspended Joe Namath, will carry the brunt of the offense for the Tide against Mississippi's talented quarterback duo of Perry Lee Dunn and Jim Weatherly.

SUN BOWL

Speedster John Roderick, who led SMU to its upset of Navy, is expected to be a problem for Oregon in the Sun Bowl. The Ducks are equally at home on the ground or in the air, with quarterback Bob Berry the chief threat.

Texans Put Nat'l Title On The Line

DALLAS (AP)—Darrel Royal's eyes flashed when he said it: "We aren't a bit afraid to put it on the line."

He was discussing the question of whether the national championship would be decided when his Texas football team plays Navy in the Cotton Bowl tomorrow.

Royal said his Longhorns already had received the trophies calling them national champions on the basis of 10 straight victories and that he didn't think once-beaten Navy, rated No. 2, could cause a return of the mementoes even if it won the Cotton Bowl game.

But one word led to another, and finally Royal said with some heat that he wouldn't be scared to put his title on the line.

Navy Coach Wayne Hardin and his players look upon the game as for the national championship although they admit that Texas already has been awarded it.

That, however, wouldn't cause the Middies to think anything else than that they had won the title. They would have beaten the champs.

But whether or not Navy thinks it is national champion and Texas doesn't, it has been the conversation piece as the two teams prepared for their meeting when 75,504 fans jam the big saucer to see the greatest attraction the Cotton Bowl has had in its 28 years.

Never before has the No. 1 and No. 2 teams met in this game and it has the fans on edge as much as the coaches and players.

Burke Another Wilson? If So, The 49er Problems Partially Solved

Jack Hanley

Vern Burke leaped high and with a twisting body turn made his ninth pass completion in the East-West game. Jack Christiansen and Bill Johnson, 49er coaches, looked at each other and smiled.

Someone sitting behind the coaches in the Kezar Stadium press box commented extravagantly: "He's another Billy Wilson." Neither Christiansen nor Johnson pretended they overheard.

If Burke, a '62 No. 5 future draft pick who signed his contract with the 49ers when he finished his collegiate career at Oregon State this season, is another Wilson, the problems of the 49ers already are partially solved.

Wilson was the greatest pass catcher in 49er history. When he retired in 1960 in his 10th NFL season, Wilson left a league mark of 407 receptions for 5902 yards and 49 touchdowns. That record, in nine and a fraction of a 10th season, was second only to Don Hutson's 489 catches and 8010 yards. And Hutson's top NFL record was established over 11 seasons.

BURKE DOES resemble Wilson in a lanky, lean way. He is 6-5 and 200. Wilson was 6-4 and 190. Wilson never "heard footsteps" as he leaped for a pass, knowing that as he came down with it he would be subjected to a merciless tackle, often a twin jolting by a pair of defensivemen. Burke similarly seems to have a total disregard for pursuing footsteps.

As good as he is, Burke still must prove himself worthy of the anonymous accolade bestowed on him when he made his ninth catch in the 39th East-West game.

CHRISTIANSEN WAS chief of Chris' Crew—the great Detroit defensive backfield—when Wilson was a 49er. And, in those days, Christiansen always said that the toughest man in the NFL to cover was Wilson. Emlen Tunnell, then the key man in New York's defensive backfield, used to say the same thing.

So it was understandable that Christiansen pretended not to hear the extravagant press box compliment paid Burke. No one could blame him, however, for wishing it were true.

Injuns May Lose Star For Opener

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — League action in both the West Coast Athletic Conference and Big Six begins this weekend with the University of San Francisco and UCLA still tagged the basketball outfits to beat.

Although they lost to Santa Barbara in the opening game of the WCAC tournament, the Dons of USF still are considered the power in their conference.

Stanford, a threat to the Uclans, suffered a blow when center Tom Dose injured his knee and became questionable for the Indians' openers against Southern California this weekend.

Dr. Fred Behling, Stanford team physician, said the 6-foot-8-inch Dose has a deep bruise. X-rays indicated no other damage.

Even without Dose, the Indians almost beat Arizona State at Tempe last night dropping a 61-57 lead with 1:09 left, but A-State scored two baskets, the last coming on a tip-in as the buzzer sounded.

The Indians took down 58 rebounds to 48 for the Sun Devils —an accomplishment without the services of Dose, a rebounding terror. Stanford now is 6-1.

Kent Hinckley paced the Indians with 20, while Clayton Raaka had 18. Dose's replacements, Craig Cordes and Ray Sanke, scored nine points. The Indians missed seven of 15 free throws.

Coach Stu Inman of San Jose State, whose club beat Santa Clara for the WCAC holiday tournament crown, said at the Northern California Basketball Writers' luncheon yesterday that he still tabs USF as the team to beat for the title. So did Santa Clara's Dick Garibaldi whose Broncos lost to San Jose 56-55.

Santa Clara's Russ Vrankovich, the 5-foot 11 playmaker, was voted the player-of-the-week by the writers. Earlier he had been named the outstanding player in the WCAC tournament.

In opening weekend play, the Broncos of Santa Clara play host to USF on Saturday night. The Dons' coach, Pete Peletta, appeared none too pleased to be put on the spot, and declared San Jose, Santa Clara, Loyola and University of the Pacific all had solid chances to take the title.

"A team you can't take lightly is Loyola," he said. "They didn't have a good tournament record, but they have a solid team and one that will be especially hard to beat on their home court.

In addition to USC at Stanford the Big Six slate Friday and Saturday nights finds UCLA at Washington State and California at Washington.

WCAC teams aren't active Friday but on Saturday, in addition to Santa Clara and USF, the schedule has Loyola vs. Pepperdine at Inglewood, San Jose at San Francisco State, and the University of San Diego at UC Santa Barbara.

Illinois Favored Over Huskies In Rose Bowl

Washington Star Is Still Hobbled

By ALEX KAHN

PASADENA (UPI)—Illinois remained a steady, six-point favorite today to end Washington's string of victories in the Rose Bowl tomorrow and re-establish the Big Ten's dominance in the New Year's Day football classic.

The hard-grinding Illinois team frequently has been called unspectacular as it relied upon its defensive strength to force opponents into mistakes. But Coach Pete Elliott hinted that Illinois might open up the game with more of a razzle-dazzle offense.

Illinois piled up a record of seven victories, one loss and one tie in capturing the Big Ten championship. Washington carried a record of six wins and four losses into the Rose Bowl, poorest in the histroy of the game. The Huskies own a two-game Rose Bowl winning streak.

The game originally had been considered a battle of powerful fullbacks with Washington's Junior Coffey competing against the Illini's Jim Grabowski. But the injury-prone Coffey 10 days ago suffered a hairline fracture in one of the small bones of his left foot, behind the little toe.

Coffey still may see some action in the Rose Bowl but Coach Jim Owens said he was depending upon Charlie Browning and Mike Kublenski to carry the load at fullback.

Both Teams Boast Able Quarterbacks

Both teams have able quarterbacks and Washington was strengthened by the return to action of Bill Siler who missed all except the opening game of the season due to illness. As a result, Bill Douglas took over and developed into an excellent signal-caller.

The Illini alternate Mike Taliaferro and Fred Custardo at quarterbick where they have done more runing and ball-handling than passing. The speedsters for the Ilini are halfbacks Sam Price and Jim Warren.

The Huskies have a pair of capable halfbacks also in Ron Mdved and Dave Kopay and a scatback punt and kickoff return artist in Steve Bramwell.

The secret of Illinois' success, however, has been the strength of its line led by All-America center and linebacker Dick Butkus with Archie Sutton and Bill Minor joining him to give it heft and strength.

Illini To Stick With Winning Combo

Elliott is not tampering with the combination that won the Big Ten title and will start the backfield of Taliaferro, Grabowski, Price and Warren.

The line is made up of Butkus at center; Bill Paski and Mike Summer at ends; Sutton and Minor at Tackles and Wylie Fox and Ed Washington at guards.

Browing was given the starting fullback call by Owens with Medved and Kopay at halfback and Douglas at quarterback. The Washington line has Al Libke and Joe Mancuso at Ends; Jake Kupp and Mike Briggs at tackles; Rick Redman and Koll Hagen at guards and John Stupey at center.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2 p.m. PST and the game is being telecast nationally (NBC).

Burke Another Wilson? If So, The 49er Problems Partially Solved

Jack Hanley

Vern Burke leaped high and with a twisting body turn made his ninth pass completion in the East-West game. Jack Christiansen and Bill Johnson, 49er coaches, looked at each other and smiled.

Someone sitting behind the coaches in the Kezar Stadium press box commented extravagantly: "He's another Billy Wilson." Neither Christiansen nor Johnson pretended they overheard.

If Burke, a '62 No. 5 future draft pick who signed his contract with the 49ers when he finished his collegiate career at Oregon State this season, is another Wilson, the problems of the 49ers already are partially solved.

Wilson was the greatest pass catcher in 49er history. When he retired in 1960 in his 10th NFL season, Wilson left a league mark of 407 receptions for 5902 yards and 49 touchdowns. That record, in nine and a fraction of a 10th season, was second only to Don Hutson's 489 catches and 8010 yards. And Hutson's top NFL record was established over 11 seasons.

BURKE DOES resemble Wilson in a lanky, lean way. He is 6-5 and 200. Wilson was 6-4 and 190. Wilson never "heard footsteps" as he leaped for a pass, knowing that as he came down with it he would be subjected to a merciless tackle, often a twin jolting by a pair of defensivemen. Burke similarly seems to have a total disregard for pursuing footsteps.

As good as he is, Burke still must prove himself worthy of the anonymous accolade bestowed on him when he made his ninth catch in the 39th East-West game.

CHRISTIANSEN WAS chief of Chris' Crew—the great Detroit defensive backfield—when Wilson was a 49er. And, in those days, Christiansen always said that the toughest man in the NFL to cover was Wilson. Emlen Tunnell, then the key man in New York's defensive backfield, used to say the same thing.

So it was understandable that Christiansen pretended not to hear the extravagant press box compliment paid Burke. No one could blame him, however, for wishing it were true.

Bowl Classics Tomorrow

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Navy's crusading Middies have been hit in their four-star backfield just two days before the showdown struggle with top-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl, one of four New Year's Day classics bringing together seven of the top eight college football teams in the country.

Pat Donnelly, the jarring fullback in the Navy backfield that includes All-America quarterback Roger Staubach, halfback Johnny Sai and flanker Ed Orr, stretched a hamstring muscle in his left leg during practice yesterday.

"He went down like a shot," said Coach Wayne Hardin. "He is going to start the game, but we won't know what he is going to be able to do until the game starts. If he can go, he'll go. If he can't we'll have to get along without him."

The injury was considered a severe blow to Navy's chance of defeating the Longhorns in a game Hardin admits the second-ranked Middies want to win more than any single game this season. That includes the Army game in which Donnelly scored all three touchdowns.

"Texas is even more important than Army," says Hardin. "Texas is the national champion. The polls are over and we can't change that. But if we could be lucky enough to win, I think everyone would concede that this game was for the national championship."

The Navy-Texas battle figures to be the headline attraction of the four-game New Year's Day program, with some 330,000 fans expected to be on hand to view the proceedings and the five All-Americans who will be on display.

THE TV LINEUP

Cotton Bowl at Dallas—Texas, 10-0 and ranked No. 1, vs. Navy, 9-1 and No. 2, 10:45 a.m., CBS.

Rose Bowl at Pasadena—Illinois, 7-1-1 and No. 3 vs. Washington, 6-4 and unranked, 1:45 p.m., NBC.

Orange Bowl at Miami—Auburn, 9-1 and No. 5, vs. Nebraska, 9-1 and No. 9, 10:45 a.m., ABC.

Sugar Bowl at New Orleans—Mississippi, 8-0-2 and No. 7, vs. Alabama, 8-2 and No. 8, 10:45 a.m., NBC.

As a preliminary to the climactic day of thes eason, Southern Methodist, 4-6, met Oregon, 7-3, in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Texas, today.

COTTON BOWL

The Texas-Navy game brings together the Middies' explosive offense, which revolves around the scrambling, often-annoying maneuvers of Staubach, and the Longhorns' ball-control offense and a strong defense anchored by All-America Scott Appleton.

Navy averaged 31.4 points a game and ranked sixth nationally in total offense, losing only to SMU 32-28. Texas defeated the Mustangs 17-12 in one of five games the Longhorns won by a touchdown or less en route to their sixth bowl game in seven years.

Tommy Ford and Duke Carlisle plus shoeless kicker Tony Crosby are Texas' main weapons in a rushing-oriented offense. The Longhorns gained 2,316 yards on the ground this season and only 730 passing.

ROSE BOWL

Illinois will, like Texas, base its main hopes against Washington in the Rose Bowl on a tough defense led by All-America center Dick Butkus. Mike Taliaferro is the quarterback and sophomore Jim Grabowski the big threat on the ground for the Illini.

The Huskies, meanwhile, likely will be forced to go without their standout fullback Junior Coffey, still limping on an ailing foot. Charlie Browning and Mike Kuklenski figure to take over as the main workhorse in the landbased attack.

ORANGE BOWL

Auburn and Nebraska each has an option threat, the Tigers in All-America Jimmy Sidle and the Cornhuskers in Dennis Claridge. The duel may decide the game, but the most important factor could turn out to be the weight advantage held by the Nebraska line, which includes All-America Bob Brown.

SUGAR BOWL

Steve Sloan, tapped to direct the Alabama attack in place of suspended Joe Namath, will carry the brunt of the offense for the Tide against Mississippi's talented quarterback duo of Perry Lee Dunn and Jim Weatherly.

SUN BOWL

Speedster John Roderick, who led SMU to its upset of Navy, is expected to be a problem for Oregon in the Sun Bowl. The Ducks are equally at home on the ground or in the air, with quarterback Bob Berry the chief threat.

Huskies Proud Of Their Leprechauns

By HAL WOOD

The No. 2 backfield unit is composed of quarterback Bill Siler, who stands 5-9 and weighs 172; halfback Steve Bramwell, 5-8 and 154; halfback Dick Wetterauer, 6 feet and 180; and the "big" fullback Mike Kuklenski, 5-9 and 173.

The Washington coaches are real proud of this outfit.

"This boy Bramwell isn't very big," said a Washington aide, "but when you talk about speed—well he doesn't have that, either, but he's fast."

But little Stevie is a football player. So good in fact that he has 281 minutes of playing time this year. Against the Air Force he ran a kick-off back 90 yards for a touchdown. Against Oregon State he took a punt and rambled 92 yards for a score.

He set up a touchdown against California with a 40-yard kick-off return and later scored the counter on a five-yard run. He caught six passes this season—which is quite a feat considering the fact that he was covered by men who towered a foot above him.

Siler has played only 21 minutes. But don't forget he started the season as the team's No. 1 quarterback. He had to give up when struck by illness — hepatitis. Now he's ready to ramble.

Wetterauer, only a sophomore, is a giant in this company. But he has played 182 minutes and is the fastest man of the foursome. He is outstanding on defense, too.

Kuklenski, who possibly rates as the world's smallest fullback in major league circles, has played only 32 minutes. How can a guy get into the game when Charlie Browning and Junior Coffee are playing on the same team with you? But he may see quite a bit of action if Coffee is not available to spell off Browning.

Among Washington fans, the belief is that if anybody breaks open the game, it will be Bramwell. He's that kind of a player.

He's been wrestled by 200-pounders; hog-tied by 250-pounders and stomped on by 270-pounders.

But, being a true leprechaun, he always comes back for more.

Texans Put Nat'l Title On The Line

DALLAS (AP)—Darrel Royal's eyes flashed when he said it: "We aren't a bit afraid to put it on the line."

He was discussing the question of whether the national championship would be decided when his Texas football team plays Navy in the Cotton Bowl tomorrow.

Royal said his Longhorns already had received the trophies calling them national champions on the basis of 10 straight victories and that he didn't think once-beaten Navy, rated No. 2, could cause a return of the mementoes even if it won the Cotton Bowl game.

But one word led to another, and finally Royal said with some heat that he wouldn't be scared to put his title on the line.

Navy Coach Wayne Hardin and his players look upon the game as for the national championship although they admit that Texas already has been awarded it.

That, however, wouldn't cause the Middies to think anything else than that they had won the title. They would have beaten the champs.

But whether or not Navy thinks it is national champion and Texas doesn't, it has been the conversation piece as the two teams prepared for their meeting when 75,504 fans jam the big saucer to see the greatest attraction the Cotton Bowl has had in its 28 years.

Never before has the No. 1 and No. 2 teams met in this game and it has the fans on edge as much as the coaches and players.

Injuns May Lose Star For Opener

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — League action in both the West Coast Athletic Conference and Big Six begins this weekend with the University of San Francisco and UCLA still tagged the basketball outfits to beat.

Although they lost to Santa Barbara in the opening game of the WCAC tournament, the Dons of USF still are considered the power in their conference.

Stanford, a threat to the Uclans, suffered a blow when center Tom Dose injured his knee and became questionable for the Indians' openers against Southern California this weekend.

Dr. Fred Behling, Stanford team physician, said the 6-foot-8-inch Dose has a deep bruise. X-rays indicated no other damage.

Even without Dose, the Indians almost beat Arizona State at Tempe last night dropping a 61-57 lead with 1:09 left, but A-State scored two baskets, the last coming on a tip-in as the buzzer sounded.

The Indians took down 58 rebounds to 48 for the Sun Devils —an accomplishment without the services of Dose, a rebounding terror. Stanford now is 6-1.

Kent Hinckley paced the Indians with 20, while Clayton Raaka had 18. Dose's replacements, Craig Cordes and Ray Sanke, scored nine points. The Indians missed seven of 15 free throws.

Coach Stu Inman of San Jose State, whose club beat Santa Clara for the WCAC holiday tournament crown, said at the Northern California Basketball Writers' luncheon yesterday that he still tabs USF as the team to beat for the title. So did Santa Clara's Dick Garibaldi whose Broncos lost to San Jose 56-55.

Santa Clara's Russ Vrankovich, the 5-foot 11 playmaker, was voted the player-of-the-week by the writers. Earlier he had been named the outstanding player in the WCAC tournament.

Wilt The Stilt Scoring Less, But Enjoying It More

NEW YORK (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain of San Francisco is scoring less, but he may be enjoying it more.

Scoring is down in general in the National Basketball Assn. this season, and Chamberlain's 34.3 average on 1,096 points in 32 games is a dip of about 15 points from last year.

But there's no question that Wilt The Stilt is No. 1. League statistics relased today show he's the only player in the NBA with a 30-point plus average.

Fair To Good Steelhead Catches; Local Striper Striving Terrific

STEVENS

To paraphrase an angler's cliche—Fish are sometimes found where you don't expect them! Like, for example, last Friday when Nick Kierst cast his sardine-baited hook into the water off the rocky point at the San Leandro Marina and caught three prime steelhead. Not lunkers but nice 18 inchers.

The above event was reported by Dick Payne of the San Lorenzo Bait Emporium. Dick also gave honorable mention to Ray Hilton who fished Middle River for a swell limit of fine fat catfish on Sunday.

Getting back to steelhead fishing, the coast streams have all come through with fair to good catches of the ocean-run rainbows, and Joe Navarro called to report some fast and fancy steelheading in Lake Berryessa. "The boys are working the 10 to 15-foot depths at the north end of the lake. The most of them are being taken on orange flatfish with black spots at the end of a Ford Fender near the mouth of Putah Creek," said Joe.

Navarro also reported Dick Hurtubise taking a limit of stripers along with a 46 inch sturgeon in the San Joaquin near Antioch.

A REPORT which I was unable to verify, but am inclined to credit as true, was phoned to my office yesterday to the effect that some fair steelheading was being had in the upper Napa River at the bend just above the Veterans Home.

BY THE WAY, in case the Berryessa method of trolling with Ford Fenders and Flatfish doesn't appeal because of all the hardware entailed, one authentic report is on hand of one, Jack Foster of San Francisco, taking a limit of steelhead in Berryessa while using only a number 7 Flatfish, and trolling deep.

REGARDING THE local and back country striper striving, Alice Quan of China Camp reports, "Only one word to describe it, Ralph. It's TERRIFIC! Seven boats out and, with one exception, all had limits and the one exception came close. All nice bass, 12 pounds and up. Real freshies; red fins and tails. Catching 'em in fairly deep water with the bigger ones taken on bullheads, but some beauties on sardines, too!" I asked about flounders. "Lots of them, too. Anybody using small hooks and small pieces of bait can get a mess of them."

JOE NERVIANI of Joe's Launching at Santa Venetia reported 40 to 50 bass on Saturday and the big ones, 14 to 18 pounds on bullheads, and the balance, to around eight pounds, on sardines. One boat with Hans Stern, Jim Collin and two friends docked with 12 stripers—all big fish, and 15 of the largest flounders Joe has seen in a long time—like young halibut, they were so large. The quartet was only out three hours.

Onc again Frank Gratti limited on ducks, Joe told me. "All sprigs. William Cuneo Jr. came in with five sprigs and one bluie, also."

The 'Strongest Teen-Agers In Marin'

Ippolito, who weighs 280 pounds, won the overall championship and "Strongest Teen-Ager" title by lifting a total of 900 pounds. Totals are made by adding the contestant's best lifts in Standing Press, Bench Press and Dead Lift.

Holton, an amazingly strong youngster who weighs only 158 pounds, lifted a total of 895 pounds—only five pounds less than Ippolito—to place second overall and easily capture title as "Pound-for-Pound Strongest Teen-Ager in Marin." Leon Carter of San Rafael, a 148-pounder, was second in "Pound-for-Pound" competition with a lift of 725 pounds.

Rich Congdon, 19, another College of Marin football star, placed third overall with a total lift of 860 pounds. He weighs 270.

Twenty-seven youngsters competed, according to contest director Jack MacPhee. He said lifts were made in official Amateur Athletic Union style and records will be entered in official AAU books.

Following are the leaders in each weight division (listed in order of finish):

181 Pounds—Jim Ballance, Gary Webb.

198 Pounds—Ray Miller, Ken Cook.

Heavyweights—Don Ippolito, Rich Congdon, Bill Hickerson.

Cal Sportsmen Set Aside Firearms, Grab Trout Rods

Sportsmen will begin setting aside their firearms and picking up their trout fishing rods in many California areas tomorrow.

Five hunting seasons will close, but year around fishing begins for the first time on four major lakes. In addition, an experimental "fishing for fun" area opens up on the Kings River in Fresno County.

Hunting seasons drawing to a close are for quail, chukars, tree squirrels, cottontail rabbits and bear. So today is the last chance to get in on what the state says is the best upland game season "in several years."

Lakes opening up for year around trout fishing are Success in Tulare County, Trinity in Trinity County, West Valley in Modoc County and Keweah in Tulare County. The limit will be five, except during the general trout season when it will be 10.

The new Whiskeytown Lake, in Shasta County, will not open until May 2, although after that it also will be a year 'rounder.

The special fly fishing only season on the Kings River will run through Feb. 29. But the "fishing for fun" designation means just that: all trout must be released immediately after they are caught.

Hunters still may shoot waterfowl and jacksnipe until Jan. 5 throughout the state, and bandtailed pigeons — except in the 13 northern counties—until Jan. 12.

Nattress Top Man In Nave Bowling

Larry Garatti, rolling in the Thursday nite Mixed League, put together games of 230-195 and 204 to post a 629 series and high honors for the Christmas Week at Nave Lanes. Following close behind was Bud Nattress with a 619 total featuring a 244 line.

The 244 by Nattress also held up as high game for the week. Bud was bowling in the 840 Scratch League. Ken Marks hit a 234 game in the Monday Men's Hdcp.

The distaff side was paced by Derinda Lindstrom's sharp 589 series with games of 172-206 and a 211. Derinda shot her series while rolling in the Classie Lassie League. Fran Thurman scored a 545—213 in the Women's Classis, and Maddie McDaniels hit a 541—195—191 in the Thursday Late Mixed.

High game for the ladies was registered by Pat Naugle, a 225, which she bowled in the Thursday Late Mixed. Pearce Hazen hit a 220 in the Las Vegas League, and Nancy Olson a 218 in the Classie Lassie.

Fair To Good Steelhead Catches; Local Striper Striving Terrific

STEVENS

To paraphrase an angler's cliche—Fish are sometimes found where you don't expect them! Like, for example, last Friday when Nick Kierst cast his sardine-baited hook into the water off the rocky point at the San Leandro Marina and caught three prime steelhead. Not lunkers but nice 18 inchers.

The above event was reported by Dick Payne of the San Lorenzo Bait Emporium. Dick also gave honorable mention to Ray Hilton who fished Middle River for a swell limit of fine fat catfish on Sunday.

Getting back to steelhead fishing, the coast streams have all come through with fair to good catches of the ocean-run rainbows, and Joe Navarro called to report some fast and fancy steelheading in Lake Berryessa. "The boys are working the 10 to 15-foot depths at the north end of the lake. The most of them are being taken on orange flatfish with black spots at the end of a Ford Fender near the mouth of Putah Creek," said Joe.

Navarro also reported Dick Hurtubise taking a limit of stripers along with a 46 inch sturgeon in the San Joaquin near Antioch.

A REPORT which I was unable to verify, but am inclined to credit as true, was phoned to my office yesterday to the effect that some fair steelheading was being had in the upper Napa River at the bend just above the Veterans Home.

BY THE WAY, in case the Berryessa method of trolling with Ford Fenders and Flatfish doesn't appeal because of all the hardware entailed, one authentic report is on hand of one, Jack Foster of San Francisco, taking a limit of steelhead in Berryessa while using only a number 7 Flatfish, and trolling deep.

REGARDING THE local and back country striper striving, Alice Quan of China Camp reports, "Only one word to describe it, Ralph. It's TERRIFIC! Seven boats out and, with one exception, all had limits and the one exception came close. All nice bass, 12 pounds and up. Real freshies; red fins and tails. Catching 'em in fairly deep water with the bigger ones taken on bullheads, but some beauties on sardines, too!" I asked about flounders. "Lots of them, too. Anybody using small hooks and small pieces of bait can get a mess of them."

JOE NERVIANI of Joe's Launching at Santa Venetia reported 40 to 50 bass on Saturday and the big ones, 14 to 18 pounds on bullheads, and the balance, to around eight pounds, on sardines. One boat with Hans Stern, Jim Collin and two friends docked with 12 stripers—all big fish, and 15 of the largest flounders Joe has seen in a long time—like young halibut, they were so large. The quartet was only out three hours.

Onc again Frank Gratti limited on ducks, Joe told me. "All sprigs. William Cuneo Jr. came in with five sprigs and one bluie, also."

The 'Strongest Teen-Agers In Marin'

Don Ippolito, 19-year-old All-Conference football star for College of Marin, and Frank Holton, 14-year-old eighth grader at Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo, emerged as top award winners Saturday night at the first annual "Strongest Teen-Ager in Marin" contest in San Rafael.

Ippolito, who weighs 280 pounds, won the overall championship and "Strongest Teen-Ager" title by lifting a total of 900 pounds. Totals are made by adding the contestant's best lifts in Standing Press, Bench Press and Dead Lift.

Holton, an amazingly strong youngster who weighs only 158 pounds, lifted a total of 895 pounds—only five pounds less than Ippolito—to place second overall and easily capture title as "Pound-for-Pound Strongest Teen-Ager in Marin." Leon Carter of San Rafael, a 148-pounder, was second in "Pound-for-Pound" competition with a lift of 725 pounds.

Rich Congdon, 19, another College of Marin football star, placed third overall with a total lift of 860 pounds. He weighs 270.

Twenty-seven youngsters competed, according to contest director Jack MacPhee. He said lifts were made in official Amateur Athletic Union style and records will be entered in official AAU books.

Following are the leaders in each weight division (listed in order of finish):

Cal Sportsmen Set Aside Firearms, Grab Trout Rods

Sportsmen will begin setting aside their firearms and picking up their trout fishing rods in many California areas tomorrow.

Five hunting seasons will close, but year around fishing begins for the first time on four major lakes. In addition, an experimental "fishing for fun" area opens up on the Kings River in Fresno County.

Hunting seasons drawing to a close are for quail, chukars, tree squirrels, cottontail rabbits and bear. So today is the last chance to get in on what the state says is the best upland game season "in several years."

Lakes opening up for year around trout fishing are Success in Tulare County, Trinity in Trinity County, West Valley in Modoc County and Keweah in Tulare County. The limit will be five, except during the general trout season when it will be 10.

The new Whiskeytown Lake, in Shasta County, will not open until May 2, although after that it also will be a year 'rounder.

The special fly fishing only season on the Kings River will run through Feb. 29. But the "fishing for fun" designation means just that: all trout must be released immediately after they are caught.

Hunters still may shoot waterfowl and jacksnipe until Jan. 5 throughout the state, and bandtailed pigeons — except in the 13 northern counties—until Jan. 12.

BUSY DAY AT TEXAS CAPITAL

Lyndon Johnson Has A Day With Home Folks In Austin

Home town, in the sense that in these wide open Texas spaces Austin is as much the president's home as his ranch 65 miles away.

"Austin is the city that we love," the president said. "For Mrs. Johnson and me, our public life began here. I have kept Lady Bird happy through the times past by promising that someday we would return to Austin to live—and we shall."

ATTENDS FUNERAL

Those were the chief executive's words last night at a dinner dedicating the Agudas Achim Synagogue in the Texas capital. He flew into town earlier and:

Attended the funeral of Nellie Miller, widow of Austin's Mayor Tom Miller, once a potent force in Texas democratic politics.

Went with only the shortest notice to his long-time barber, Gus Elderson, in the American National Bank Building and had his hair trimmed while four dozen townsfolk peered through the door.

SHAKES HANDS

Walked through the downtown area, shaking hands with hundreds of amazed people—and spotted a number of familiar faces in the process.

Made use of his suite in the Driskill Hotel, now the White House press headquarters, to do some telephoning to Washington and sign some bills into law.

Walked, then, to another suite two blocks away in the Commodore Perry Hotel, where he played host to 30 or 40 persons he knows from this central Texas hills region.

Motored to the synagogue, and said he was grateful that his first non-official public remarks since he became president Nov. 22 could "be made here in Austin and in conjunction with the dedication of a house of worship."

Johnson ranged from sentimental recollections to a deep-rooted assertion about world peace:

"Times have changed through the years, but the human heart has not changed, and wherever and however men live the yearning for peace is still the hope that burns most eternally in their hearts.

"As I said to the chancellor (Ludwig Erhard) of Germany yesterday, we invite all who will to go down the road to peace with us; but whether we have any acceptances or not, we are going down that road alone, if need be."

The president was in Austin for a little more than five hours. During that time, he was visibly warmed by as fine a tribute as he has ever received. Rabbi Louis Firestein, of the Temple Beth Israel, asked in the invocation at the new synagogue for God's blessing on Johnson "as he works to lead us toward the promised land of national security and peace."

President Decides On $51 Billion For Defense

The big question today was how acceptable is this to the nation's military commanders who had wanted 60 billion dollars?

Johnson had a budget session yesterday with the joint chiefs of staff and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

McNamara had a chance to talk about it afterward. The top (commanders of the armed forces) didn't, although the White House had billed them for a news conference.

"This one billion dollars savings," McNamara said, "can be made without in any way reducing the defenses of this nation. As a matter of fact, I believe that the budget that will be submitted to the Congress will yield defenses superior to those in any other time in our history in peacetime."

The joint chiefs of staff will have an opportunity to speak later before congressional appropriations committees.

Congress Ends Long Session —Warned Of Work Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has ended its longest peacetime session with fair warning that when it returns to work in eight days it faces "some of the most difficult decisions which this or any Congress is likely to be required to reach."

Thus Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana let his colleagues know, if they didn't already, that the drawn-out 1963 session of the 88th Congress was "just a beginning."

The battles over civil rights legislation and tax reduction had been only postponed and still lay ahead.

The Senate completed action on the battered three-billion-dollar foreign-aid measure yesterday including the provision giving the president discretionary authority to approve government guarantees of credit for private commodity sales to the Soviet bloc.

With this out of the way the Senate adjourned at 2:19 p.m. and the House made it official at 2:51 p.m. after a one-minute session.

For all the frustrations and pokiness it was also a historic session, experiencing the jolting transition of administrations when John F. Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22 and Lyndon B. Johnson took over the presidency.

Many believe that Johnson, who gained renown as a tough, driving Senate Democratic leader, will have more success getting his programs through Congress than Kennedy would have.

Boy Confesses Flooding Gym

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A boy of 13 confesed that he and two others flooded Hamilton Playground gymnasium Christmas Eve, according to San Francisco police.

"We were just horsing around," the boy said.

Officers said yesterday that they picked up the boy, who then implicated the others, aged 14 and 15.

The youngest boy said he turned on the water in a coiled fire hose. One of his companions then turned the water power full force and boys fled.

SILVER LAKE, Wis. (UPI) — Silver Lake's volunteer firemen were thawing out their new $15,000 fire engine today. While the firemen were pumping water for a public skating rink the engine broke through the ice and fell into the lake.

SOMETHING YOU MIGHT BE NEEDING

"Cognac serves as a stimulant. Champagne adds needed tone to the weariest of days and inspires a feeling of gaiety," said Dr. Gould.

Goldwater To Announce Plans Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's Republican Senate colleagues got their bets down today — and the smart money was on a bid for the White House by the Arizona conservative.

The setting, his hilltop home overlooking the city, and the audience of state GOP leaders Goldwater chose seemed to hint he might plan to talk about an Arizona race — for re-election to his Senate seat.

But Goldwater spread word of his plans in a telegram yesterday to his supporters across the country.

Two of Goldwater's top supporters — talking like insiders —said they are confident he will declare himself a candidate.

"I knew this was coming," said Sen. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb.) after Goldwater called the decision session. "I believe that he will seek the nomination."

"I am confident that Senator Goldwater will make an early commitment to be a candidate," said Sen. John H. Tower (R-Tex.).

Annual Vehicle Renewal Period Begins Thursday

The annual renewal period for vehicle registration will begin Thursday, Tom Bright, state director of motor vehicles, announced today.

Vehicle owners may pay fees and obtain 1964 registration without penalty until Feb. 4.

The registration renewal service is available in Marin at the Department of Motor Vehicles office at 1926 Fourth Street, San Rafael, at the Wells and Crocker-Citizens National Bank in Novato, and for members of the California State Automobile Assn. at the CSAA office in Greenbrae.

Bank stations can renew registrations only if the owners present punched renewal cards received in the mail, said Bright. Persons who need to apply for transfer of ownership or other more complex transactions must visit the DMV office, he said.

A.F. To Pull Men, Planes From Japan

Included In Realignment Are Last B-57s

TOKYO (AP) — The U. S. Air Force is going to transfer 3,500 men and 78 planes —including its last operational B-57 bombardment wing—from Japan to the United States.

This major realignment of U. S. air strength was confirmed today by Lt. Gen. Maurice A. Preston, commander of U.S. forces in Japan, and the U.S. Embassy. Neither would give any details.

HONOR PLEDGE

An informed source disclosed the United States is negotiating additional Air Force withdrawals but has assured the Japanese it will honor its pledge under the U.S.-Japan security treaty to defend Japan from attack.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the Japanese government agreed to the withdrawals in recognition of the need for "the most efficient use" of military resources to meet the United States' global commitments.

DETAILS GIVEN

An informed source in Japan gave these details:

The initial withdrawals are expected to be completed by next fall. Some 2,000 U.S. dependents also will be returned home, and about 2,400 Japanese employees at U.S. bases are expected to lose their jobs.

No reductions are planned in Army, Navy or Marine personnel, who comprise 20,200 men. Total U.S. military strength in Japan is 46,000 men. With them are 54,000 dependents and 3,000 American civilian employees.

Planes to be withdrawn are 48 B-57s, 14 F-100 tactical fighters and 16 C-134 troop transports.

BIG BOMBERS

This will mean the deactivation of the Fifth Air Force's B-57 wing, last of the big bombers still operational in Air Force. The Fifth Air Force, with headquarters at Fuchu Air Base outside of Tokyo, is the bulwark of U.S. air strength in Japan.

The job of the big bombers will be taken over by F-105s, high-speed fighter-bombers capable of delivering nuclear weapons. Three squadrons of F-105s were recently assigned to Japan, although no nuclear weapons are believed stationed in the country.

Nikita Calls For German Treaty

BERLIN (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, in a New Year's message to Communist East German leaders, today called for conclusion of a German peace treaty and normalization of the West Berlin situation. He set no deadline.

"The untiring fight of the German Democratic Republic for a lessening of international tension, for a German peace settlement and the normalization of the situation in West Berlin on this basis has increased the number of friends of the first Socialist German state and underlines its historical importance for the cause of European peace," he said.

His telegram was carried by the East German news service ADN.

Chinese Premier In Turnabout —Now Says Coexistance Fine

PARIS (AP) — Softening Peking's strident tone, Premier Chou En-lai said last night Chinese Communists believe in peacefull coexistence with capitalism and don't think another world war is inevitable.

In an interview broadcast by the French government television service, Chou said the United States and not Red China is putting obstacles in the way of peaceful coexistence — by its "hostile political policy in regard to China" and particularly its "occupation" of Formosa.

"The Chinese people," Chou said, "have friendly feelings toward the American people, but we oppose the policy of aggression and of war of the American government."

He repeated Peking's perenial demand for withdrawal of American forces from Formosa and the Formosa Strait.

The interview was taped in Rabat, where Chou today ended a four-day visit to Morocco. He interrupted his African tour and flew to Albania, Peking's chief ally in the bitter ideological dispute with the Soviet Union. After visiting there, Chou will return to Africa to tour Tunisia, Ghana, Mali, Guinea and possibly countries in east Africa.

Chou also espoused peaceful coexistence in a joint communique with his Moroccan hosts.

The communique said: "The two parties have pronounced themselves in favor of peaceful co-existence among countries of different social systems and for large international cooperation based on equality and mutual advantage."

In neither the communique nor the interview did Red China's premier explain how the peaceful coexistence Peking favors differs from the peaceful coexistence advocated by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, for which the Chinese have attacked the Soviet leader unceasingly.

LIAR OF YEAR

Short Fishing Story Tall Tale Winner

BURLINGTON, Wis. (UPI) — Even the worst fishing conditions could not be as bad as those described by Richard Burlin, Rural Chatham, Mass., the Burlington Liar's Club decided today.

Burlin was named "World's Champion Liar for 1963" for this woeful fishing tale:

"Fishing around here was so bad sometimes this summer that even the biggest liars didn't catch any."

Otis Hutlett, president of the Liar's Club, said, "If brevity is the soul of wit, the judges were surely justified in picking Mr. Burlin's entry."

Another tale which won honorable mention in the 35th annual competition for the world's tallest story of the year was sent in by Ronald Johnson of Seattle Wash., who said: "It was so cold here one winter that we all took steam baths by crawling into the refrigerator."

George Lowrey, rural McIndoe Falls, Vt., claimed: "It rained so hard for the last two weeks in Vermont that the Vermont side of the Connecticut river was four feet higher than on the New Hampshire side."

A complaint about mail service by John Zepczyk of Phillips, Wis., also won honorable mention. He said: "I hope this arrives in time for the 1963 contest for liars, but the mail is so slow here that all of the mailmen have moss growing on the north side of them."

A New York City schoolgirl, Sara Barbosa, wrote that she knows a "girl in our neighborhood whose mouth is so small that in order to say 'three,' she has to say, 'one, one, one.'"

Finally, this story about weather by W. Y. Brown of Brenson, Mo.: "It has been so dry here in the Ozarks for so long that we have frogs 2 years old that don't know how to swim yet. Yesterday, I saw two men cleaning a string of fish with a whisk broom."

Snow Falls In Deep South, North Temperatures Plunge

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Snow fell in the Deep South, temperatures plunged to 20 degrees below zero in the North and broke records, and heavy rains beat against Florida today as winter turned on the special effects for a departing year.

It wan't much of a snowfall thousands of Sugar Bowl visitors at New Orleans gaped when snowflakes fluttered down and gathered in patches on lawns and automobiles.

The weather bureau said "moderate" snow fell in parts of northern Georgia.

Freezing rain swept the Carolinas, southern Georgia and norwest Florida. A storm off Florida's southwest coast sent heavy rains inland. Vero Beach, across the peninsula, reported nearly one and one-half inches of rain in six hours today.

In the North, winter was as wintery as ever. The temperature plumetted to 23 below at Johnsbury, VT., and Lebanon, N.H. Watertown, N.Y., and Lone Rock Wis., recorded 21 below readings.

The mercury fell to an official two below at Chicago to set a record for the day and the Indianapolis Weather Bureau said Indiana had its coldest December in 93 years of record-keeping with an average temperature of 18.3 degrees.

Other cities across the Great Plains, Midwest ond Ohio Valley reported temperatures ranging down to 18 and 19 degrees below zero.

BUSY DAY AT TEXAS CAPITAL

Lyndon Johnson Has A Day With Home Folks In Austin

Home town, in the sense that in these wide open Texas spaces Austin is as much the president's home as his ranch 65 miles away.

"Austin is the city that we love," the president said. "For Mrs. Johnson and me, our public life began here. I have kept Lady Bird happy through the times past by promising that someday we would return to Austin to live—and we shall."

ATTENDS FUNERAL

Those were the chief executive's words last night at a dinner dedicating the Agudas Achim Synagogue in the Texas capital. He flew into town earlier and:

Attended the funeral of Nellie Miller, widow of Austin's Mayor Tom Miller, once a potent force in Texas democratic politics.

Went with only the shortest notice to his long-time barber, Gus Elderson, in the American National Bank Building and had his hair trimmed while four dozen townsfolk peered through the door.

SHAKES HANDS

Walked through the downtown area, shaking hands with hundreds of amazed people—and spotted a number of familiar faces in the process.

Made use of his suite in the Driskill Hotel, now the White House press headquarters, to do some telephoning to Washington and sign some bills into law.

Walked, then, to another suite two blocks away in the Commodore Perry Hotel, where he played host to 30 or 40 persons he knows from this central Texas hills region.

Motored to the synagogue, and said he was grateful that his first non-official public remarks since he became president Nov. 22 could "be made here in Austin and in conjunction with the dedication of a house of worship."

Johnson ranged from sentimental recollections to a deep-rooted assertion about world peace:

"Times have changed through the years, but the human heart has not changed, and wherever and however men live the yearning for peace is still the hope that burns most eternally in their hearts.

"As I said to the chancellor (Ludwig Erhard) of Germany yesterday, we invite all who will to go down the road to peace with us; but whether we have any acceptances or not, we are going down that road alone, if need be."

The president was in Austin for a little more than five hours. During that time, he was visibly warmed by as fine a tribute as he has ever received. Rabbi Louis Firestein, of the Temple Beth Israel, asked in the invocation at the new synagogue for God's blessing on Johnson "as he works to lead us toward the promised land of national security and peace."

President Decides On $51 Billion For Defense

The big question today was how acceptable is this to the nation's military commanders who had wanted 60 billion dollars?

Johnson had a budget session yesterday with the joint chiefs of staff and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

McNamara had a chance to talk about it afterward. The top (commanders of the armed forces) didn't, although the White House had billed them for a news conference.

"This one billion dollars savings," McNamara said, "can be made without in any way reducing the defenses of this nation. As a matter of fact, I believe that the budget that will be submitted to the Congress will yield defenses superior to those in any other time in our history in peacetime."

The joint chiefs of staff will have an opportunity to speak later before congressional appropriations committees.

Congress Ends Long Session —Warned Of Work Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has ended its longest peacetime session with fair warning that when it returns to work in eight days it faces "some of the most difficult decisions which this or any Congress is likely to be required to reach."

Thus Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana let his colleagues know, if they didn't already, that the drawn-out 1963 session of the 88th Congress was "just a beginning."

The battles over civil rights legislation and tax reduction had been only postponed and still lay ahead.

The Senate completed action on the battered three-billion-dollar foreign-aid measure yesterday including the provision giving the president discretionary authority to approve government guarantees of credit for private commodity sales to the Soviet bloc.

With this out of the way the Senate adjourned at 2:19 p.m. and the House made it official at 2:51 p.m. after a one-minute session.

For all the frustrations and pokiness it was also a historic session, experiencing the jolting transition of administrations when John F. Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22 and Lyndon B. Johnson took over the presidency.

Many believe that Johnson, who gained renown as a tough, driving Senate Democratic leader, will have more success getting his programs through Congress than Kennedy would have.

Boy Confesses Flooding Gym

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A boy of 13 confesed that he and two others flooded Hamilton Playground gymnasium Christmas Eve, according to San Francisco police.

"We were just horsing around," the boy said.

Officers said yesterday that they picked up the boy, who then implicated the others, aged 14 and 15.

The youngest boy said he turned on the water in a coiled fire hose. One of his companions then turned the water power full force and boys fled.

Goldwater To Announce Plans Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's Republican Senate colleagues got their bets down today — and the smart money was on a bid for the White House by the Arizona conservative.

Goldwater gives his yes or no Friday at a meeting of Arizona Republican leaders in his native Phoenix.

The setting, his hilltop home overlooking the city, and the audience of state GOP leaders Goldwater chose seemed to hint he might plan to talk about an Arizona race — for re-election to his Senate seat.

But Goldwater spread word of his plans in a telegram yesterday to his supporters across the country.

Two of Goldwater's top supporters — talking like insiders —said they are confident he will declare himself a candidate.

"I knew this was coming," said Sen. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb.) after Goldwater called the decision session. "I believe that he will seek the nomination."

"I am confident that Senator Goldwater will make an early commitment to be a candidate," said Sen. John H. Tower (R-Tex.).

A.F. To Pull Men, Planes From Japan

Included In Realignment Are Last B-57s

TOKYO (AP) — The U. S. Air Force is going to transfer 3,500 men and 78 planes —including its last operational B-57 bombardment wing—from Japan to the United States.

This major realignment of U. S. air strength was confirmed today by Lt. Gen. Maurice A. Preston, commander of U.S. forces in Japan, and the U.S. Embassy. Neither would give any details.

HONOR PLEDGE

An informed source disclosed the United States is negotiating additional Air Force withdrawals but has assured the Japanese it will honor its pledge under the U.S.-Japan security treaty to defend Japan from attack.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the Japanese government agreed to the withdrawals in recognition of the need for "the most efficient use" of military resources to meet the United States' global commitments.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman also declined to elaborate on the realignment.

DETAILS GIVEN

An informed source in Japan gave these details:

The initial withdrawals are expected to be completed by next fall. Some 2,000 U.S. dependents also will be returned home, and about 2,400 Japanese employees at U.S. bases are expected to lose their jobs.

No reductions are planned in Army, Navy or Marine personnel, who comprise 20,200 men. Total U.S. military strength in Japan is 46,000 men. With them are 54,000 dependents and 3,000 American civilian employees.

Planes to be withdrawn are 48 B-57s, 14 F-100 tactical fighters and 16 C-134 troop transports.

BIG BOMBERS

This will mean the deactivation of the Fifth Air Force's B-57 wing, last of the big bombers still operational in Air Force. The Fifth Air Force, with headquarters at Fuchu Air Base outside of Tokyo, is the bulwark of U.S. air strength in Japan.

The job of the big bombers will be taken over by F-105s, high-speed fighter-bombers capable of delivering nuclear weapons. Three squadrons of F-105s were recently assigned to Japan, although no nuclear weapons are believed stationed in the country.

Nikita Calls For German Treaty

BERLIN (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, in a New Year's message to Communist East German leaders, today called for conclusion of a German peace treaty and normalization of the West Berlin situation. He set no deadline.

"The untiring fight of the German Democratic Republic for a lessening of international tension, for a German peace settlement and the normalization of the situation in West Berlin on this basis has increased the number of friends of the first Socialist German state and underlines its historical importance for the cause of European peace," he said.

His telegram was carried by the East German news service ADN.

New Year's Resolutions In Fashion

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Take note of a few New Year's resolutions in fashion and you might find yourself on one of those best-dressed lists in 1964.

Culled from all of the advice so freely given through the last year, from assorted authorities, this column has selected several which should help you arrive—at least among your family and friends, if not on that nationally publicized roster of elegants.

—Resolve to keep, and use, a good clothes brush at both home and office.

—Resolve not to tug at your girdle in public.

—RESOLVE to keep purse from becoming a catch-all in which paper clips, gummed labels, compact, check stubs, hair spray, pencils, memos to yourself, kleenex, a couple of safety pins, key chain, trading stamps, and charge plates fight for space among the other necessities, like billfold.

—Resolve not to look down at the heels. Keep lifts in top shape, shoes shined. There are those you know who look at a foot and ankle first.

—RESOLVE not to follow every fad and to remember that simplicity is the secret of elegance. But allow the frivolity of one splurge, say on a zany fur hat or a pair of boots. For fashion should not be all that deadly serious.

—Resolve to unstack those hairdos. Overly-teased and confused hair combs are outmoded.

—RESOLVE to work in some brilliant color in the wardrobe, no matter what the wage or the age bracket. Today's spectrum of color is so wide there are bright hues to become everyone.

—Resolve not to pour it on in the way of accessories. One handsome pin, standing alone, does more for the wearer than a collection of jangling bracelets, plus rhinestone earrings plus glittering necklace.

—Resolve never to shop at the last minute. Instead, plan ahead, building a wardrobe long-range as one builds a house. A solid foundation of good materials first. One good simple dress over five dresses less costly and less wearable ones.

—Resolve not to hang a garment back in the closet after wearing unless that loosened snap has been re-sewn . . . that hem that ripped slightly is stitched back.

The first run covered three miles over the rolling hills.

The second run was along the Pacific Ocean covering beaches containing a large number of natural jumps some of which were up to three feet and six inches high and six foot spreads. All the horses rode through the surf along the beach. The first round a live fox was accidentally encountered which added to the excitement of the chase. The entire hunt encompassed 15 miles.

New Year's Resolutions In Fashion

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Take note of a few New Year's resolutions in fashion and you might find yourself on one of those best-dressed lists in 1964.

Culled from all of the advice so freely given through the last year, from assorted authorities, this column has selected several which should help you arrive—at least among your family and friends, if not on that nationally publicized roster of elegants.

—Resolve to keep, and use, a good clothes brush at both home and office.

—Resolve not to tug at your girdle in public.

—RESOLVE to keep purse from becoming a catch-all in which paper clips, gummed labels, compact, check stubs, hair spray, pencils, memos to yourself, kleenex, a couple of safety pins, key chain, trading stamps, and charge plates fight for space among the other necessities, like billfold.

—Resolve not to look down at the heels. Keep lifts in top shape, shoes shined. There are those you know who look at a foot and ankle first.

—RESOLVE not to follow every fad and to remember that simplicity is the secret of elegance. But allow the frivolity of one splurge, say on a zany fur hat or a pair of boots. For fashion should not be all that deadly serious.

—Resolve to unstack those hairdos. Overly-teased and confused hair combs are outmoded.

—RESOLVE to work in some brilliant color in the wardrobe, no matter what the wage or the age bracket. Today's spectrum of color is so wide there are bright hues to become everyone.

—Resolve not to pour it on in the way of accessories. One handsome pin, standing alone, does more for the wearer than a collection of jangling bracelets, plus rhinestone earrings plus glittering necklace.

—Resolve never to shop at the last minute. Instead, plan ahead, building a wardrobe long-range as one builds a house. A solid foundation of good materials first. One good simple dress over five dresses less costly and less wearable ones.

—Resolve not to hang a garment back in the closet after wearing unless that loosened snap has been re-sewn . . . that hem that ripped slightly is stitched back.

COMMAND RECEPTION

Chatting at the annual end-of-year reception held on Sunday night at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers' Open Mess are, from left, Maj. Gen. C. F. Necrason, commander of the 28th Air Division and reception host; Mrs. Fred Enemark, Mrs. Necrason, hostess, and Fred Enemark, president of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce. Serving the four is Mrs. Delman Edberg. (USAF photo)

Hunt Breakfast In Inverness

The first run covered three miles over the rolling hills.

The second run was along the Pacific Ocean covering beaches containing a large number of natural jumps some of which were up to three feet and six inches high and six foot spreads. All the horses rode through the surf along the beach. The first round a live fox was accidentally encountered which added to the excitement of the chase. The entire hunt encompassed 15 miles.

McKeever, San Rafael; budget; Mrs. Bradford Godfrey, Tiburon; salvage shop; Mrs. David Sokoloff, San Rafael, special education; Michael Mitchell, San Rafael, building; Mrs. Robert Durenberger, San Rafael, kindergarten and library; John McRee, Mill Valley, public affairs, and Mrs. J. Year Of Heartbreak, Heroism: 1963

It was a year like none other in the century.

A widowed First Lady gave the nation an example of supreme dignity and courage in her time of trial. A Russian blonde was orbited into space. A playgirl nearly toppled the British government.

Two mothers gave birth to quintuplets. Another mother, Mrs. Madalyn Murray of Baltimore, won a Supreme Court ruling that barred prayer and Bible reading in public schools.

WOMEN—white as well as colored—demonstrated for civil rights and job opportunities for Negroes, in the March on Washington, in sit-ins and on picket lines. At a Birmingham church on a Sunday morning in September a dynamite blast killed four little Negro girls.

As 1963 drew to a close, nobody could deny it had been a highly eventful year, but everyone fervently wished parts of it could be undone.

A WOMAN judge, Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas, gave the oath of office to the new President, Lyndon B. Johnson, and the United States had a new First Family in Lady Bird, Lucy Baines and Lynda Bird.

THE NATION'S heart and admiration went out to courageous and composed Jacqueline Kennedy, who lost a husband only three months after the death of her 3-day-old son Patrick. With her two small children, John Jr. and Caroline, she moved out of the White House into a year of mourning.

Meanwhile, pitying Americans contributed to funds for Mrs. Lee Oswald, the accused assassin's widow who was left destitute with two baby girls, and Mrs. J. D. Tippit, mother of three, whose policeman husband was shot to death shortly after the President.

Looking at the year's more cheerful aspects, September was a great month for babies. On Sept. 8 Mrs. Ines Cuervo de Prieto in Maracaibo, Venezuela gave birth to five boys. She held the limelight less than a week. On Sept. 14 Mrs. Andrew Fischer, who already had five children, became the mother of quintuplets in an Aberdeen, S.D., hospital.

British royalty, meantime, became ladies in waiting; Queen Elizabeth is expecting her fourth early next year with Princess Margaret, Princess Alexandra and the Duchess of Kent anticipating heirs a respectful time later.

For a while it looked as if the British government might fall over the high-society sex and espionage scandal resulting from courtroom revelations by red-haired Christine Keeler and various girl friends who had frolicked with the peer group, including a cabinet member. But the ship of state finally righted.

IN THIS country's politics women weren't overlooked. A boomlet for Sen. Margaret Chase Smith to campaign for the Republican presidential nomination got off the ground in late fall. And speculation was rampant about New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's chances for the same job in view of his spring marriage to Mrs. Margaretta (Happy) Fitler Murphy, mother of four, shortly after her divorce from Dr. James Slater Murphy.

A Russian textile mill worker, Valentina Tereshkova, 26, became the first lady astronaut in June, dashing the hopes of Jerrie Cobb and other American women pilots who had wanted this country to send up the first space woman.

BUT THE woman professor who won a Nobel prize this year was an American, Mrs. Maria Goeppert Mayer of the University of California. She shared the physics prize for research into the structure of the atom and its nucleus.

The United States lost a socialite in 22-year-old Hope Cooke, but gained a maharani. Earlier this year she married Prince Palden Thondup Namgyal of Sikkim, an Indian protectorate, and in December they ascended the throne.

THE COSTLY, interminable "Cleopatra" finally was released to movie houses and got lukewarm reviews. More torrid was the romance between its stars, Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, whose marriage seemed in the offing.

START OF HER TRAGIC DAY—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, wearing a pink wool suit and pillbox hat, smiled as she received a bouquet of red roses on arriving at Dallas Airport Nov. 22. It was the start of a tragic day for her that ended with her husband's assassination. (AP Wirephoto)

East's opening bid of one notrump shows 16 to 18 points in high cards. South therefore knows that East has all of the missing picture cards together with the ace of spades.

NO PROBLEM

There is no problem if trumps break normally, but South may lose three trump tricks if East happens to have all four of the missing trumps.

Since this hand was part of the Global Par Hand Series of 1963, South knows that there is going to be a problem.

First, see what happens if South wins the opening lead and innocently returns the queen of spades.

EAST WINS

East wins with the king and returns a club.

Now South can lead the queen of hearts to force out the king. East returns a diamond.

Declarer gets to dummy with the jack of hearts to lead a trump, but East plays low and will later get two more trump tricks.

START EARLY

South must start early to lead trumps through East. After winning the first trick with the ace of clubs South must lead the queen of hearts to force out the king.

Back comes a diamond, and South wins and leads a heart to dummy's jack. This enables declarer to begin the trumps by leading a low trump through East.

East must play low, since South would have no further problem if East stepped up with a high trump. South wins with the ten of spades, and West's discard reveals the trump distribution.

South next leads the ace of hearts and ruffs in dummy! This enables him to lead dummy's last trump through East.

There is no way now for East to get more than his two high trumps.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid one club. The hand is not quite strong enough for an opening bid of one notrump.

QUESTION

East's opening bid of one notrump shows 16 to 18 points in high cards. South therefore knows that East has all of the missing picture cards together with the ace of spades.

NO PROBLEM

There is no problem if trumps break normally, but South may lose three trump tricks if East happens to have all four of the missing trumps.

Since this hand was part of the Global Par Hand Series of 1963, South knows that there is going to be a problem.

First, see what happens if South wins the opening lead and innocently returns the queen of spades.

EAST WINS

East wins with the king and returns a club.

Now South can lead the queen of hearts to force out the king. East returns a diamond.

Declarer gets to dummy with the jack of hearts to lead a trump, but East plays low and will later get two more trump tricks.

START EARLY

South must start early to lead trumps through East. After winning the first trick with the ace of clubs South must lead the queen of hearts to force out the king.

Back comes a diamond, and South wins and leads a heart to dummy's jack. This enables declarer to begin the trumps by leading a low trump through East.

East must play low, since South would have no further problem if East stepped up with a high trump. South wins with the ten of spades, and West's discard reveals the trump distribution.

South next leads the ace of hearts and ruffs in dummy! This enables him to lead dummy's last trump through East.

There is no way now for East to get more than his two high trumps.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

Marin Faces 1964 In A Mood For Progress

Perhaps it's only an illusion that 1963 has had more than its share of sad moments and inner misgivings. Every year seems in retrospect to be drawing to rather a mournful conclusion and unfortunately this is not merely a letdown from Christmas festivity; there are reasons for the feeling, yet such is man's capacity for hope that the thought of a fresh brand new year a-dawning is eternal uplift to the spirit.

We in Marin County were deeply conscious of sorrow and of error at a number of periods of the year just slipping away. It would avail nothing now to recall anything of the sort. What seems constructive is to realize thoughtfully that out of past mistakes, and from the counsel of community or national leaders who have departed, we have gained weapons with which to attack problems of our immediate future.

This county in general is more than ever awakened to the dangers of hodgepodge pell-mell growth in a period of rapidly increasing population.

Such planning in considerable degree centers on our county and city planning groups. And in this connection it is notable that within 1964 the county planning office may at last gain the services of a zoning administrator to speed things up and lift a burden of routine off the commission's back.

But planning must be regarded in the largest sense. For example, we decidedly must seek a sounder economic foundation in this predominately residential county, yet in so doing we must enhance rather than detract from Marin's superb natural attractions. The projected Stanford survey sponsored by Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker and financially aided by private interests as well as county taxpayers has immense possibilities. Better than ever before, we should soon be in position to see what industries and businesses naturally fit here; which can lighten the load of the property-owner without the drawbacks of heavy industry, and how we can attract such economic assets.

Marin participation both as a county, and through membership of cities, in the Association of Bay Area Governments is an implementation of planning on the regional scale. This is an essential to future cooperation.

It would not be surprising to see spectacular moves forward in the sphere of linking county and city governments, though any concept of a "City and County of Marin" seems a thing for the rather remote future. But such as is good about this idea certainly may be tackled. To reduce the number of our confusing, often costly, sometimes overlapping districts and similar units is a job fitting accurately into 1964 prospects.

Culturally Marin County is active and in many ways well favored. If there is any specific need in this field, perhaps it is for growth of some single larger cohesive enterprise such as the summer seminars at Aspen, Colorado. This idea might take root and flourish suddenly.

What has been mentioned touches only the surface. We all know our need for participation in rapid transit planning, even if necessary with our own Marin district. Problems of every sort are in evidence on local levels. The great point is that throughout the gamut of the responsibilities in this fast-growing county we find thoughtful, mostly well coordinated effort by people of both qualification and dedication.

On the human side we are so richly blessed—in parallel with our splendid environment—that 1964 cannot but pay great dividends in every constructive field.

Chilling Thought For The New Year

When the Corte Madera Town Council recently ended teen-age dances at the Recreation Center, complaint was made that the vital needs of hundreds of youngsters were being evaded. To be explicit, without their dances the coming generation wouldn't have "adequate weekly recreation."

It may come as quite a shock to some of our ballroom beaus and belles, but there are people now living who went through many long years of childhood practically deprived of "adequate recreation" weekly or otherwise except what they could drum up for themselves between chores. (Sometimes they made out pretty well at that.)

Still, even in Marin County a few home chores might be thought up as a useful substitute for some of our current organized recreational programs.

SACRAMENTO SLUMBERS QUIETLY

New Year By Calendar Doesn't Match New Fiscal Year

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The coming of the "minor" new year tomorrow is expected to pass quietly in the capitol. The bigger new year for state government begins on July 1. That's the start of a fiscal year when new budgets and many programs take effect.

The coming year is an election year and politicking is expected to begin early—certainly during the budget and special sessions of the California legislature in February.

While no state constitutional officers must run, all 80 members of the assembly and 20 of the 40 state senators are affected.

With the presidential election now somewhat of a wide open affair, campaigning was expected to begin early. There are reports of early scheduled opening of offices for Nelson Rockefeller and Henry Cabot Lodge.

SANTA CLAUS hardly had headed his sleigh back in the direction of the North Pole when the Department of Motor Vehicles, in annual holiday mood, mailed notices of registration to more than 9.5 million owners in the state. The renewal period runs until Feb. 4, after which penalties will be assessed.

Commercial vehicle owners will feel the bite of a 19 per cent increase in weight fees for registration. This was part of the bill approved in 1963 which increased the gasoline tax 1 cent a gallon as of Oct. 1. Higher weight fees take effect Jan. 1.

Passenger car owners got at least a one-year reprieve on another increase. The legislation provided the "in lieu" tax collected with registration fees could be increased 25 per cent by the counties, with the new money earmarked for rapid transit development. However, no counties took action to trigger the increased fees and they won't be charged for 1964.

THE NEW YEAR will find about three-fourths of the state's 130,000 employees getting pay raises.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown said the state must take steps "to stop the corrosive effect on state government of inadequate executive salaries."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Tailor Your Own Music Program!

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Much is said today about TV programs. The right and wrong for children. Not much is said however concerning the taste for adults and elderly citizens.

For my part I tried both TV and the radio with much disgust. It was right displeasing during the beautiful Christmas season to listen to some of the radio programs, "better stations" so-called.

After several kinds of soap ads, not to mention cigaretts and different kinds of liquor, we get a verse of a carol and more crude ads.

They tell me there is nothing we can do about it. I think there is. What's wrong with joining a record club? Invest in a nice stereo. There are all makes, all prices to suit all budgets.

That's what I did. Now I have hour after hour of beautiful music at the flip of five records at a time. Carols, classical, modern and even a good set of bagpipes.

Happy investment and a happy New Year.

County's Heliport Must Be Public

Editor, Independent-Journal:

We are pleased that helicopters have come to your attention and that you appear enthusiastic at the prospect of scheduled helicopter service to Marin. We are equally enthusiastic, but wish to clarify recent articles and editorials in the I-J.

Marin is not now becoming a home for whirly-birds, but has been home for over two years. Commodore Helicopters, Inc. was incorporated in November 1961 and received delivery of its first helicopter in March 1962. The State of California granted a heliport permit for our use on Dec. 18, 1961. It is this heliport, the Commodore Heliport, which has been proposed for improvement and operation as the Marin County Heliport.

Although desirous of increased helicopter activity in Marin, we hope that the proposed heliport will be so designed and built that it satisfies all safety requirements of the Federal Aviation Administration, and that the F.A.A. be brought in at an early stage of planning, long before final approval by the supervisors.

We are pleased that the supervisors have given their tentative approval for expenditures of funds for a county heliport, but feel that a county heliport must be public, not private.

A county heliport must be no different than a county airport; that is, it must be inclusive, not exclusive—it must invite rather than discourage general use—it must be open to all owners of helicopters at no charge or a nominal charge.

Unless the Marin County Heliport is indeed a public facility, it is as much a misappropriation of public funds as if the county built a parking garage for a car rental agency or a bus station for a bus company.

It is absolutely necessary that representatives of the county, the F.A.A., the land owners, and all interested parties thoroughly resolve these and other questions before final approval by the board of supervisors.

THE PIPE-SMOKING CLAN

By WICK TEMPLE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A pipe smoker is a lot like a porcupine. Sooner or later he's bound to make somebody mad.

Pipe smoking presents a new social problem for those who don't already have enough. If one's wife likes the smell of his tobacco, his boss can't stand it, or vice versa.

A pipe tobacco that suits everyone usually tastes like mud.

I HAVE BEEN a pipe afficionado for several years and have made an involuntary study of reactions of various people to the habit. Some politely cough. Others cry.

"Does this pipe bother you?" the smoker ask innocently."

"Oh no—(gasp), not at all."

Yet pipe smoking has its brighter side. Many women are enchanted by the smell and can't get close enough to the gentleman with the briar.

SMOKING a pipe progresses from an experiment to a habit to a hobby to an obsession. But hobby is the best word for it.

Every veteran pipe smoker takes pride in his rack. He may not have smoked certain pipes for years, and his wife badgers him to throw them out.

But each one holds certain sentimental significance.

THE ONE with the crooked stem and the lion carved on the bowl was bought in the mountains and dropped into a stream the day you caught that five-pound bass.

The yellow-stemmed pipe with the broken bit was given to you by your son on a Christmas long ago.

A Pennsylvania legislator, with time hanging heavy on his hands in Harrisburg one evening, came upon a disintegrating dog-eared pamphlet published after the turn of the century that set him up for hours. It was published by a no-doubt worthy outfit that called itself the Farmer's Anti-Automobile Society, and recommended several rules that motorists on rural roads would do well to follow.

One rule suggested that a car owner, propelling his vehicle after dark, should stop every mile, send up a warning rocket, and then wait for ten minutes to make certain that the road ahead was clear before advancing.

"If a horse is unwilling to pass an automobile," the Society declared on another page, "the driver should take the machine apart as rapidly as possible and conceal the parts in the bushes."

(Just as I finished getting this anecdote down on paper, Author Truman Capote came tootling up to our house in a Jaguar geared to do 150 miles an hour. What a 60 years these have been!)

Happy New Year And Hurry Up With Your Car License Fee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New Year brings a post-Christmas annual expense — automobile tags.

This is an item that has been going up generally, with more and more cities and towns getting into the act along with the states.

The top charges run as high as $72.95, in Oklahoma, and $69.35, in Minnesota. (California's basic registration fee is $8—plus 2 per cent of the car's assessed value. — EDITOR.)

A mass of information has been gathered about car tags by the American Automobile Assn. and the National Geographic Society.

FOR ONE thing, there seems to be a trend toward making the tags good for more than one year. Nineteen states now issue stickers or tabs instead of requiring an annual replacement of plates.

Also, more states each year are using reflective plates. These cost a little extra to make, how much depending on how many years they are supposed to last.

The average cost of manufacturing tags runs about 15 to 30 cents. Nearly all are made by prison labor. The size is now a standard 12 by 6 inches, after many years of variety.

VARIOUS STATES like to use the tags to advertise their special qualities or attractions.

Only infrequently is there any objection from car owners, but it was reported recently that one citizen threatened to go to court to prevent New York from advertising its world fair on his 1964 plates.

Registration of autos began in 1901, in New York State. The need was obvious — to help identify a car that was stolen or involved in an accident. At the beginning the revenue didn't amount to much—$1 a car.

THERE HAS ALWAYS been a special appeal in low numbers, these usually being reserved for top state officials. Peculiar combinations also are popular.

A Wisconsin man named Ole Lee managed to get plates numbered 337-370 which he put on upside down, to spell his name.

Heavyweight boxer Rocky Marciano once had the letters KO.

BY PAYING an extra fee Connecticut car owners have been allowed to get special combinations of four letters.

Two teen-aged friends had jalopies that sported rock and roll.

Sen. 'Conscience' Williams Decides To Quit Soon

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—Sen. John Williams, who sparked the sensational Robert G. (Bobby) Baker invesetigation and others equally explosive, is quitting at the end of his current term in January.

The 59-year-old Delaware Republican, whose quiet but dogged probing and exposes have earned him the unofficial title of "conscience of the Senate" and "one-man investigating committee," is telling friends he will not seek a fourth term. He was first elected in 1946.

Williams declines to discuss his future plans, but they involve a high private position.

WHILE PREPARING to wind up his long Senate career, Williams made it clear that will in no way affect his insistence on an all-out investigation of the business and other activities of "Bobby" Baker. In addition to the considerable information he has already turned over to the probers, Williams will submit new material he has uncovered.

Two other potentially highly explosive cases are being explored by Williams.

One involves conflict-of-interest charges against an important official of the foreign aid administration; the other, startling irregularities in a government agency.

WILLIAMS has specialized in exposing tax scandals. His reverberating disclosures rocked the administrations of Presidents Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy.

He played a prominent role in the Henry Gruenwald case, the Bernard Goldfine sensations that led to the resignation of White House assistant Sherman Adams, and the still-unfinished Billie Sol Estes affair.

It was Williams' disclosures that also forced out of office a State Department official who hadn't filed an income tax return for six years. Previously he had held an important office in the Treasury Department.

A HOUSE Judiciary Subcommittee has documentary evidence that Lee Oswald, slayer of President Kennedy, swore allegiance to Communist Russia.

The assassin did that on Nov. 2, 1959 in the U. S. embassy in Moscow.

A State Department report states that on that day, "Oswald swore to the following affidavit: 'I affirm that my allegiance is to the Soviet Socialist Republic.' He requested that his American citizenship be revoked."

In the files of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee is other information that may shed significant light on this tragic murder.

ON AUG. 27, 1960, Senator Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., vice chairman was questioning Arthur Gardner, former Ambassador to Cuba, on the Communist threat in the Caribbean. A transcript of their discussion contains the following:

Dodd: "Did you once see a picture of Fidel Castro with a telescopic rifle, boasting that he could kill a man at a thousand yards?"

Gardner: "Someone told me about that. I never saw the photograph myself."

Marin Faces 1964 In A Mood For Progress

Perhaps it's only an illusion that 1963 has had more than its share of sad moments and inner misgivings. Every year seems in retrospect to be drawing to rather a mournful conclusion and unfortunately this is not merely a letdown from Christmas festivity; there are reasons for the feeling, yet such is man's capacity for hope that the thought of a fresh brand new year a-dawning is eternal uplift to the spirit.

We in Marin County were deeply conscious of sorrow and of error at a number of periods of the year just slipping away. It would avail nothing now to recall anything of the sort. What seems constructive is to realize thoughtfully that out of past mistakes, and from the counsel of community or national leaders who have departed, we have gained weapons with which to attack problems of our immediate future.

This county in general is more than ever awakened to the dangers of hodgepodge pell-mell growth in a period of rapidly increasing population.

Such planning in considerable degree centers on our county and city planning groups. And in this connection it is notable that within 1964 the county planning office may at last gain the services of a zoning administrator to speed things up and lift a burden of routine off the commission's back.

But planning must be regarded in the largest sense. For example, we decidedly must seek a sounder economic foundation in this predominately residential county, yet in so doing we must enhance rather than detract from Marin's superb natural attractions. The projected Stanford survey sponsored by Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker and financially aided by private interests as well as county taxpayers has immense possibilities. Better than ever before, we should soon be in position to see what industries and businesses naturally fit here; which can lighten the load of the property-owner without the drawbacks of heavy industry, and how we can attract such economic assets.

Marin participation both as a county, and through membership of cities, in the Association of Bay Area Governments is an implementation of planning on the regional scale. This is an essential to future cooperation.

It would not be surprising to see spectacular moves forward in the sphere of linking county and city governments, though any concept of a "City and County of Marin" seems a thing for the rather remote future. But such as is good about this idea certainly may be tackled. To reduce the number of our confusing, often costly, sometimes overlapping districts and similar units is a job fitting accurately into 1964 prospects.

Culturally Marin County is active and in many ways well favored. If there is any specific need in this field, perhaps it is for growth of some single larger cohesive enterprise such as the summer seminars at Aspen, Colorado. This idea might take root and flourish suddenly.

What has been mentioned touches only the surface. We all know our need for participation in rapid transit planning, even if necessary with our own Marin district. Problems of every sort are in evidence on local levels. The great point is that throughout the gamut of the responsibilities in this fast-growing county we find thoughtful, mostly well coordinated effort by people of both qualification and dedication.

On the human side we are so richly blessed—in parallel with our splendid environment—that 1964 cannot but pay great dividends in every constructive field.

Chilling Thought For The New Year

When the Corte Madera Town Council recently ended teen-age dances at the Recreation Center, complaint was made that the vital needs of hundreds of youngsters were being evaded. To be explicit, without their dances the coming generation wouldn't have "adequate weekly recreation."

It may come as quite a shock to some of our ballroom beaus and belles, but there are people now living who went through many long years of childhood practically deprived of "adequate recreation" weekly or otherwise except what they could drum up for themselves between chores. (Sometimes they made out pretty well at that.)

Still, even in Marin County a few home chores might be thought up as a useful substitute for some of our current organized recreational programs.

SACRAMENTO SLUMBERS QUIETLY

New Year By Calendar Doesn't Match New Fiscal Year

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The coming of the "minor" new year tomorrow is expected to pass quietly in the capitol. The bigger new year for state government begins on July 1. That's the start of a fiscal year when new budgets and many programs take effect.

The coming year is an election year and politicking is expected to begin early—certainly during the budget and special sessions of the California legislature in February.

While no state constitutional officers must run, all 80 members of the assembly and 20 of the 40 state senators are affected.

With the presidential election now somewhat of a wide open affair, campaigning was expected to begin early. There are reports of early scheduled opening of offices for Nelson Rockefeller and Henry Cabot Lodge.

SANTA CLAUS hardly had headed his sleigh back in the direction of the North Pole when the Department of Motor Vehicles, in annual holiday mood, mailed notices of registration to more than 9.5 million owners in the state. The renewal period runs until Feb. 4, after which penalties will be assessed.

Commercial vehicle owners will feel the bite of a 19 per cent increase in weight fees for registration. This was part of the bill approved in 1963 which increased the gasoline tax 1 cent a gallon as of Oct. 1. Higher weight fees take effect Jan. 1.

Passenger car owners got at least a one-year reprieve on another increase. The legislation provided the "in lieu" tax collected with registration fees could be increased 25 per cent by the counties, with the new money earmarked for rapid transit development. However, no counties took action to trigger the increased fees and they won't be charged for 1964.

THE NEW YEAR will find about three-fourths of the state's 130,000 employees getting pay raises.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown said the state must take steps "to stop the corrosive effect on state government of inadequate executive salaries."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Much is said today about TV programs. The right and wrong for children. Not much is said however concerning the taste for adults and elderly citizens.

For my part I tried both TV and the radio with much disgust. It was right displeasing during the beautiful Christmas season to listen to some of the radio programs, "better stations" so-called.

After several kinds of soap ads, not to mention cigaretts and different kinds of liquor, we get a verse of a carol and more crude ads.

They tell me there is nothing we can do about it. I think there is. What's wrong with joining a record club? Invest in a nice stereo. There are all makes, all prices to suit all budgets.

That's what I did. Now I have hour after hour of beautiful music at the flip of five records at a time. Carols, classical, modern and even a good set of bagpipes.

Happy investment and a happy New Year.

County's Heliport Must Be Public

Editor, Independent-Journal:

We are pleased that helicopters have come to your attention and that you appear enthusiastic at the prospect of scheduled helicopter service to Marin. We are equally enthusiastic, but wish to clarify recent articles and editorials in the I-J.

Marin is not now becoming a home for whirly-birds, but has been home for over two years. Commodore Helicopters, Inc. was incorporated in November 1961 and received delivery of its first helicopter in March 1962. The State of California granted a heliport permit for our use on Dec. 18, 1961. It is this heliport, the Commodore Heliport, which has been proposed for improvement and operation as the Marin County Heliport.

Although desirous of increased helicopter activity in Marin, we hope that the proposed heliport will be so designed and built that it satisfies all safety requirements of the Federal Aviation Administration, and that the F.A.A. be brought in at an early stage of planning, long before final approval by the supervisors.

We are pleased that the supervisors have given their tentative approval for expenditures of funds for a county heliport, but feel that a county heliport must be public, not private.

A county heliport must be no different than a county airport; that is, it must be inclusive, not exclusive—it must invite rather than discourage general use—it must be open to all owners of helicopters at no charge or a nominal charge.

Unless the Marin County Heliport is indeed a public facility, it is as much a misappropriation of public funds as if the county built a parking garage for a car rental agency or a bus station for a bus company.

It is absolutely necessary that representatives of the county, the F.A.A., the land owners, and all interested parties thoroughly resolve these and other questions before final approval by the board of supervisors.

THE PIPE-SMOKING CLAN

By WICK TEMPLE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A pipe smoker is a lot like a porcupine. Sooner or later he's bound to make somebody mad.

Pipe smoking presents a new social problem for those who don't already have enough. If one's wife likes the smell of his tobacco, his boss can't stand it, or vice versa.

I HAVE BEEN a pipe aficionado for several years and have made an involuntary study of reactions of various people to the habit. Some politely cough. Others cry.

"Does this pipe bother you?" the smoker ask innocently."

"Oh no—(gasp), not at all."

Yet pipe smoking has its brighter side. Many women are enchanted by the smell and can't get close enough to the gentleman with the briar.

SMOKING a pipe progresses from an experiment to a habit to a hobby to an obsession. But hobby is the best word for it.

Every veteran pipe smoker takes pride in his rack. He may not have smoked certain pipes for years, and his wife badgers him to throw them out.

But each one holds certain sentimental significance.

THE ONE with the crooked stem and the lion carved on the bowl was bought in the mountains and dropped into a stream the day you caught that five-pound bass.

The yellow-stemmed pipe with the broken bit was given to you by your son on a Christmas long ago.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

New Year Tip On Meetings—If Nausea Strikes, Take A Pill

HAVING SAT through many long city council meetings, I have a few opinions of them that wouldn't stand printing.

To some people, they not only become disgusting, but a little sickening.

I thought that it must be only those who had to sit through them listening to the endless talk that felt that way, but I learned the other night that this is not necessarily so.

NOVATO City Administrator J. Julien Baget went out of the council meeting and made a phone call. The police log read that he requested one of the officers to get some medication for the council.

Officer Walt Weidauer came into the council chambers and handed Baget a small package. He in turn handed it to one of the councilmen.

As the package went from hand to hand, one could see it was a roll of a well-known anti-acid stomach pills. Proof enough of the effect of the meeting.

ALTON LERCH, Novato's historian, suggested to the city that instead of having two police officers ride around town, one driving and one marking car tires in two-hour parking zones, the council should get a motor-tricycle for handling the same job with one person.

Then a "motorized housewife" could be hired at smaller salary to do the job of two policemen.

LAST WEEK the Novato Police Department received notification of awards it won in the H. O. Peters Memorial Shooting Match held last September. This is a match among the various law enforcement agencies in Marin County, named after a man who was rangemaster for many years.

Officer Gene Clayton won first in expert marksmanship. Sgt. Maurice Lafferty won fourth in the same match. Former Chief Roy McLaren won first place in the master's shoot. Acting Police Chief Sgt. Robert Di Grazia won sixth place in the same master's shoot.

This is a good record for a department of Novato's size. Did any other department in the county win more awards than Novato?

WHEN THIS appears, the old year will be fading and the new year approaching fast. The holiday season came on us quicker than usual this year, it seemed.

At this time last year, the world was still recovering from a bad case of "Cuban jitters." We had just finished telling Russia to pull its atomic missiles and troops out of Cuba, or else.

The world was prepared for the "or else." Russia pulled out her missiles but not her troops. We have kinda overlooked the fact that they are there.

So with the world running along on a much smoother basis, us feeding the Russians and all that, we predict that there won't be any major war in the next year and that the little "brush wars" will quiet down some.

In the spirit of the season —happy holidays!

Good Writing Is Major Goal

By GEORGE W. NEILL

Education News Service

What can be done to improve the current low quality of written English in this country?

If this were done, students would be constantly reminded of the necessity for clear, effective, written expression. Every subject to which they are exposed would become an exercise in English.

To accomplish this goal, teachers would need more time to go over written work. Classes would have to be smaller.

In other words, Fischer said, a first-class job of teaching good writing would add considerable expense to the current school program.

NEIGHBOR ACROSS THE GATE

San Francisco Changes Are Not All For The Best

By HAROLD V. STREETER

Let's have a closer look.

NOW ABOUT those cable cars: at the turn of the century, 13 lines sent dozens of them clucking and clanging over the hills.

Today there are 27 cars in daily service. And they are one big financial headache.

All repairs and all spare parts have to be homemade. It would be cheaper to use buses. A hard core of defenders, known as the Citizens' Committee to Save the Cable Cars, stands firm at the turntables just daring anybody to junk them.

BRIDGES: More than 21 million car trips are checked off yearly at the toll gates of the 4,200-foot 35-million-dollar Golden Gate Bridge. More than 40 million are recorded over the 8¼-mile 77.2-million-dollar San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

But there's another side of the picture. They doomed a city approach which was relaxed and eye-gripping — the ferries. And patrolmen are busy trying to keep people from jumping off them. Since the Bay Bridge opened in 1936 and the Golden Gate in 1937, the known total death leaps exceed 300. It's an unavoidable price of progress.

The Red Chinese "bamboo curtain" being what it is, chances are you will read: "Made in Japan."

OVER AT Fisherman's Wharf, only the wharf stays the same. The fish and the men change.

Time was when the bay shrimp were so succulent and distinctive that maestro Arthur Fiedler swore he could tell by the taste the difference between North Bay and South Bay shrimp. He can't any more. The bay shrimp vanished.

There's one other thing. If you are talking about a railroad, okay; but if about the city—don't call it 'Frisco.

New Arithmetic Texts Coming In California

California public school students will learn arithmetic a new way, probably beginning in September—but they won't learn it from the same textbook.

Youngsters in Grades 1 through 6 will all be given the same text at a particular level, but in Grades 7 and 8 as many as three books may be issued in the same class: one for fast learners, one for average students and one for those of lower ability.

Although the California Curriculum Commission, meeting in Hollywood in November, compromised its desire for an all-grades multi-track system in mathematics, the adoptions for Grades 7 and 8 not only set a precedent for future adoptions in all subjects, but will allow school officials to work out administrative kinks with only a part of the elementary school population involved.

In addition to the mathematics texts, the commission also adopted history and geography texts for Grade 4. Although two basic texts were adopted in each subject, this was not a "track" adoption for different ability levels. It was a compromise solution to an impasse between two commission members, each adamantly holding out for the adoption of a specific book.

The Grade 4 history books chosen are "California's Own History" by Century Schoolbook, and "California: A History" by Harr-Wagner. The geography books are "California: Our State Today" by Ginn and Co., and "California and the West" by the Fideler Co. The adoption was made for from four to eight years.

Kennedy Desired Education Aid

Three days before he fell victim to an assassin's bullet in Dallas, the late President Kennedy received a group of educators in the rose garden of the White House and gave them renewed assurance of confidence that by next summer Congress will complete action on the broad program of federal aid to education which he had repeatedly proposed.

The president expressed to the group his appreciation of support "for what I regard as a very pressing national obligation and responsibility in the field of education."

Novato Sends Invitations For Birthday

The City of Novato has sent out nearly 100 invitations to the City Hall dedication on the fourth anniversary of its incorporation from 1:30 to 5 p.m. on Jan. 19, according to City Administrator J. Julien Baget.

Tentative plans call for State Sen. Joseph A. Rattigan of Sonoma County to deliver the dedicatory address. State Sen. John F. McCarthy and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, both of San Rafael, will also make short addresses.

Also scheduled to appear on the program are the 573rd Air Force band and Flying Rifles drill team, both from Hamilton Air Force Base. The Marin County Historical Society will have an exhibit of historical items at the Community House during the dedication.

College Of Marin Building Subject Of Radio Panel

A proposed building program for College of Marin will be the topic on radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board" at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Kitty Oppenheimer is moderator. The program will be rebroadcast at 12:30 p.m. Sunday from a tape recording.

Drake Sends $160 To Sister School

Sir Francis Drake High School students sent $160 at Christmas to La Villa Escalentes, Drake's sister-school in Chapyltepec, Mexico. This money was raised by the School Aid Committee, headed by Louise Lepley, and under direction of Spanish teacher Glenn Reznor.

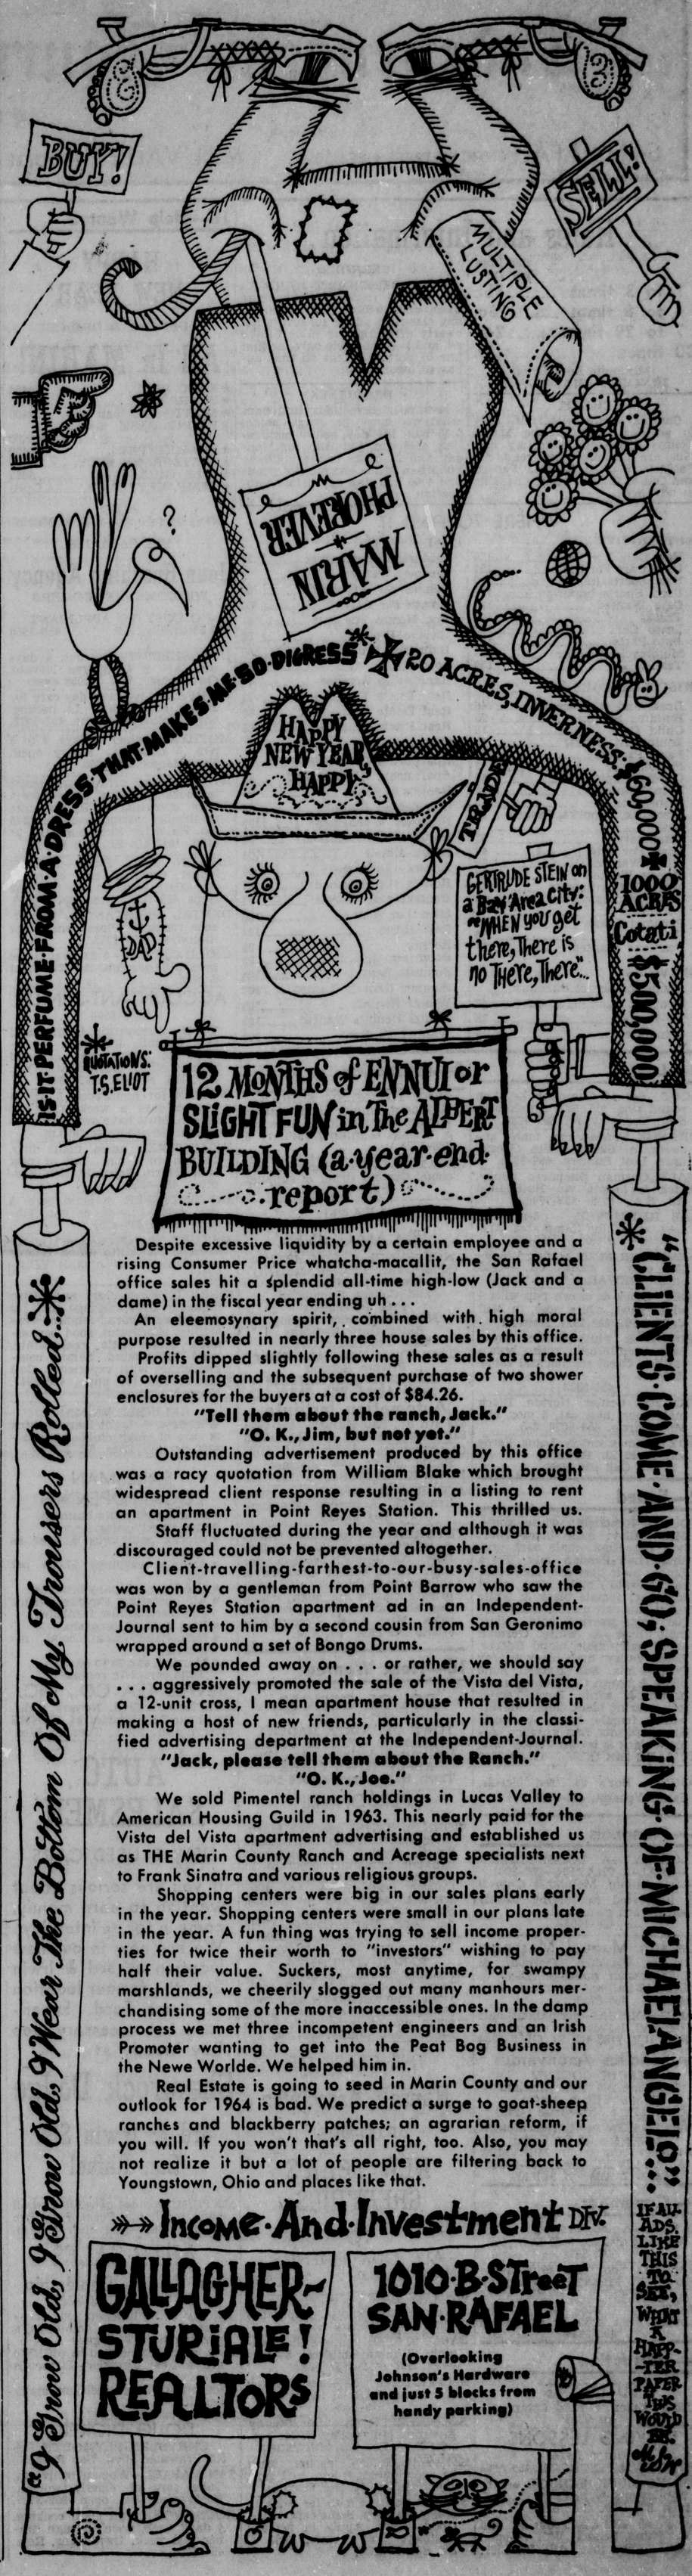
In the past four years, Drake has sent over $500 to this school for the purchase of furniture, school supplies and improvements on the building itself. The donations and contributions have also made possible a regular distribution of milk, and vitamins.

Bulb Breakers Held

Three teen-age boys who said they liked the sound of breaking light bulbs, were apprehended by Novato police for stealing the bulbs from eight homes in the Pastel Lane area over the weekend. The boys, two aged 15 and one, 16, were placed in Juvenile Hall.



Despite excessive liquidity by a certain employee and a rising Consumer Price whatcha-macallit, the San Rafael office sales hit a splendid all-time high-low (Jack and a dame) in the fiscal year ending uh . . .

An eleemosynary spirit, combined with high moral purpose resulted in nearly three house sales by this office.

Profits dipped slightly following these sales as a result of overselling and the subsequent purchase of two shower enclosures for the buyers at a cost of $84.26.

"Tell them about the ranch, Jack."

"O. K., Jim, but not yet."

Outstanding advertisement produced by this office was a racy quotation from William Blake which brought widespread client response resulting in a listing to rent an apartment in Point Reyes Station. This thrilled us.

Staff fluctuated during the year and although it was discouraged could not be prevented altogether.

Client-travelling-farthest-to-our-busy-sales-office was won by a gentleman from Point Barrow who saw the Point Reyes Station apartment ad in an Independent-Journal sent to him by a second cousin from San Geronimo wrapped around a set of Bongo Drums.

We pounded away on . . . or rather, we should say . . . aggressively promoted the sale of the Vista del Vista, a 12-unit cross, I mean apartment house that resulted in making a host of new friends, particularly in the classified advertising department at the Independent-Journal.

"Jack, please tell them about the Ranch."

"O. K., Joe."

We sold Pimentel ranch holdings in Lucas Valley to American Housing Guild in 1963. This nearly paid for the Vista del Vista apartment advertising and established us as THE Marin County Ranch and Acreage specialists next to Frank Sinatra and various religious groups.

Shopping centers were big in our sales plans early in the year. Shopping centers were small in our plans late in the year. A fun thing was trying to sell income properties for twice their worth to "investors" wishing to pay half their value. Suckers, most anytime, for swampy marshlands, we cheerily slogged out many manhours merchandising some of the more inaccessible ones. In the damp process we met three incompetent engineers and an Irish Promoter wanting to get into the Peat Bog Business in the Newe Worlde. We helped him in.

Real Estate is going to seed in Marin County and our outlook for 1964 is bad. We predict a surge to goat-sheep ranches and blackberry patches; an agrarian reform, if you will. If you won't that's all right, too. Also, you may not realize it but a lot of people are filtering back to Youngstown, Ohio and places like that.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

New Year Tip On Meetings—If Nausea Strikes, Take A Pill

HAVING SAT through many long city council meetings, I have a few opinions of them that wouldn't stand printing.

Some of them get entirely out of hand and go on and on and on.

To some people, they not only become disgusting, but a little sickening.

I thought that it must be only those who had to sit through them listening to the endless talk that felt that way, but I learned the other night that this is not necessarily so.

NOVATO City Administrator J. Julien Baget went out of the council meeting and made a phone call. The police log read that he requested one of the officers to get some medication for the council.

Officer Walt Weidauer came into the council chambers and handed Baget a small package. He in turn handed it to one of the councilmen.

As the package went from hand to hand, one could see it was a roll of a well-known anti-acid stomach pills. Proof enough of the effect of the meeting.

ALTON LERCH, Novato's historian, suggested to the city that instead of having two police officers ride around town, one driving and one marking car tires in two-hour parking zones, the council should get a motor-tricycle for handling the same job with one person.

Then a "motorized housewife" could be hired at smaller salary to do the job of two policemen.

LAST WEEK the Novato Police Department received notification of awards it won in the H. O. Peters Memorial Shooting Match held last September. This is a match among the various law enforcement agencies in Marin County, named after a man who was rangemaster for many years.

Officer Gene Clayton won first in expert marksmanship. Sgt. Maurice Lafferty won fourth in the same match. Former Chief Roy McLaren won first place in the master's shoot. Acting Police Chief Sgt. Robert Di Grazia won sixth place in the same master's shoot.

This is a good record for a department of Novato's size. Did any other department in the county win more awards than Novato?

WHEN THIS appears, the old year will be fading and the new year approaching fast. The holiday season came on us quicker than usual this year, it seemed.

Houses and streets suddenly were festooned with festive decorations.

At this time last year, the world was still recovering from a bad case of "Cuban jitters." We had just finished telling Russia to pull its atomic missiles and troops out of Cuba, or else.

The world was prepared for the "or else." Russia pulled out her missiles but not her troops. We have kinda overlooked the fact that they are there.

So with the world running along on a much smoother basis, us feeding the Russians and all that, we predict that there won't be any major war in the next year and that the little "brush wars" will quiet down some.

In the spirit of the season —happy holidays!

Good Writing Is Major Goal

By GEORGE W. NEILL

Education News Service

What can be done to improve the current low quality of written English in this country?

Good writing, he declared, should be an integral part of every course in school — not just in English classes!

Teachers in social studies, science and math, for example, should demand good writing by their students.

If this were done, students would be constantly reminded of the necessity for clear, effective, written expression. Every subject to which they are exposed would become an exercise in English.

To accomplish this goal, teachers would need more time to go over written work. Classes would have to be smaller.

In other words, Fischer said, a first-class job of teaching good writing would add considerable expense to the current school program.

NEIGHBOR ACROSS THE GATE

San Francisco Changes Are Not All For The Best

By HAROLD V. STREETER

Even Soviet Premier Khrushchev fell in love with the city by the Golden Gate, spawned back in 1849 by a capitalistic rush for gold.

Let's have a closer look.

NOW ABOUT those cable cars: at the turn of the century, 13 lines sent dozens of them clucking and clanging over the hills.

Today there are 27 cars in daily service. And they are one big financial headache.

All repairs and all spare parts have to be homemade. It would be cheaper to use buses. A hard core of defenders, known as the Citizens' Committee to Save the Cable Cars, stands firm at the turntables just daring anybody to junk them.

BRIDGES: More than 21 million car trips are checked off yearly at the toll gates of the 4,200-foot 35-million-dollar Golden Gate Bridge. More than 40 million are recorded over the 8¼-mile 77.2-million-dollar San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

They're a life-blood trade artery, no question about that.

But there's another side of the picture. They doomed a city approach which was relaxed and eye-gripping — the ferries. And patrolmen are busy trying to keep people from jumping off them. Since the Bay Bridge opened in 1936 and the Golden Gate in 1937, the known total death leaps exceed 300. It's an unavoidable price of progress.

A couple of million poured more than 115 million dollars in tourist money into San Francisco this year.

But if you stop in a Chinatown store to pack off an oriental tidbit as a souvenir, turn it over and look at the bottom.

The Red Chinese "bamboo curtain" being what it is, chances are you will read: "Made in Japan."

OVER AT Fisherman's Wharf, only the wharf stays the same. The fish and the men change.

Time was when the bay shrimp were so succulent and distinctive that maestro Arthur Fiedler swore he could tell by the taste the difference between North Bay and South Bay shrimp. He can't any more. The bay shrimp vanished.

There's one other thing. If you are talking about a railroad, okay; but if about the city—don't call it 'Frisco.

New Arithmetic Texts Coming In California

California public school students will learn arithmetic a new way, probably beginning in September—but they won't learn it from the same textbook.

Youngsters in Grades 1 through 6 will all be given the same text at a particular level, but in Grades 7 and 8 as many as three books may be issued in the same class: one for fast learners, one for average students and one for those of lower ability.

Although the California Curriculum Commission, meeting in Hollywood in November, compromised its desire for an all-grades multi-track system in mathematics, the adoptions for Grades 7 and 8 not only set a precedent for future adoptions in all subjects, but will allow school officials to work out administrative kinks with only a part of the elementary school population involved.

In addition to the mathematics texts, the commission also adopted history and geography texts for Grade 4. Although two basic texts were adopted in each subject, this was not a "track" adoption for different ability levels. It was a compromise solution to an impasse between two commission members, each adamantly holding out for the adoption of a specific book.

The Grade 4 history books chosen are "California's Own History" by Century Schoolbook, and "California: A History" by Harr-Wagner. The geography books are "California: Our State Today" by Ginn and Co., and "California and the West" by the Fideler Co. The adoption was made for from four to eight years.

Kennedy Desired Education Aid

Three days before he fell victim to an assassin's bullet in Dallas, the late President Kennedy received a group of educators in the rose garden of the White House and gave them renewed assurance of confidence that by next summer Congress will complete action on the broad program of federal aid to education which he had repeatedly proposed.

The president expressed to the group his appreciation of support "for what I regard as a very pressing national obligation and responsibility in the field of education."

President Kennedy's successor President Lyndon B. Johnson is a former school teacher.

Novato Sends Invitations For Birthday

The City of Novato has sent out nearly 100 invitations to the City Hall dedication on the fourth anniversary of its incorporation from 1:30 to 5 p.m. on Jan. 19, according to City Administrator J. Julien Baget.

Tentative plans call for State Sen. Joseph A. Rattigan of Sonoma County to deliver the dedicatory address. State Sen. John F. McCarthy and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, both of San Rafael, will also make short addresses.

Also scheduled to appear on the program are the 573rd Air Force band and Flying Rifles drill team, both from Hamilton Air Force Base. The Marin County Historical Society will have an exhibit of historical items at the Community House during the dedication.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Here Is Main Reason Why Older Persons Sometimes Lose Height

VAN DELLEN

Osteoporosis is one of the main reasons for shrinkage or loss of height in older persons. This bone condition is common after age 65. There are an estimated four million victims in the United States, and the majority are women.

The exact nature of the disease is not fully understood except that there is a gradual reduction in the total bone mass. Loss of calcium from the body causes this hard tissue to become porous, thin, and weak. Diminution of the vertebral bodies, as they compress one another while bearing the weight of the upper part of the body, may cause severe backache at the level of the diaphragm. Involvement of other bones, such as the hips, often leads to fracture.

BONY TISSUE is alive and active; new bone cells form as old cells melt away and calcium is reabsorbed by the blood. Osteoporosis ensues when bone resorption outstrips the laying down of new bone.

A deficiency of sex hormones was blamed at one time, because the process usually developed years after the menopause. Modern views are that calcium is lost from the bone because the circulation is affected or too little calcium is consumed in the daily diet.

OSTEOPOROSIS develops from disuse as in the bedridden or when an extremity is paralyzed or put in a cast. In these instances, nonfunctioning of the muscles curtails circulation to the bones. The high incidence of the disease among the elderly may be explained by lifetime sedentary occupations, the use of labor saving devices, and riding instead of walking.

On the other hand, many afflicted persons respond to additional calcium in the diet. Backache disappears, and X-rays show improvement in bone structure. Here, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. The calcium deficiency usually is of long duration, and bone changes appear in time.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

AVOIDING COLDS

L. S. writes: How can the throat be made strong so I won't catch cold?

REPLY

By increasing over-all resistance through getting ample sleep and exercise, eating balanced meals, practicing cleanliness, and avoiding excesses and other persons with colds. If your tonsils and adenoids are infected, have this condition treated.

GETS TRAIN SICK

Mrs. A. M. writes: My husband hates to take me with him on his trips by train because the ride always makes me sick. Do you think it would help not to eat beforehand?

REPLY

Yes, but why not ask your physician for a prescription for motion sickness pills? Meanwhile, send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on motion sickness.

HEART AND KIDNEYS

J. T. writes: Does Kidney function influence the heart in any way, or vice versa?

REPLY

Yes. Kidneys that do not function properly will raise the blood pressure which in turn causes enlargement of the heart. A failing heart also influences the excretion of salt from the kidneys, leading to dropsy.

CONTINUED SECRETIONS

Mrs. W. writes: What causes fluid to continue after a baby is weaned?

REPLY

Occasionally women harbor small amounts of milk in the breast for years. The cause may be too much pituitary secretion or abnormal stimulation. In general, the condition does no harm.

Sausalito Little Theater Plans Six Prize Winners

Sausalito Little Theater will present six prize-winning one-act plays during its third annual original drama workshop opening Jan. 10 and 11 and to be produced also on the two succeeding weekends.

"The Preacher" and "Snakes," both by Jackson Burgess of Berkeley, and "Majorcan Games" by Caryl De Faria of Orinda will be given Friday, Jan. 10.

On Saturday, Jan. 11, the plays are "Capriccio" by D. J. Coombs of San Francisco, "Old Folks At Home" by Mark Berman of Madison, Wis., and "New York City: Songs and the Dream Syndrome" by Bruce Feld of New York.

"The Preacher," a realistic study of conflict between two men, is directed by Emile Waldteufel of Mill Valley. The cast includes Missy Camp, Miles Merians, John Peebles and John Vigurs.

"Snakes," a comic exploration of the nature of truth, is being directed by Albert J. Simon of San Francisco and includes a cast of Missy Camp, Gay Eason, Dave Regal and Vigurs.

Abe Kalish, chairman of the drama workshop, will direct "Majorcan Games," a satiric comedy of European and American values. In the cast are Marian Bjork, Pat Bond, Dan Coleman, Greg Landers, Helen Mendez, Miles Merians, Hank Thurston and Waldteufel.

Waldteufel also will direct "Capriccio," which, in an experimental, fugue-like form, analyzes cross-effects of human personalities. Miss Bond, Nancy Baker, Landers, Jack Napton, Harold Rogers, Jack Towell and Waldteufel are in the cast.

"Old Folks At Home," directed by Brad Burris of Mill Valley, is a philosophical treatment of the themes of aging and death and the cast includes Merians, Peter Pike, Rogers, Charles Uhl and Vigurs.

"New York City: Songs and the Dream Syndrome" is, in form, the most experimental of the plays. It combines farce and bitter satire, prose and verse in, as the author says, "a review of our dilemma."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Osteoporosis is one of the main reasons for shrinkage or loss of height in older persons. This bone condition is common after age 65. There are an estimated four million victims in the United States, and the majority are women.

The exact nature of the disease is not fully understood except that there is a gradual reduction in the total bone mass. Loss of calcium from the body causes this hard tissue to become porous, thin, and weak. Diminution of the vertebral bodies, as they compress one another while bearing the weight of the upper part of the body, may cause severe backache at the level of the diaphragm. Involvement of other bones, such as the hips, often leads to fracture.

BONY TISSUE is alive and active; new bone cells form as old cells melt away and calcium is reabsorbed by the blood. Osteoporosis ensues when bone resorption outstrips the laying down of new bone.

A deficiency of sex hormones was blamed at one time, because the process usually developed years after the menopause. Modern views are that calcium is lost from the bone because the circulation is affected or too little calcium is consumed in the daily diet.

OSTEOPOROSIS develops from disuse as in the bedridden or when an extremity is paralyzed or put in a cast. In these instances, nonfunctioning of the muscles curtails circulation to the bones. The high incidence of the disease among the elderly may be explained by lifetime sedentary occupations, the use of labor saving devices, and riding instead of walking.

On the other hand, many afflicted persons respond to additional calcium in the diet. Backache disappears, and X-rays show improvement in bone structure. Here, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. The calcium deficiency usually is of long duration, and bone changes appear in time.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

AVOIDING COLDS

L. S. writes: How can the throat be made strong so I won't catch cold?

REPLY

By increasing over-all resistance through getting ample sleep and exercise, eating balanced meals, practicing cleanliness, and avoiding excesses and other persons with colds. If your tonsils and adenoids are infected, have this condition treated.

GETS TRAIN SICK

Mrs. A. M. writes: My husband hates to take me with him on his trips by train because the ride always makes me sick. Do you think it would help not to eat beforehand?

REPLY

Yes, but why not ask your physician for a prescription for motion sickness pills? Meanwhile, send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on motion sickness.

HEART AND KIDNEYS

J. T. writes: Does Kidney function influence the heart in any way, or vice versa?

REPLY

Yes. Kidneys that do not function properly will raise the blood pressure which in turn causes enlargement of the heart. A failing heart also influences the excretion of salt from the kidneys, leading to dropsy.

CONTINUED SECRETIONS

Mrs. W. writes: What causes fluid to continue after a baby is weaned?

REPLY

Occasionally women harbor small amounts of milk in the breast for years. The cause may be too much pituitary secretion or abnormal stimulation. In general, the condition does no harm.

Sausalito Little Theater Plans Six Prize Winners

Sausalito Little Theater will present six prize-winning one-act plays during its third annual original drama workshop opening Jan. 10 and 11 and to be produced also on the two succeeding weekends.

"The Preacher" and "Snakes," both by Jackson Burgess of Berkeley, and "Majorcan Games" by Caryl De Faria of Orinda will be given Friday, Jan. 10.

On Saturday, Jan. 11, the plays are "Capriccio" by D. J. Coombs of San Francisco, "Old Folks At Home" by Mark Berman of Madison, Wis., and "New York City: Songs and the Dream Syndrome" by Bruce Feld of New York.

"The Preacher," a realistic study of conflict between two men, is directed by Emile Waldteufel of Mill Valley. The cast includes Missy Camp, Miles Merians, John Peebles and John Vigurs.

"Snakes," a comic exploration of the nature of truth, is being directed by Albert J. Simon of San Francisco and includes a cast of Missy Camp, Gay Eason, Dave Regal and Vigurs.

Abe Kalish, chairman of the drama workshop, will direct "Majorcan Games," a satiric comedy of European and American values. In the cast are Marian Bjork, Pat Bond, Dan Coleman, Greg Landers, Helen Mendez, Miles Merians, Hank Thurston and Waldteufel.

Waldteufel also will direct "Capriccio," which, in an experimental, fugue-like form, analyzes cross-effects of human personalities. Miss Bond, Nancy Baker, Landers, Jack Napton, Harold Rogers, Jack Towell and Waldteufel are in the cast.

"Old Folks At Home," directed by Brad Burris of Mill Valley, is a philosophical treatment of the themes of aging and death and the cast includes Merians, Peter Pike, Rogers, Charles Uhl and Vigurs.

"New York City: Songs and the Dream Syndrome" is, in form, the most experimental of the plays. It combines farce and bitter satire, prose and verse in, as the author says, "a review of our dilemma." Kalish of Sausalito is director.

Six-Star Rank For MacArthur

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate clerks said yesterday that eight other senators have become co-sponsors of a bill by Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), which would give Gen. Douglas MacArthur six-star rank.

Symington introduced the legislation Dec. 18 and asked that it remain on the Senate calendar for co-sponsors until Jan. 15.

The bill will go to the Senate Armed Services Committee after mid-January.

Pope To Meet Patriarch Jan. 5

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI and Athenagoras I, patriarch of the Eastern Orthodox Church, will meet in Jerusalem Jan. 5 during the pontiff's pilgrimage to the Holy Land, Vatican sources said yesterday.

High vatican sources said the meeting would take place on the Mount of Olives, just outside the walls of the ancient city where Christ was crucified.

The exact site of the historic encounter was not specified but it was expected to be at the Garden of Gethsemane, where Christ was arrested after his betrayal by Judas.

Lions Roar At 8

The Corte Madera Lions Club New Year's Eve party at the recreation center on Tamalpais Drive will begin at 8 p.m. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. with a buffet dinner served at midnight.

Peace Group Slates China Film Showing

"China Under Communism" will be one of three world problem films to be shown Thursday and Friday by the Marin Peace Information Center.

The program will be shown Thursday at the Mill Valley Community Church, Throckmorton Avenue and Olive Street, and Friday at the Fairfax Community Church, 2398 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. Other films on the program will be about southern Italy and the United Nations.

Americans spent 23 per cent of disposable income for food in 1932 and 20 per cent in 1942. In 1947, it was 27 per cent.

New All-Day Lot Only Half-Filled In San Rafael

San Rafael's new all-day parking lot on Pacific Gas and Electric Co. property on Lindaro Street was only about half-filled during the entire Christmas holiday season, Public Works Supt. Norris M. Rawles reported today.

The lot, between Second and Third Streets, is not metered. It provides four hours of parking for 25 cents and all day parking for 50 cents.

"I just hope the people will use it more," said Rawles. "It will probably take some time before people start getting used to it."

DeGaulle Will Shun U.S., Brazil

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles De Gaulle of France plans two visits to Latin America in 1964, but he will bypass the United States on both, informed French government sources said yesterday.

De Gaulle also will avoid Brazil, the sources said. French-Brazilian relations have been frigid since the two countries were embroiled in a lobster fishery "war" earlier this year.

De Gaulle's first trip, the sources said, will be in the second half of March to Mexico and the French West Indian islands of Martinique and Guadeloupe.

He also may visit a number of Central American capitals on the same tour.

Family Agency Tells Of Backlog

Family Service Agency of Marin County has announced a heavy backlog of clients awaiting counseling is necessitating the elimination of new applicants until at least mid-February.

The office explained the current cases are more than its limited staff can interview in the immediate future, so no new client will be accepted until that present waiting list is handled.

Following this, a FSA spokesman said, the agency will accept only those clients it can counsel "as hours become available," abolishing any waiting list as such.

Formosa Recalls Aides In Tokyo

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — The nationalist Chinese government has ordered its key embassy personnel in Tokyo to return home in protest to a Japanese government decision to deport a would-be red Chinese defector to Peking.

Official sources said the Taipei government had decided to recall charge d'affaires Chang Peh-Ching and all four counsellors in the Nationalist Embassy in Tokyo.

A source close to President Chiang Kai-Shek said that severance of diplomatic relations with Japan was one of the measures being contemplated by the Nationalists. But he said the government would resort to such action not "in one stroke but step by step."

Post Chapel Handling Aid For Airman, Family

Donations to the airman and his family who were burned out of their Novato home on Christmas Eve are being handled through the post chapel, Lt. Col. Howard Scholten, chaplain at Hamilton Air Force Base, announced today.

A/1C and Mrs. David P. Martinez and their six children have been given quarters on the base at 118 Marin Drive. The Marin County Chapter of the Red Cross has given the family shoes and emergency clothing, but they still need more clothing and furniture to replace that lost in the fire, according to Scholten.

EARLY FELICITATIONS — William D. and Ada M. Fusselman look at first congratulatory card on golden wedding, received late last week. The veteran Marin County supervisor and his wife will note 50 years of marriage tomorrow.

Fusselmans To Observe Golden Anniversary

Fifty years ago tomorrow, in Tacoma, Wash., a young man traveling the Pacific Northwest as a manufacturers' agent and a young woman who had just resigned her schoolteaching job started the new year right with a Jan. 1 wedding.

William D. Fusselman, the young salesman of half a century ago, is now the veteran chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, strongly rumored to be planning to seek a seventh term on the board in next June's election. The then-schoolteacher is the former long-time chairman of the Marin Junior College District board.

William D. and Ada M. Fusselman (he's "Bill" to her and she's always "Billie" to him) will celebrate their golden wedding quietly. They plan to have dinner with a few of their nieces and nephews.

Forty-five of the Fusselmans' 50 years of married life have been spent in Marin. But the first five years saw a bit of moving about.

He was born in Kansas, she in Wisconsin, but both families moved to Washington when the future couple were children.

They met when both were students at College of Puget Sound (now University of Puget Sound). Fusselman returned to college after selling two candy stores he owned in Bellingham, Wash., having started in the candy making business at the age of 14 and become foreman of a retail shop at 17. His bride-to-be was studying to become a teacher.

After their graduation from college, "Bill" read law for three years while "Billie" taught school at Waitsburg, Wash., then at Blaine, where she doubled as teacher of Latin and English in high school and of music in elementary schools. Fusselman then put in a stint as special officer for the Northern Pacific Railroad, then took over from his father the representation in the Northwest of some eastern manufacturers. It was at that point that he persuaded his sweetheart, by then teaching at Burlington (Wash.) High School, to quit teaching and be his bride.

Three and one-half years later, they moved to Long Beach, Calif., where Fusselman drove rivets at a World War I shipyard. After one and one-half years of that, they came to Marin and he re-entered the candy business.

Local politics, and the promotion of Marin County, soon became sidelines for Fusselman. In 1928, he was elected to the San Anselmo City Council, on which he served until election to the county board of supervisors in 1942. He also headed Marvelous Marin, Inc., a county-wide promotion organization of the '30s.

Although Mrs. Fusselman never returned to schoolteaching, she was elected to the first board of trustees of Marin Junior College District when the district was formed in 1926, and remained continuously on the board until she retired in 1959. She was secretary for many years and president of the board the last three years of her service.

Both have found much to do also in a variety of other public work during their long Marin residence.

Although long retired from the candy business, Fusselman says all the half century of marriage "has been a sweet life." Of "Billie," he says with a chuckle, "She deserves the highest commendation for sticking with me all these years."

To which his wife's reply is simply, "Now, Bill!"

Housing For Elderly Group Plans Session

The San Rafael Mayor's Committee for Municipal Housing of Elderly People has not yet decided what action to take, Chairman Charles W. Aby reported today.

Dr. Aby said his three-man committee hopes to meet again in the next week or two to explore various fields. "One of the questions is whether the city can form a non-profit corporation," he said.

"As soon as we settle on the area of approach, we hope to expand the committee and start working," he said.

The two other members of the committee, appointed by Mayor John F. McInnis, are Jack Farrar of Kaehler-Farrar Development Co., and Omar E. McNally, business agent of the Machinists Union.

The committee has held two meetings thus far, conferring with federal housing authority and redevelopment agency.

Aby said he will ask Richard Phenix, coordinator of senior citizens activities for the county, to compile statistics on the over-65 population in San Rafael.

College Offers Course In Counseling

A College of Marin adult education class in group counseling will begin Jan. 8 at 7 p.m. in Room 92 of Olney Hall, according to instructor Glen Dale Hofsetter.

The 12-week course may also be offered in Novato and Marin City, depending on demand. The course includes lectures, discussions, readings, and administration and evaluation of psychological tests.

Six-Star Rank For MacArthur

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate clerks said yesterday that eight other senators have become co-sponsors of a bill by Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), which would give Gen. Douglas MacArthur six-star rank.

Symington introduced the legislation Dec. 18 and asked that it remain on the Senate calendar for co-sponsors until Jan. 15.

The bill will go to the Senate Armed Services Committee after mid-January.

Pope To Meet Patriarch Jan. 5

VATICAN CITY (UPI) —Pope Paul VI and Athenagoras I, patriarch of the Eastern Orthodox Church, will meet in Jerusalem Jan. 5 during the pontiff's pilgrimage to the Holy Land, Vatican sources said yesterday.

High vatican sources said the meeting would take place on the Mount of Olives, just outside the walls of the ancient city where Christ was crucified.

The exact site of the historic encounter was not specified but it was expected to be at the Garden of Gethsemane, where Christ was arrested after his betrayal by Judas.

New All-Day Lot Only Half-Filled In San Rafael

San Rafael's new all-day parking lot on Pacific Gas and Electric Co. property on Lindaro Street was only about half-filled during the entire Christmas holiday season, Public Works Supt. Norris M. Rawles reported today.

The lot, between Second and Third Streets, is not metered. It provides four hours of parking for 25 cents and all day parking for 50 cents.

"I just hope the people will use it more," said Rawles. "It will probably take some time before people start getting used to it."

DeGaulle Will Shun U.S., Brazil

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles De Gaulle of France plans two visits to Latin America in 1964, but he will bypass the United States on both, informed French government sources said yesterday.

De Gaulle also will avoid Brazil, the sources said. French-Brazilian relations have been frigid since the two countries were embroiled in a lobster fishery "war" earlier this year.

De Gaulle's first trip, the sources said, will be in the second half of March to Mexico and the French West Indian islands of Martinique and Guadeloupe.

He also may visit a number of Central American capitals on the same tour.

Family Agency Tells Of Backlog

Family Service Agency of Marin County has announced a heavy backlog of clients awaiting counseling is necessitating the elimination of new applicants until at least mid-February.

The office explained the current cases are more than its limited staff can interview in the immediate future, so no new client will be accepted until that present waiting list is handled.

Following this, a FSA spokesman said, the agency will accept only those clients it can counsel "as hours become available," abolishing any waiting list as such.

Formosa Recalls Aides In Tokyo

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — The nationalist Chinese government has ordered its key embassy personnel in Tokyo to return home in protest to a Japanese government decision to deport a would-be red Chinese defector to Peking.

Official sources said the Taipei government had decided to recall charge d'affaires Chang Peh-Ching and all four counsellors in the Nationalist Embassy in Tokyo.

A source close to President Chiang Kai-Shek said that severance of diplomatic relations with Japan was one of the measures being contemplated by the Nationalists. But he said the government would resort to such action not "in one stroke but step by step."

Post Chapel Handling Aid For Airman, Family

Donations to the airman and his family who were burned out of their Novato home on Christmas Eve are being handled through the post chapel, Lt. Col. Howard Scholten, chaplain at Hamilton Air Force Base, announced today.

A/1C and Mrs. David P. Martinez and their six children have been given quarters on the base at 118 Marin Drive. The Marin County Chapter of the Red Cross has given the family shoes and emergency clothing, but they still need more clothing and furniture to replace that lost in the fire, according to Scholten.

EARLY FELICITATIONS — William D. and Ada M. Fusselman look at first congratulatory card on golden wedding, received late last week. The veteran Marin County supervisor and his wife will note 50 years of marriage tomorrow.

BILL AND BILLIE

Fusselmans To Observe Golden Anniversary

Fifty years ago tomorrow, in Tacoma, Wash., a young man traveling the Pacific Northwest as a manufacturers' agent and a young woman who had just resigned her schoolteaching job started the new year right with a Jan. 1 wedding.

William D. Fusselman, the young salesman of half a century ago, is now the veteran chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, strongly rumored to be planning to seek a seventh term on the board in next June's election. The then-schoolteacher is the former long-time chairman of the Marin Junior College District board.

William D. and Ada M. Fusselman (he's "Bill" to her and she's always "Billie" to him) will celebrate their golden wedding quietly. They plan to have dinner with a few of their nieces and nephews.

Forty-five of the Fusselmans' 50 years of married life have been spent in Marin. But the first five years saw a bit of moving about.

He was born in Kansas, she in Wisconsin, but both families moved to Washington when the future couple were children.

They met when both were students at College of Puget Sound (now University of Puget Sound). Fusselman returned to college after selling two candy stores he owned in Bellingham, Wash., having started in the candy making business at the age of 14 and become foreman of a retail shop at 17. His bride-to-be was studying to become a teacher.

After their graduation from college, "Bill" read law for three years while "Billie" taught school at Waitsburg, Wash., then at Blaine, where she doubled as teacher of Latin and English in high school and of music in elementary schools. Fusselman then put in a stint as special officer for the Northern Pacific Railroad, then took over from his father the representation in the Northwest of some eastern manufacturers. It was at that point that he persuaded his sweetheart, by then teaching at Burlington (Wash.) High School, to quit teaching and be his bride.

Three and one-half years later, they moved to Long Beach, Calif., where Fusselman drove rivets at a World War I shipyard. After one and one-half years of that, they came to Marin and he re-entered the candy business.

Local politics, and the promotion of Marin County, soon became sidelines for Fusselman. In 1928, he was elected to the San Anselmo City Council, on which he served until election to the county board of supervisors in 1942. He also headed Marvelous Marin, Inc., a county-wide promotion organization of the '30s.

Although Mrs. Fusselman never returned to schoolteaching, she was elected to the first board of trustees of Marin Junior College District when the district was formed in 1926, and remained continuously on the board until she retired in 1959. She was secretary for many years and president of the board the last three years of her service.

Both have found much to do also in a variety of other public work during their long Marin residence.

Although long retired from the candy business, Fusselman says all the half century of marriage "has been a sweet life." Of "Billie," he says with a chuckle, "She deserves the highest commendation for sticking with me all these years."

To which his wife's reply is simply, "Now, Bill!"

Housing For Elderly Group Plans Session

The San Rafael Mayor's Committee for Municipal Housing of Elderly People has not yet decided what action to take, Chairman Charles W. Aby reported today.

Dr. Aby said his three-man committee hopes to meet again in the next week or two to explore various fields. "One of the questions is whether the city can form a non-profit corporation," he said.

"As soon as we settle on the area of approach, we hope to expand the committee and start working," he said.

The two other members of the committee, appointed by Mayor John F. McInnis, are Jack Farrar of Kaehler-Farrar Development Co., and Omar E. McNally, business agent of the Machinists Union.

The committee has held two meetings thus far, conferring with federal housing authority and redevelopment agency.

Aby said he will ask Richard Phenix, coordinator of senior citizens activities for the county, to compile statistics on the over-65 population in San Rafael.

College Offers Course In Counseling

A College of Marin adult education class in group counseling will begin Jan. 8 at 7 p.m. in Room 92 of Olney Hall, according to instructor Glen Dale Hofsetter.

The 12-week course may also be offered in Novato and Marin City, depending on demand. The course includes lectures, discussions, readings, and administration and evaluation of psychological tests.
